'Grit Ad A Lie' —Tories

Times Ottawa Bureau

SASKATOON — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Friday night accused the Liberals of spreading a "deliberate lie" about his stand on national unity.

Mr. Stanfield told a crowd of close to 2,300 that Prime Minister Trudeau and "his friends" were conducting a campaign to distort his policy.

He referred to a large advertisement which he said appeared in a Calgary newspaper.

The ad described Mr. Stanfiled's view on unity as a promotion of "two nations" and "special status" for Quebec.

'DELIBERATE LIE'

"I accuse the Liberal party of a deliberate lie which is not worthy of a national party seeking election," Mr. Stanfield said. He prefaced his charge with a reference to certain literature which is being spread around the country attacking Mr. Trudeau's background.

The prime minister this week lashed out at the pamphleteers for propogating "hate literature."

Mr. Trudeau said that "lies and distortions" on the views of individuals are dangerous to the Canadian society and have no place in the election campaign.

Mr. Stanfield said Friday he did not approve of any man having "mud slung at him."

He rejected the "articles in obscure papers which have given a distorted impression of Mr. Trudeau's statements in the past."

Having said that, Mr. Stanfield added: "I agree that his words should not be distorted and I call on the prime minister and his friends not to distort my words."

'REPUDIATE AD'

If Mr. Trudeau really believes what he is saying, he should immediately repudiate the statements in the Calgary newspaper ad, the Tory leader said.

He stressed firmly that he had never advocated a "two nations" policy for this country.

He and his party believe in one Canada, with a federal system, made up of two founding races working in harmony with people of other diverse origins who have helped to build the country.

The Conservative party felt that if any special powers are offered to one province, they must be offered to all provinces.

Mr. Stanfield said his Quebec strongman Marcel Faribault was in agreement with this view and had never argued otherwise.

He recalled to his Saskatoon audience Mr. Faribault's words recently in Winnipeg that he "loves every inch of this land and would fight anyone who tried to tear it apart."

Groos Pickets His Own Shop

By ERIC MAURICE

Victoria Liberal candidate David Groos this morning joined union men and unemployed shipbuilders by picking up a placard and picketing his own headquarters.

The pickets, the same who appeared at the Stanfield rally outside Memorial Arena Thursday, were protesting the closure of VMD shipyard

Close to 30 men took part in the picketing of all three party campaign headquarters in Victoria at 9:30 a.m. Later, some of the men went to Esquimalt-Saanich candidates' headquarters.

"I have very great sympathy with the people conducting this demonstration," Mr. Groos said.

Asked if he felt he was to blame as a member of the government for the last five years, Mr. Groos said, "It's an international financial matter.

"The blame can't be laid entirely at our doorsteps.

"We are having a tough time with the shipbuilding industry right now, but I think we'll get over it."

NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson said the picketers have a very valid complaint concerning the obvious discrimination against the Western shipbuilding industry.

"While the Liberals are desperately trying to save the Eastern yards, the Western ones are being neglected."

Conservative Eric Charman told a delegation of picketers Canada should take an example from the protection other maritime nations give their shipbuillding industry.

"How can we possibly talk about keeping the shipyards open when the government isn't comparing its methods with those of other countries?

"I am not ashamed to ask for and demand regional allowances" to get shipbuilding contracts here, Mr. Charman said.

Told of Mr. Groos' picketing, Mr. Charman said, "If he'd been working for the last few years, he wouldn't have to be out there carrying a sign."

A spokesman for the picketers said they plan to descend en masse on the Trudeau assembly Monday night.

SPOCK TO APPEAL CONVICTION; FACES JAIL TERM

BOSTON (AP)—Baby doctor Benjamin Spock, Yale University Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., and two others were convicted Friday night of conspiracy to counsel young men to evade the draft. A fifth defendant was acquitted.

"My main defence was that I believed a citizen must work against a war he feels is contrary to international law," Spock said. "The court has decided to feel differently."

After the conviction Friday night by an all-male jury, Spock's lawyer, Leonard Boudin, and defence attorneys for the other three said there would be an appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The four are expected to carry their appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, as part of their opposition to the Vietnam war.

Convicted with Coffin and the 65-year-old pediatrician were Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student, and Mitchell Goodman, 44, a writer and teacher from Temple, Me.

Marcus Raskin, 34, a Washington research director, was found not guilty by the jury after seven hours and 20 minutes of deliberation. The trial began May 20 and lasted four weeks.

U.S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford ordered Spock and the other three freed in personal recognizance until sentencing on July 10. They face maximum sentences of five-year prison terms and $10,000 fines.

The jury, in a list of findings on specific charges made in the indictment, found that Spock and the other three conspired to counsel, aid and abet selective service registrants to refuse or evade duties under the Selective Service Act.

During his two days on the witness stand, Spock said the war in Vietnam was "illegal, immoral, unwinnable and against the best interests of the United States."

Yes Vote 'A Dare' To Cabinet

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 4,000 nurses in British Columbia are headed towards compulsory arbitration settlement of their wage dispute with 61 hospitals.

As expected, they voted overwhelmingly in favor of striking and have three months in which to serve 48-hour strike notice and take this action.

However, under Bill 33, there is no doubt the government will act to either stop a strike before it starts or end it quickly if it starts.

The cabinet has authority to do either. All it must do is proclaim certain sections of the Mediation Act. It would then refer the dispute to the commission and order that the decision be binding on both sides.

FACE HEAVY FINES

If a strike is in effect when such an order is made, the strike must end in 24 hours and employees must return to their duties. Heavy fines are provided for failure to do so.

If no strike has started, the law prohibits one from commencing.

There is always the possibility, however, that direct talks may be resumed between the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. and the B.C. Hospitals Association.

But the gap between what the nurses want and what the hospitals will pay indicates this is an outside possibility unless one side makes a large compromise.

Official results of the strike vote are not expected to be made public until Monday. Spokesmen for the RNABC were not available Friday night or today.

But reliable sources said the strike vote ran as high as 97 per cent in some hospitals. It was indicated that nurses in 59 of the 61 hospitals supported strike action.

CONFIRMED SPECULATION

Earlier this week, Labor Minister Peterson all but said Bill 33 will be used to stop a nurses strike. In this, he confirmed speculation May 29 when the nurses voted down a recommended salary increase of 21 to 27 per cent in two stages this year. The hospitals had accepted the recommendations.

The minister said in an interview "Hospitals and schools I regard as essential public services. The public could not endure a closure of those kinds of facilities."

He also said hospitals and schools "are some of the very clear areas where the act (Bill 33) would apply."

NEW THREATS

Bonn Fighting Travel Bars

BERLIN (AP)—With new threats rumbling out of East Germany, Bonn authorities today planned ways to press the Soviet Union into stopping East Germany's slowdown of traffic in West Berlin.

Mention of "new and unpleasant surprises" from East Berlin spurred the West German government to seek talks with Allied governments on ways to ease the newly imposed travel restrictions—including the possibility of threatening to refuse to sign the United Nations treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

The treaty, passed Wednesday by the UN General Assembly, was drafted jointly by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Observers believe a threat not to sign it would push the Soviets into action with its East German ally because Moscow has voiced strong objections to a nuclear-armed West Germany.

Refusing to sign would leave the door open for the West Germans to arm themselves at any time.

CARS LINE UP

Traffic out of Communist-surrounded West Berlin was slowed again today by the new visa restrictions imposed by the East German regime Thursday. Police said at one time cars were lined up for four miles on the West Berlin side, waiting to be processed through an East German crossing point.

At the Helmstedt, West Germany, crossing point at the other end of the 110-mile autobahn connecting link, a spokesman said traffic to Berlin was light and was going through East German control points without delay.

HAMILTON SHOWERS CARNATIONS ON TRUDEAU

PM Scores Big at 16,000-Strong Rally

Special to The Times

HAMILTON — The Steel City set sparks flying Friday night as it hammered out the biggest, loudest, liveliest meeting of the election campaign.

More than 16,000 cheering supporters jammed the main stand at Hamilton's civic stadium to meet Prime Minister Trudeau.

It was the biggest political meeting in the city's history, and held in a Grey Cup-type atmosphere in the football field.

There were bands, balloons and cheerleaders.

Carnations were showered down on Mr. Trudeau's open convertible when he made a circuit of the track after his half-hour speech.

And the prime minister was the big scorer.

It was the biggest live audience he has faced in his political career, and he performed like a veteran.

In this highly industrialized, highly-unionized city, he set out a Liberal policy platform for Canada's work force.

He drew frequent cheers as he read from the text.

But the biggest ovation came when he turned without text, to his beliefs in a strong, one-Canada with a bright, challenging future.

Mr. Trudeau told the crowd he wanted people to become involved in tackling Canada's problems on a country-wide and not a narrow basis.

The prime minister turned to hundreds sitting in an overflow end-zone section, and state: "None will be left out in the wings as you are tonight."

It was the end of a hectic day of campaigning in the Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Peninsula areas that saw Mr. Trudeau draw big crowds at shopping-centre appearances all along the way.

There was tight security, although aides said they knew nothing of reported crank calls threatening the prime minister's life.

But in a stop in a Toronto suburb there was a plainclothes policeman on a store roof with binoculars and a rifle.

In Hamilton, there was also an army of police out.

At St. Catharines, people fought to keep their feet as

Thief Grabs Big Diamond

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A thief with a cap pulled down over his ears bashed through a half-inch thick glass case Friday, grabbed the McFarlin diamond and its necklace valued at $365,000 and ran out of the Witte Memorial Museum.

The gem, one of the largest canary diamonds in the world, was taken while the two museum guards were elsewhere.

IWA UNITS MEET; TALKS CONTINUE

Membership meetings of the International Woodworkers of America will be held in Victoria and Duncan Sunday as contract negotiations continued in Vancouver today.

The Victoria local will hold its meeting at noon at 715 Johnson. Duncan members will gather at the James Street curling rink in the morning.

No statement on progress was made by either the IWA or Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for 113 timber companies on Vancouver Island, the mainland coast and in the Queen Charlottes.

Union leaders again asked the 26,000 logging and mill workers to "sit tight" until they receive instructions from the negotiating committee, which has authority to call a strike "failing a satisfactory settlement" under the 92 per cent membership strike vote approval earlier.

There were unofficial reports that FIR has made a wage offer beyond the six cents an hour made earlier this week and that the IWA, which originally sought 50 cents an hour, made a counter proposal.

The current contract expired last midnight but FIR said the extension of talks automatically extends the last contract. Nearly all operations, however, are closed Saturdays and Sundays.

Social Credit Angry At TV Debate 'Snub'

Times News Services

VANCOUVER—Alex B. Patterson, acting national leader of the Social Credit Party, said Friday he wants the CBC to explain why he wasn't invited to participate in last Sunday's national television debate between the major party leaders.

"I think it was very improper for the organizers of the debate to proceed without extending an invitation to the leader of the Social Credit party," Mr. Patterson said in an interview.

"I never received any communications from the CBC nor do I know the basis for their decision to exclude me," he said.

"Social Credit has been in the federal field since 1935. With the exception of the four years from 1958 to 1962 there have always been Social Credit members of the Commons.

"I believe Social Credit has fully established its function as a federal party and we should have been included in the debate."

KELOWNA — A vote for the Liberal party in the June 25 federal election is a vote for higher taxes, Premier Bennett said Friday.

The British Columbia leader said in an interview that Prime Minister Trudeau did not want to face Parliament after he was chosen leader of his party as a minority government because he knew he would have to raise taxes in his next budget.

"So he ducked Parliament and went to the people for a mandate," he said.

VANCOUVER — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas was challenged Friday to bring his Quebec leader to British Columbia "to tell the West what the NDP's Quebec stand really is."

KIERANS
. . . challenge to NDP

The challenge was issued by Eric Kierans, former Quebec Liberal Federation president and an unsuccessful contender for the federal Liberal leadership.

Mr. Kierans is running against Quebec NDP Leader Robert Cliche in the Montreal-area riding of Duvernay in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Kierans told a news conference Mr. Douglas and Mr. Cliche have given opposite versions of their party's stand on Quebec and the constitutional issue.

Mr. Douglas tells English-speaking Canadians the NDP is against special status for Quebec, but Mr. Cliche says it is essential, said Mr. Kierans.

"Mr. Cliche also says Quebec must have more sovereignty and autonomy," he said. "Mr. Douglas is aware of this and does nothing about it."

HAMILTON — A band director from nearby Dundas said today he picked up a loaded revolver about 20 feet from Prime Minister Trudeau at a Friday night election rally at Civic Stadium and that police were reluctant to take it from him.

Hamilton police denied the incident.

John Cope, 40, a mechanic and director of the 42-piece Dundas marching band, said he could "have shot the prime minister—I could have shot anybody in the place."

VANCOUVER — The Province says federal officials will order Canadian cable television companies to black out June 25 federal election returns broadcast by U.S. stations before the polls close on the West Coast.

Because of the time lag, polls in the Maritimes close four hours before British Columbia and Alberta. In previous elections westerners have been able to learn of early Eastern election trends before the polls closed.

The Province quotes Melville M. Goldberg, legal counsel for the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, as saying the cable firms will be told to do "whatever is necessary" to avoid transmitting election news before 8 p.m. PST.

* * *

It says Mr. Goldberg stadted the CRTC, broadcasting's regulatory agency, has authority over the cable firms and will impose the blackout under the Canada Elections Act, which forbids publication of results anywhere in Canada before all polls are closed.

There is no such blackout legislation in the U.S.

Chief Electoral Officer Jean Marc Hamel told the province he referred the problem to the CRTC after it was brought to his attention by political party organizers in B.C.

On Friday representatives of three Seattle television stations whose programs are seen by B.C. cable subscribers said they did not plan to keep Canadian election news off newscasts.

But Dave Mintz, president of KVOS-TV, (B.C.) Ltd., said his Bellingham, Wash., station would observe Canadian law.

FLESHERTON, Ont. — Ronald Gostick, national director of the Canadian Intelligence Service, said Friday his monthly bulletin and a special open letter to Conservative Leader Stanfield are not "hate literature."

Gostick said that "there is a tendency today to regard anything that is critical as hate literature."

VANCOUVER — An election poster displayed in an apartment window has led to the eviction of Miss Helen Garry.

Miss Garry, a nurse, said Friday she was told to remove the poster — supporting the New Democratic Party — by the end of the month, or leave.

Miss Garry said she thought it was a violation of her rights.

But Mrs. Howard Symons, wife of the apartment house owner, said Miss Garry had broken the rules.

"When she moved in here she signed a set of rules, and among them was a rule that she couldn't do a thing like that," Mrs. Symons said.

SEX CHANGE has been accomplished by Frika Schinegger, 20-year-old top Australian girl skier and winner of the 1966 World downhill title. Her mother disclosed today that her "daughter" had undergone a series of operations. Mrs. Schinegger says her new son is happy to be a man.

Politics May Bring City Trade School

Greater Victoria will get a long-promised vocational school only when the provincial government decided the political moment is right, Peter Bunn said today.

The chairman of the Greater Vitoria school board said the lack of post-secondary education for students not going on to university in B.C. is "singularly deplorable."

High school vocational courses lead nowhere, he said. Graduates do not have sufficient training to get a job while their qualifications are just short of what's needed to go on to university.

Mr. Bunn said he has grown cynical about periodic government statements on progress toward a local vocational school.

The need was "overwhelmingly obvious" when meetings began on the subject five years ago, he said. Two years ago there were government statements indicating an immediate start.

"This is a typical Socred gimmick, just so much hogwash to calm the parents down for another few months.

"We will get a vocational school when its politically opportune for these people (the Social Credit government) to provide one and not before.

"The Oak Bay byelection (July 15) may prove such an occasion."

Two Delegates Off to Toronto

Two Victorians will leave here Monday to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association in Toronto, June 21-26.

They are Muriel Millen, president of the Victoria and Island branch, CAA, and Edith Rive, B.C.-Alberta regional representative, both active writers.

Delegates will hear talks by recognized authors, hold executive meetings and attend a reception at Toronto City Hall. They will be entertained to dinner by the government of Ontario and will go to Stratford Shakespeare Theatre to see Midsummer Night's Dream.

Strike Notice To Towel Firm

Strike notice has been served by the Retail Wholesale and Department Store Union against Canadian Linen Supply Company in Victoria.

A company spokesman said, however, that negotiations are scheduled for next week.

The union, which represents about 30 employees, is seeking wage increases of 50 cents to $1.25 an hour. Current rates range from $1.37½ to $2.14, the union said.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Private Investment Is Vital

By JIM HUME

If private enterprise responds to the Wharf Street waterfront urban renewal proposals as government has, the scheme is assured of success.

But it must not be forgotten that the key to the success of the scheme is private enterprise, not government participation. Governments, at federal, provincial and municipal levels, can only go so far in improving the quality of the environment in which we live.

Hume

On the Wharf Street proposals governments at all three levels have given the project gracious blessings and have pledged whatever public capital is required to move the scheme along.

The final impetus cannot, however, come from Ottawa, the legislature or city hall.

It will be interesting during the next few years to see just how much faith Victorians have in their city and Canadians in their country.

We stress "the next few years" deliberately because nobody is going to wave a magic wand and transform a rather grubby section of waterfront into a civic wonderland.

Phase one of the study told us that urban renewal was economically feasible. Phase two will show us what the 44-acre site could look like if all segments of the community co-operate.

Phase three, and that could be 10 years or more from now, will give us the finished product.

Not that it will be 10 years before the first signs of a blossoming development are seen. They should be coming along in relatively short order, like a year or two from now. But it does take time to build a city, and let those who a few months from now will be nit-picking because nothing appears to be happening, take note of that fact.

While on urban renewal, a suggestion from Times business editor Ab Kent to city council.

Ab suggests that with the tourist season already upon us it might be a good idea to post a few dramatic signs throughout the Rose-Blanshard area informing the people that something new is about to happen.

"We know what's going on, but anyone else driving through there must wonder what kind of city they are in when they see vacant, weed-covered lots fairly close to the heart of the city," says Ab. "It looks like a disaster area. And while they're about it, they might spray a few tanks of weed killer around just for appearance sake."

Sounds like a good idea, and a relatively simple one, at that.

Whatever happened to the city's recreation committee?

After an outburst of enthusiasm a few months ago with the announcement that the Crystal would be demolished and a new swimming pool built the committee has ostensibly vanished from the scene.

It is true that members have been working behind closed doors on property acquisition to obtain a site for the new pool, but surely there must be other things to discuss in the recreation field.

Maybe within the next few days Ald. Percy Frampton will find enough going on to scrape up an agenda and call a meeting.

In the meantime, an interim report on Royal Athletic Park.

The dead turf has been removed, new (old) soil put down and on Friday evening the playing field was seeded.

Asked if the seed had been put in the right way up this time, parks superintendent Herb Warren murmured "I hope so. I'm keeping my fingers crossed for the next 10 days."

Herb added that no major problems had arisen during the turf-removal-sprinkler-system-adjustment re-seeding program and that the field should be ready for limited use (again) in the late fall.

Spent last weekend at Painter's Lodge, Campbell River, with city hall department heads and members of city council. Relax, it was a pay-your-own-way weekend.

Two fishing trophies up for grabs, salt-water and fresh.

Alf Joyce, city assessor, took the salmon trophy with one a smidgin' over four pounds and only a shade ahead of city solicitor Terry O'Grady. Traffic engineer Dave Campbell caught a five-pounder—but, alas, after the one-day derby deadline.

Who won the trout trophy? Ah, three versions from three men in the same boat on Lower Campbell Lake. Pick the one you think most honest.

Ald. Cecil Parrott, two-time winner of the trout trophy and guide for the day: "About four o'clock the other two had had enough and wanted to go in, but I told them there was a big one waiting so steered a course putting this big cutthroat on Jim Hume's hook."

Jim Bramley, city treasurer and to this point in the day the big fisherman: "Well, what can you expect from the press. He couldn't even get it in the boat without help. He'd never have made it had it not been for my work with the net. At that is wasn't really big and it didn't fight at all."

Jim Hume: "It was fantastic. I told Cec Parrott to cut across the lake 'cause there was a big one waiting and bang, tremendous. Heck of a fight all the way up to the boat. I let Jim Bramley net it because he hadn't been getting much action. Weighed in at three, three-and-a-half, maybe four pounds. Won the trophy, too."

And they say you can't beat city hall. Ha!

. . . NURSES

The registered nurses currently earn $390 a month to start increasing to $466 after four years.

The rejected recommendation would have elevated this range, by the second increase July 1, to $475 a month to start rising to $593.75 after five years — adding a fifth-year stepup.

The recommendations of the conciliation board also included a fifth week of vacation after 20 years and a $1 differential for evening and overnight shifts.

The nurses went into bargaining seeking salaries of $600 a month to start increasing to $841 after five years.

Their spokesmen have complained that inequities in existing salaries in the health field place registered nurses "in an intolerable position."

They have said that sanitary inspectors in Vancouver earn more money than a public health nurse with a master's degree in nursing; that the starting rate at present for a nurse is less than floor cleaners and window cleaners in hospitals; and that orderlies, "with no formal training whatsoever who give only simple nursing care under the supervision of a registered nurse," earn $50 a month more than the nurse's starting rate.

. . . TRUDEAU

the crowd swarmed around Trudeau after his speech.

Police threw up a flying wedge and got him to his car before any one got hurt.

There was a highly publicized lunchtime swim in a motel pool at Oakville, in which he was joined by the manager's shapely, blonde, bikini-wearing wife.

Hamilton topped off the day with its tumultuous welcome before the prime minister flew off for today's campaigning in Quebec.

The Liberals held three of the steel city's four seats in the last Parliament. This time, redistribution has added a fifth and the Conservatives and NDP are fighting hard.

Liberal organizers said before the meeting that at least two of the seats could be decided in large measure by the success of the stadium rally.

Questionable, but there was no question that the meeting was a smash success.

MAY HEAL WOUNDS

Amnesty Granted by De Gaulle

PARIS (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle moved today to heal some of the wounds that have weakened French unity by pardoning former Gen. Raoul Salan and former Col. Antoine Argoud, both of whom were serving life sentences.

The move was seen here as an attempt to swing right wing votes to the Gaullists in forthcoming general elections.

Salan and Argoud once were among the brightest figures in the French army. Then they turned against de Gaulle by opposing Algerian independence.

They were leaders of the Secret Army Organization which sowed terror in Algeria and France to back their dreams of keeping Algeria under French control.

The Elysee Palace announced no one now remains in prison for events concerned with the Algerian war.

De Gaulle ordered the release of the last 11 prisoners just eight days before the first round of voting in the election of a new National Assembly.

After the amnesty was announced, Salan walked out of Tulle prison in central France, the last of four generals who led the Algerian putsch to be freed.

Observers here said the pardons could draw many votes from former Algerian colonist and right wingers in the elections June 23 and 30.

The amnesty was extended to 59 persons, including a majority of the men condemned for their part in an assassination attempt on de Gaulle at Petit Clamart in August, 1962.

Officially, the presidential pardons were issued to commemorate de Gaulle's radio appeal of June 18, 1940, for Frenchmen to fight on against nazism.

Salan once was over-all French commander in Indochina and later he was the military and civilian chief in Algeria. France's most decorated soldier, he played a key role in rallying Algerian support for de Gaulle's return to power in 1958.

Then he broke with de Gaulle because he suspected the president was ready to give Algeria its independence. Salan and three other generals staged a putsch in Algiers in April, 1961, that took power for several days.

TOOK COMMAND

After talks had started on Algerian independence, he took over command of the Secret Army Organization, which kept Algeria and France in turmoil for months.

ARGOUD

SALAN
. . . no interpretation

Argoud was the secret Army commander for France. He was kidnapped in Munich Feb. 25, 1963, and spirited across Germany and into France. Everyone believed that French secret agents had done the job.

After his release today, Salan announced he would publish his memoirs "because I think it is my duty to history to write what I lived through."

Salan told a news conference: "I will not interpret my pardon. I know that it has already been interpreted. I will say only that I am happy to be free again."

Police Rescue Demonstrators While Bearing Macabre Signs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police rescued 11 casket-bearing demonstrators—most of them Negroes—from an angry, advancing crowd of George C. Wallace supporters Friday night following the presidential candidate's rally.

Wallace had left the auditorium just before the fracas erupted and did not see it.

The demonstrators carried a child's white casket, a sign saying "Wallace is a Hitler. Crime, murder, injustice and hate follow Wallace." They also carried a picture of four Negro children killed in a Birmingham, Ala., church explosion in 1963.

"The crowd was tense," said Police Maj. Joe Casey. "We didn't arrest the demonstrators. We just brought them in for their own protection and then released them without charges."

A helmeted policeman who reached the surrounded demonstrators said: "I had to knock down one man to keep him off a big Negro. The crowd was going to kill them."

The demonstrators — one of them a Negro man in a wheelchair—were parading in front of the auditorium as Wallace concluded his speech inside by calling for strict law enforcement and asking for the support of all Negroes in Tennessee.

Mule Train Slows Traffic

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Poor People's mule train reached here today with about 100 persons in 13 battered wagons after the threat of further arrests from Governor Lester Maddox failed to materialize.

The mule-drawn wagons were still on Interstate 20 after 7 a.m., the deadline set by the governor. Prior to the deadline, state troopers accompanying the caravan said the group would be subject to arrest if still on the busy highway.

The caravan, part of the Poor People's Campaign, was halted Friday when 67 persons were arrested and later released on charges of violating a law banning pedestrians and non-motorized vehicles from the highway.

Students Use Bombs

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine students, hurling fire bombs, set a bus ablaze and started several other fires Friday night and early today in the first eruption of student violence against the military regime of President Juan Carlos Ongania.

On the Seaway

TWO YEARS AGO, WHEN THE federal government agreed to a 30 per cent wage increase over two years for St. Lawrence Seaway workers, the reaction of many critics was forceful. The large increase would give a serious push to the inflationary trend, it was said. And this movement would be vastly expanded as the Seaway settlement was taken as a gauge for wage increases in other industries across the country.

The upward sweep of incomes has absorbed that increase of two years ago, and now the country is faced with the threat of strike action to enforce a one-year, nine-per-cent Seaway wage raise. The federal conciliation board recommendation of a six-per-cent-a-year-increase for two years has been welcomed by the government but rejected by the union. The conflict raises the old question so familiar in Canadian labor controversies—how far can a dispute be allowed to go before it seriously injures the vital fabric of the nation? In a country of Canada's geographical layout, east-west transportation is as essential as the flow of blood in a body, the country's survival demands that the movement of people and goods shall not be too long disrupted by labor strife or any other cause.

The tendency in such a quandary is to try to restore the transportation flow at almost any cost. Under past threats of railway strikes the federal government has moved to use the power of the state to ensure that service continued. In the Seaway dispute of 1966 a quick agreement to what was an unprecedentedly large wage increase terminated the threat. In the present case it appears that the union has become much more moderate in its demand, reducing it from 20 per cent to nine, but it has chosen the politically explosive tactic of calling for a strike only four days before the general election.

Such a power play to force government compliance could have the effect of driving labor votes away from Liberal candidates. But it could also have other repercussions, in view of organized labor's close affiliation with the NDP, by discouraging many other votes which might have gone to Mr. Douglas' socialist entrants.

From the standpoint of conceivable increases in the cost of living over the next two years, the six-and-six per cent settlement would more than amply protect the workers; the nine per cent would undoubtedly add to the upward price trend. But it would be encouraging to think that union authorities have acknowledged the correlation between wages and prices in tempering their demands from the 20 per cent previously requested. Union leadership today, with the large groups and vast wealth often involved, requires statesmanship on a par with that of government, and a full responsibility for, and recognition of, the important effects that union policy can have on the nation as a whole.

Help for the Not Quite Helpless

THERE IS SOME MERIT IN A plan being considered by the West German government to initiate a North Atlantic Treaty Development fund — and some reason for misgivings. The purpose of the fund, according to reports from Bonn, would be to aid the metamorphosis of NATO from a primarily military agency into a broader organization concerned with trade and international financial stability. Under the plan, member countries would subscribe to a fund to be administered for the benefit of all, but with special emphasis on financing economic development in countries with limited resources.

Interestingly enough, the Bonn officials who are putting the plan forward, would include Canada — and they are thinking of Quebec — in the limited resources area, and one reason for this seems to be that the fund could be a vehicle through which France could gracefully disengage itself from that province. The German attitude appears to be that President de Gaulle's interference in Quebec affairs has been a major source of Atlantic Alliance difficulty and that now, because of the chaotic situation in France, the time is ripe to end the Paris-Quebec entanglement.

The prospect of substituting NATO funds for French in development of Quebec has attractive aspects, although it must be noted that Quebec has so far received a great deal more in the way of promises than in cash. But the plan would undoubtedly run into political difficulties in other areas. Greece, for instance, despite its military dictatorship which is distasteful to nearly all NATO members except the United States, needs development assistance, but this would probably be used to prop up the existing regime. The same might also be said of Portugal.

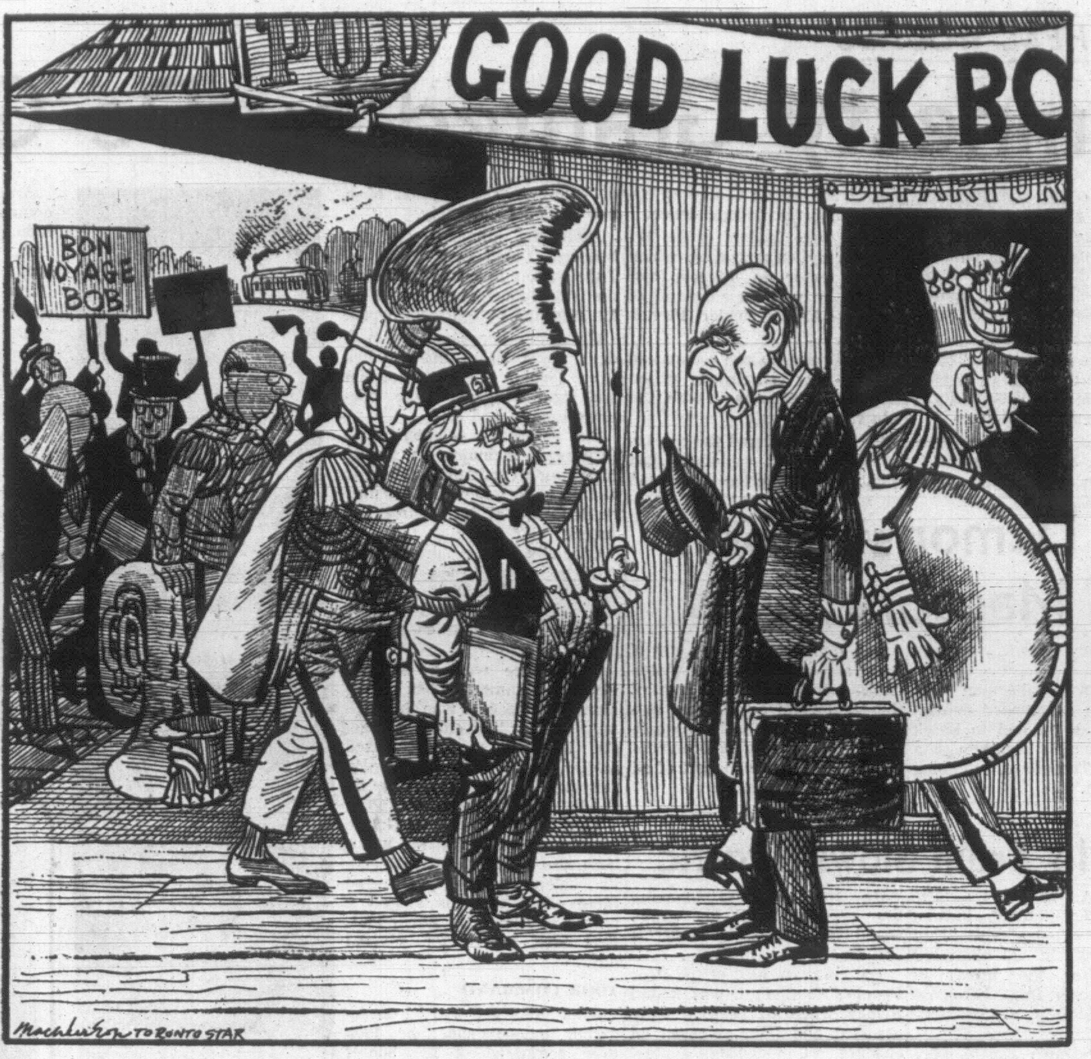
Another aspect of the plan deserving close study is whether or not it would simply set up, in effect, another "rich man's club" to the detriment of under-developed areas outside NATO which are in far greater need of help than even the poorest of the Atlantic Alliance countries. There seems to be a danger now of the wealthier nations of the world turning inward and finding less time for the poorer countries. An examination of the German proposal would have to keep this possibility firmly in mind.

The Garbage Gobblers

CANADIANS OFTEN PRIDE themselves on the absence from this country of the violence and hatred and political passion which from time to time create trouble in other countries, including our neighbor to the south. But we must ask ourselves if there is much room for pride or smugness when a political campaign such as the present one can be marred by obviously well-financed "hate literature" and smear tactics directed against the Prime Minister.

Mr. Peter Newman, in an article on Page 5 today, has made a brief survey of the type of innuendo and outright lie which a number of organized groups have been propagating. Earlier this week on the same page the columnists, Mr. Douglas Fisher and Mr. Harry Crowe, discussed similar items which had come to their attention, some of them emanating from opposition politicians in Ontario who should have known better. These were, fortunately, told by people higher up in the party to stop immediately.

What is important here is not just the spreading of lies, although this is reprehensible enough. It is the creation of a climate of hatred for a man or an organization or a race of people, which can serve to encourage dangerous behavior on the part of deranged individuals. And that the people who would encourage this kind of violence do it hypocritically in the name of righteousness and for the preservation of democracy adds to the contempt which nearly all Canadians must feel for their actions.



"No more trains till tomorrow, Stranger."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

The old logging road, off the Highland Road just above the second bridge, presents many interesting blooms at this season.

Here the twin-flower, with its delicate pink twin flowers and shiny green leaves, gives off the most delicate perfume that can be found in the forest glades. This flower was named Linnaea borealis after the famous Swedish botanist Linnaeus who chose it as his favorite flower. This plant is a shrub.

Growing along the way you will find many vines of yellow honeysuckle, which seem to like to climb around the willows. This plant is related to the twinflower.

Scattered along the way you will find the columbine now in full flower. Examine the blossom with its five petals arched back and resembling a dove. This is a favorite flower of the humming birds and the butterflies. The nectar is hidden deep in the flower.

There are patches where you will see the princes' pine with its leathery clusters of leaves around the stem. Note how sharp they are. The flowers look as if they were made of wax and will vary in color from a white to a pink. Do you know that this flower is related to the arbutus and salal? All belong to the heath family.

By the side of the road the self-heal grows in abundance with its long flower heads that vary in shade from a light blue to a dark purple.

If you wander along you will come out on the power line. Here there is an almost complete change of floral growth, brought on by the clearing of the right-of-way.

An Audacious Trudeau Insistence on Keynesian Doctrine

Western

NOTHING better illustrates the audacity of Mr. Trudeau than his insistence, in the middle of an election campaign, that the Keynesian doctrine is to be taken seriously. While still a leadership candidate, he said in an interview: "I think that the theory of the balanced budget over the whole cycle is the right approach. You know a deficitary budget is justifiable when you have to combat deflation and a budgetary surplus is necessary when you are combatting inflation . . . so when you ask me if for some time to come we should balance the budget it really depends on whether we are going to have fairly stable times for some time to come. If we are, I think we should balance the budget; if we are going to hit an inflation, I think we should tend to have a surplus."

Mr. Trudeau has not merely continued to reiterate the virtues of a balanced budget; he has made restraint a central theme of his whole campaign. Although in the light of our recent history, it may appear a rather austere and certainly a limiting doctrine, the reception has been sufficiently favorable to influence opposing leaders. Thus Mr. Stanfield has felt it continuously necessary to qualify and justify proposals (such as the guaranteed income) plainly intended to outflank Liberal positions. Even Mr. Douglas may have been affected to some extent; he has seized with apparent relief on the Carter report as an answer to those who suspect the NDP of financial irresponsibility.

This is an astonishing turn of events because all the parties have acted for years in the apparent belief that Lord Keynes met his political Waterloo in Canada in 1957. There was once a Liberal government which actually believed in balancing over the cycle and in that conviction accumulated surpluses (and retired debt) in good times. It was rewarded with attacks on "overtaxation." The Conservatives campaigned with the argument that dollars had been unnecessarily extracted from Canadian pockets. So well did they succeed that the government was dismissed and the minister of finance defeated in his own constituency.

Revered in Theory

The result was highly interesting. None of the parties publicly repudiated Lord Keynes as an enemy of the people. They continued to revere him in theory while bisecting him in practice.

From 1957 until now we have not had a balanced budget. Whatever the state of the economy we have had deficits, all of them apparently justified by Keynesian economics. Even now in inflationary conditions the objective is not surplus but balance. We have a unique financial pendulum; it swings out on any provocation but never swings back past centre point. It is perhaps not surprising in these circumstances that the cost of living shows the same peculiarity. It moves in one direction—up.

Mr. Trudeau has inherited this situation but, from the import of his various statements, does not accept it. He has not merely revived the unspeakable word, "surplus," but on at least one occasion has spoken approvingly of the St. Laurent government. The depth of his heresy is shown by his refusal to make election spending commitments—which means that the government, if successful, will be free at least to balance this year's accounts and perhaps to put Lord Keynes together again.

Much will depend, however, on the degree of Mr. Trudeau's success. In contrast to his predecessor, his attitude is philosophical; he is making no special appeal for the restoration of majority government. In the nature of politics, however, it is extremely doubtful that a minority government could accept the disciplines implicit in the Keynesian doctrine.

It is easy to opt for a deficit which means, in effect, the avoidance of taxation. We pay instead through higher costs and interest rates. But the tax impact is immediate, often calculable, and promptly blamed on the government.

A ministry with minority support is under constant pressure from more than half the members of the House to increase spending. Appearances are often misleading because an Opposition will commonly deplore total spending and tax the government with extravagance. But the total is a composite of items and in respect of any program it is standard procedure for parties to the left of Mr. Speaker to denounce the ministers as heartless, niggardly, unimaginative, offering too little to every worthy endeavour and that too late.

On rare occasions, when the country is upset about taxes, a few members may take a more responsible line. Thus some Conservatives, mainly from Alberta, did attempt at the outset to persuade the government to defer medicare. But there was no concerted effort; nothing faintly resembling the struggle over the flag or many far lesser tussles. What plainly troubled the Conservatives was the calculation that they might stand exposed as a party which had resisted the introduction of a probably popular program.

Eye on Votes

The great idea usually is to outflank the government. In a Parliament of minorities (such as we have had for six years), the possibility of an early election is never far from the minds of members. Thus every Opposition party is eager at all times to appear more sympathetic to every group and every region in the country.

This pressure from the Opposition creates a pressure within the government caucus. A member fearful for his seat likes nothing less than a hard line on financial matters. There could scarcely be a better example than the well-known, almost open struggle waged by a section of Liberals in the last session against the medicare deferment.

The conclusion seems to me inescapable. If Mr. Trudeau is to restore Keynesianism, he needs a firm majority in a Parliament that will not live constantly under the shadow of possible dissolution. Otherwise we will have a balanced budget this year but it is difficult to foresee balance over the cycle when all the pressures combine to drive the pendulum in a single direction.

The Gun and the Climate of Violence

Purser

AS the gun control debate rages — it livened up considerably as the Senate resumed activity following Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's death — the opponents of gun controls protest that stiffer legislation will not prevent murders. True enough, as harassed and picketed officials of the National Rifle Association, the wealthy free-trade-in-guns pressure group financed by gun owners and manufacturers, have been explaining to reporters for a week now, their offices are full of objects other than guns with which they could inflict murder on their visitors.

But these objects, ranging from letter openers to paper weights to sharp-corner picture frames differ from guns in two basic ways: (1) they offer the intended victim a chance of defence, and (2) they were designed for purposes other than killing.

Destruction Sole Purpose

A gun has no purpose but to inflict injury or death, and it is almost impossible to defend against, so long as the would-be assassin positions himself to get a shot or two out before he can be grabbed from behind.

It is difficult to believe that the omnipresence of the gun in the United States does not contribute to the problem of violence that worries Americans so much. Nothing beats the gun as an invitation to death. In moments of despondency, drunkenness or hopelessness, nothing invites the simple and irreversible solution of suicide like a gun in the bedside table. If the despairing victim is a family man, nothing invites the mass family murder like a handy loaded gun. (Family slaughters by off-duty New York policemen, who can take their revolvers home, have happened too often.)

More than anything else, the possession of a gun encourages a young tough, or even an older married man trapped in the vast structure of personal debt created by the consumer society, to rob the liquor store counterman or the night taxi or bus driver and to kill him if he makes trouble, or even if he doesn't.

(Here in Washington, liquor store owners have frequently placed full-page ads in the papers appealing for protection following the murder of one of their number. Taxis have become scarce at night here owing to the frequent robberies and occasional murders of drivers. Here and in nearby Baltimore, Maryland, bus drivers have called strikes within the last few weeks following the murders of drivers in both cities during armed robberies.)

No country exceeds the United States as a gun-owning society on a mass scale. Owing to the lack of controls here, there are no reliable figures. Some say there are 200 million guns loose here. No one suggests there are fewer than 50 million. In other words, at least one in four Americans has a gun, and the figure is probably much higher.

The contrasts with other countries are spectacular In Japan, with half the population of the United States, there are only about 500,000 firearms extant — about one fiftieth the number per unit population in the United States, according to the very lowest American estimate. Firearms were used in Japan in 1966 in only 99 crimes of all types, while in the United States during that year firearms were used in 50 times that number of murders alone.

Accidental gun deaths in the United States run at 0.13 per 1,000 persons, more than 13 times the rate in Japan — a figure which shows that deliberate crime is not the only spectre arising from overspread gun ownership. (But how many of the accidental deaths are really accidental? I recall long ago hearing a knowledgable American say that if he wanted to kill someone, he would invite him on a hunting trip, put a bullet through his brain, and claim that he thought the deceased was a deer.)

In Britain, the firearms murder rate runs at about one two-hundredth that in the United States. It is almost impossible to get a handgun permit in Britain. Firearms are rarely used in crime, and the shooting murder recently of three policemen in London created an international sensation and inspired the local underworld to help hunt down the culprits. The 100 or so gun murders of policemen in the U.S. each year — few policemen are murdered any other way —pass as routine local news items.

New York City is justly famous for its violence, despite an unusually stringent local gun control law (easily evaded due to the lack of state and national laws). But even so, the murder rate there per unit of population is about one-third that of Alaska, and of Dallas and Houston in Texas, which all have far less stringent gun laws. In Texas, no one can be convicted of carrying a concealed handgun away from his home unless he has been previously convicted of a crime of violence specifically involving a firearm. If he has been convicted of robbery at knifepoint, he is free to carry a concealed loaded pistol wherever he goes.

Baited for Children

And so the story goes. One American newspaper last week found itself pointing out that, in contrast to the United States, no one under the age of 14 — that's right, 14 — is allowed to buy or possess a firearm in Britain. It wasn't so long ago that ads on the back covers of comic books invited American subteens to order revolvers by mail. And it's only the comic books, not the gun sales, that have gone out of style.

Pride of gun ownership is still a powerful force in the United States. It is not easy, politically speaking, to end the source of that pride. A law passed last week by Congress, affecting handguns only and in a limited way, does not do it. Sen. Thomas Dodd (Democrat-Connecticut), a long-time foe of free access to weapons, appealed Monday for meaningful legislation. Despite the emotional atmosphere still prevailing his plea fell on deaf ears.

Congress cannot eliminate murder by limiting the ownership of guns to those competent to possess them; but it can reduce the climate of violence and end the legal anomaly that makes the United States an international laughing stock.

Letter to the Editor

Waving

With respect to Mr. Skelton's letter, which appears in your issue of June 11, I agree to the extent that the flag is not a major election issue, and that Mr. Burnham is merely "splitting the vote."

Since Canada is the senior dominion in the British Commonwealth, is it not unfortunate — to put it mildly — that the current Canadian flag, which was forced on the country in 1964 by the Pearson administration, does not contain the Union Jack. This Union flag is in the flags both of Australia and of New Zealand.

I remember that, when I passed through the loyal Ontario town of Peterborough in June, 1964, hundreds of Red Ensigns — and some Union Jacks — were flying from houses. Only one "Pearson Pennant" was in evidence.—S. W. M. Greer, 2434 Windsor.

The Ugly 'Smear' Campaign Mounted Against Trudeau

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—Never before in a Canadian election has a prime minister been the subject of so much hatred and innuendo as has been flung at Pierre Elliott Trudeau in the current campaign.

Housewives, businessmen, politically-concerned citizens of all parties across the country have been receiving well-printed propaganda sheets in the mail, which accuse the Liberal leader of being a "pro-Soviet, pro-Castro, pro-Mao" politician who wants to turn Canada into a socialist state.

Newman

No one has been able to determine exactly who is financing the costly smear-campaign, but the pamphlets being distributed by the tens of thousands in every province, are so cleverly worded that they may convince some voters their charges are true. Each accusation is given superficial legitimacy through the device of having it accompanied by a selected quotation that appears to document the facts.

The main distributors of this questionable material are: the Edmund Burke Society, of Scarborough, Ont.; the Canadian Council of Evangelical Protestant Churches in Toronto; the Canadian Intelligence Service at Flesherton, Ont.; the Evangelical Mission of Converted Monks and Priests, at Stoufville, Ont., and Vers Demain, a tabloid, published by a former Social Crediter, Louis Even, at Rougement, Que.

The accusations made by these publicatons are all essentially the same. To discover what, if any truth, there is in their writings, I recently distilled their accusations into twelve main anti-Trudeau charges and by talking to Trudeau's associates and looking up the official record, tried to get at the real facts.

Here are the charges and a summary of the facts:

The charge: That Trudeau was picked up in 1961 by the U.S. Coastguard off Key West trying to run guns to Castro's Cuba in a small boat.

The facts: Trudeau and two friends — Alphonse Gagnon and Valmor Francoeur did join in an attempt to row a small boat across the Straits of Florida to Cuba. Their objective was to test the boat, invented by Gagnon, which used footpedals instead of oars.

They were stopped by the U.S. Coastguard, but only because they had passed the off-shore limits and because a storm was brewing and the Coastguard was concerned about their safety.

After some discussion, the Coastguard let them continue in the company of a shirmp boat. The storm eventually forced them to turn back.

The charge; That Trudeau was booted out of the Canadian Officer Training Corps in 1940.

The facts: Trudeau's military career was certainly not distinguished but he was not actually dismissed from the COTC which he joined at the University of Montreal. He completed a summer training course with the Fusiliers de Mont-Royal.

The charge: That in 1945 he enrolled at Harvard, described by these publications as "a spawning ground of leftist intellectuals."

The Facts: Trudeau did attend Harvard where he received a masters degree, but the university hardly qualifies as "a spawning ground of leftist intellectuals." Another Harvard graduate happens to be Robert Stanfield, the Conservative leader.

The Charge: That in 1947 he attended the London School of Economics where he found "that Professor Harold Laski, the Marxist, was the most powerful influence he encountered."

The Facts: Trudeau did attend the London School and did find Laski's lectures the most stimulating. Laski was a member of the British Fabian Society and chairman of the British Labor party but hardly qualified as a Marxist. Among his most fervent Canadian admires is another former student: Dalton Camp.

The Charge: That when he returned to Montreal in 1951 Trudeau launched the leftist publication Cite Libre and published the works of Professor Raymond Boyer (convicted of Soviet espionage in the Gouzenko case); Stanley B. Ryerson the leading theoretician of the Canadian Communist party; and Pierre Gelinas the Quebec director of the Communist party's agitation and propaganda section.

The Facts: Trudeau did launch the monthly review Cite Libre, which was designed to unite the liberal and progressive forces in Quebec against the Union Nationale regime of Maurice Duplessis. Raymond Boyer did contribute two articles to the publication in December, 1952, and May, 1955, one dealing with a study of the death penalty in New France and another with a history of torture through the ages, as well as some literary reviews. Ryerson did not contribute to the magazine. The Gelinas article was published in 1952 as part of a review of a recent provincial election campaign in which he wrote the story of the Communist party's involvement.

The Charge: That in 1952 Trudeau led a delegation of Communists to the Moscow Economic Conference.

The Facts: Trudeau did attend the conference, not as the leader of any delegation, but so did many respected economists of several Western countries.

The Charge: That in 1952 Trudeau was barred entry into the United States as an inadmissible person.

The Facts: Under a United States immigration regulation all those individuals who had travelled behind the Iron Curtain later than 1946 were barred entry, but once Trudeau explained the nature of his trip to the American consul in Montreal, the ban was lifted.

The Charge: That in 1955 Trudeau launched "Le Rassemblement," described as a "leftist united front rally in Quebec."

The Facts: Trudeau did start Le Rassemblement but is was a movement dedicated to uniting the forces opposed to Duplessisism into a political education effort.

The Charge: That in 1960 Trudeau led a Communist delegation to Peking for a Red victory celebration.

The Facts: Trudeau's China trip was not at the head of any delegation but in the company of Jacques Hebert, the Montreal publisher. The story of their journey was published in a book entitled "Deux Innocents en Chine Rouge."

The Charge: That in 1962, despite protests, Trudeau succeeded in getting an appointment as a professor at the University of Montreal.

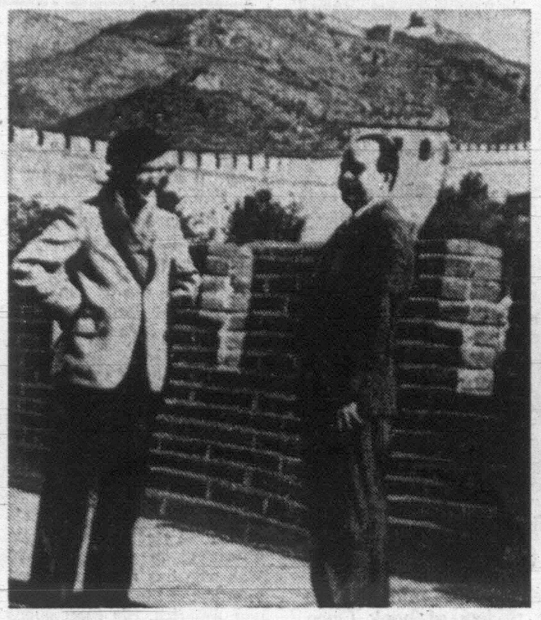
The Facts: The protests about Trudeau's appointment to the University of Montreal were made in the 1950s because Cardinal Leger vetoed his application. After the defeat of Duplessis in 1960 Trudeau was immediately appointed to the university as an associate professor of constitutional law.

The Charge: That in 1962 Trudeau was appointed to the executive of the "red-line Canadian Peace Research Institute."

The Facts: Trudeau was indeed a sponsor of the CPRI established by Norman Alcock (formerly with the National Research Council) to study the many social factors which contribute to the causes of war, but there has never been anything to indicate that the institute is Communist-infiltrated or motivated.

The Charge: That in 1965 Trudeau decided to use the Liberal party for socialist purposes.

The Facts: In his forword to "Federalism and the French Canadians" (Macmillan and Company) Trudeau writes: "In joining the Liberals, I turned my back on the socialist party for which I had campaigned at a time when Quebec considered socialism to be treason and heresy; but I had no regrets because by then — in 1965 — most of its Quebec followers were in fact exchanging socialism for nationalism. They did this in the hope of finding a foothold in Quebec, but as a result they merely drew closer to the rising bourgeoisie. The latter was beginning to use Marxist terminology to justify its preaching of national socialism."



On such flimsy evidence as a trip to Red China and other incidents has been built the campaign to smear Prime Minister Trudeau as a Communist. Above, the Prime Minister is shown at left on the Great Wall with Montreal publisher Jacques Hebert. Their visit resulted in a book, "Two Innocents in Red China".

Japan's Zaibatsus Revive

Pre-War Industrial Giants Back in Business

By DAVID SORELL

TOKYO — A rash of mergers and takeovers, now under way here, is changing the face of big business in Japan.

Since the new face which is emerging is very much like the one of pre-war days, these mergers are causing something of a storm.

At the centre of this storm are the Zaibatsus, the great industrial and financial groups, which dominated the Japanese economy before and during the Second World War, and which were broken up by the occupation forces after the Japanese surrender.

Zaibatsus (literally "financial combines of money cliques") were in most cases founded by single families. They spread their influence through almost every branch of industry.

Together Again

Despite the attempts of the Allies to break their power and influence, the Zaibatsus have proved themselves no Humpty Dumpty. Through mergers and takeovers they have succeeded in putting themselves together again.

Their reappearance is strongly supported by the Japanese government, which believes that only through bigger industrial units can Japan maintain and increase its international economic influence.

The resurrection of the Zaibatsus has not been an overnight affair. They began rebuilding from the day the Occupation ended. But in the past three months there has been a notable increase in their activity as they have taken advantage of the merger mood now current in Japan.

11 Mergers

Already this year there have been 11 major mergers proposed or accomplished. And in 10 of these Zaibatsus and other great industrial groups have been involved. Three have been simple reconstructions of old groups dismantled by the Occupation. The others have been the extension or consolidation of Zaibatsus, interests in chemicals, ship-building, heavy machinery, automobiles, electronics and processed foods.

With this latest spate of activity, almost all of the great pre-war industrial powers have returned. The attempt to break these big groups was one of the least successful policies of the Occupation authorities.

Split Up

The holding companies were split up, in some instances completely dissolved; their founder families were forced into the background, and top Zaibatsu management was exiled from the business world. Anti-monopoly laws were passed to preserve competition.

When the Occupation ended, however, the monopoly laws were watered down. The old men returned to the executive suites. In 1963 came the first big post-war merger boom. The Zaibatsus were at the centre of it, and many of the familiar pre-war concentrations emerged again.

A notable example was Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, which once again became a single entity by merging the three splinter companies into which it had been broken.

Trend-Setter

The 1968 merger cycle, however, seems certain to overshadow the 1963 reunions. Today's trend-setter is the reunion of the Yawata and Fuji iron and steel interests. The sheer bulk of this new group when it completes its merger plans will cast a shadow over the very heights of Japanese industry. It will become the second biggest steel company in the world — after U.S. Steel; bigger even than the entire British steel industry, which was recently turned into a single unit by nationalization.

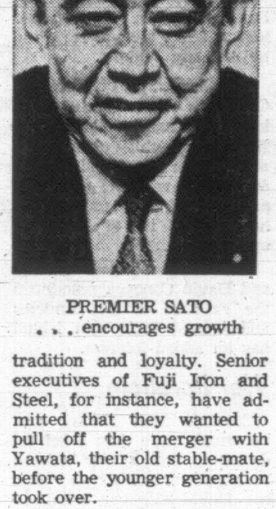
Significantly, Yawata and Fuji are the by-products of the Allied dissolution of the Japan Iron and Steel Co. which dominated the Japanese steel industry at the end of the war. The new group will be virtually sailing under its old flag; the name of the merged company will be New Japan Iron and Steel.

Other combines which have regrouped in recent weeks are the Oji paper concern, which was split into four, and elements of the Kawasaki heavy industries group.

There are two major factors behind the regrouping of the Zaibatsus. The first is economic pressures, both at home and abroad. Bigger industrial units are being thrown up by mergers and takeovers in Britain, France, Germany and the United States.

Besides this international trend, domestic economic conditions in Japan give big advantages to the industrial giants. Credit and capital are both much easier to obtain under the present condition of credit restraint.

If the economic conditions have created the storm, then certainly the Zaibatsus are happy to run before the wind. The key to this is company tradition and loyalty. Senior executives of Fuji Iron and Steel, for instance, have admitted that they wanted to pull off the merger with Yawata, their old stable-mate, before the younger generation took over.



PREMIER SATO
. . . encourages growth

"The young do not have our feeling for corporate trading," one top executive explained. This feeling is common to the chiefs of the houses of Mitsui, Mitsubishi and Sumitomo, who are all embarking on group consolidation.

Nevertheless, the Zaibatsus have not been unchanged by their experiences. The once-dominant families, who ruled their empires with an iron hand, have lost their influence. Today, a management meritocracy controls the combines.

The companies within each group are no longer run along rigid, highly-centralized lines. There is room for initiative among individual companies and individual executives. On occasion, two members of the one group may be fierce business rivals — though there are attempts under way to iron a great deal of this out.

Possibly most important, the walls surrounding the Zaibatsus are crumbling. The Mitsubishi combine recently has shown increasing interest in linking some of its interests with outside companies in defiance of the old "pure blood" tradition. There have been several instances where Mitsubishi and Mitsui, the two arch-rivals of the Japanese business scene, have cooperated in overseas investment and industry rationalisation at home.

For the Future

Perhaps this is a pointer to the future. There is speculation that in 15 to 20 years' time some of the great Zaibatsu houses may merge. This would be felt throughout the world of international trade. A union of Mitsui and Mitsubishi, for instance, would produce an international group of formidable power and size.

The trend has its critics. The opposition Socialist party believes that as business grows bigger, its influence in politics, already large, will get out of hand. The unions fear an attempt to crush them. And they have demanded a say in whether the authorities approve prospective mergers.

Some sociologists have suggested that the apparent alienation of many college students from society may be a product of their feelings of impotence in face of the huge concentration of financial and industrial power.

Irreversible

But the movement seems irreversible. The Japanese strongly subscribe to the theory that much of world trade will be dominated eventually by huge international corporations. They intend to have members of this super-league. This means that industrial groups in Japan must get bigger and bigger. And that means that the Zaibatsus, which are already in the forefront of Japanese industry, must also continue to grow.

We Want Them to Know, But We Fail to Teach

By ART STOTT

Stott

The youngsters at the foot of the lot were having a ball. With the seemingly inexhaustible energy of small boys they were heaving back into the water the pile of planks I had salvaged over a period of time. The planks splashed magnificently and when the supply ran low, one of the boys moved into the woodyard for more flotsam to jet.

I walked quiety down to the trio and in a voice of heavy authority issued my order. "Okay, fellahs. You've thrown them in, now haul them out."

They looked dismayed at the injunction. "They're too heavy," they said.

"They weren't too heavy to heave in. They shouldn't be too heavy to haul out," I told them.

In disorganized effort, they struggled with the planks on the shelving shore rock. One trapped his hand between the rock and a plank and fought back tears. The timbers did look heavy for such small boys and the thought passed through my mind that the wood really wasn't worth reclaiming. Still, they had violated beachcombers' ethics and it seemed necessary to me to impress that point on them the hard way, so I let them struggle.

They bent to their labors with the inefficiency of their tender years, but they spoke politely and they appeared to recognize their mistake.

I stood by, unhelpfully, making a fair job of a Simon Legree role that was a bit difficult because they were attractive youngsters. Still playing it heavy, I prepared to lecture them:

"Now listen to this, boys," I said. "This is a swell place for you, on the beach. You can have a wonderful time. But you have to follow certain rules. You've got to respect other people's property. Do you understand what I mean."

They said, "Yes sir."

I continued. "You can't go around heaving stuff in from other people's lots. You shouldn't even disturb piles of wood or planks hauled out on the beach. That's the way we go about it. Are you new here?"

"Yes sir," they chorused.

So I asked them where they came from and how long they'd lived in my district. They told me they had come from Labrador and had been here three days.

It seemed to me that I hadn't exactly given them the red carpet welcome. Yet to some of us it is important to put the very young straight on what is, to us, a worthwhile beach tradition and respect for the property of others. In recent years I've seen boys who should have known better push somebody else's boat into the water, paddle it around for their own enjoyment and then step out, leaving the boat to drift away or bounce until it was holed on the rocks. My blood pressure rises when such incidents come to my notice and if a short, sharp lecture on waterfront ethics can nip in the bud an inclination to ignore the rights of others, I'm prepared to deliver the lecture — even to nice kids.

A man who has watched beach tradition decay over the years wonders if he accomplishes anything by laying down the law as he sees it. Does it help the youngsters to achieve a highly-localized sense of citizenship? Or does it just make the man an old grouch, a fitting target for the resentment of the young?

The youngsters heaving my planks back into the salt chuck were inspired by no malevolence, no apparent will to flout tradition or the conventions of the waterfront. They were responding only to a small boy's impulse to make a splash with anything that came easily to hand.

We old barnacles firmly attached to the rocks of our seashore should keep that in mind when youngsters outrage us with thoughtless acts stemming from their lack of understanding of local rules. We're ready enough to pounce on the kids and berate them, a course of action which takes time and frays temper. We seem less inclined to spend the same time and energy pointing out to them what they can do that is thoroughly exceptable and which was, to us at their age, highly enjoyable. It's possible that the kids might even appreciate an effort in that direction by us.

After months of wrangling, the United Nations finally broke the logjam this week on a treaty to control the spread of nuclear arms.

The big powers — Britain, the U.S. and the Soviet Union — have been in agreement for some time on the pact and objections came mainly from the middle powers, which suspected the triumvirate of attempting to impose their nuclear monopoly on the world.

They were brought around by prolonged negotiations in which Canada played a leading role as spokesman for the Big Three.

The final vote in the General Assembly was 95 to 4 with 21 countries abstaining.

Voting against the resolution were Cuba, Albania, Tanzania and Zambia, which generally follow the lead of China.

The Chinese bitterly denounced the treaty as a plot concocted by "U.S. imperialism and Soviet revisionism."

Their aim in offering nuclear protection to other countries was a form of blackmail "to turn those countries into their protectorates, to gain greater control," a Chinese government statement said.

Most prominent among the abstainers was France, the world's fifth nuclear power.

The French said the treaty did not go far enough toward a real reduction in nuclear arms, but said they would adhere to its provisions and not give N-weapons to other nations.

Before the draft treaty comes into effect it must be approved by the parliaments of 43 countries. The going may be rough in some of them and the sponsors moved quickly to win support for ratification.

In a second action during the week which eases up the cold war, President Johnson signed a bilateral consular treaty with the Soviet Union, the first between the two nations since the Russian revolution of 1917.

The treaty provides for reopening of consulates in the two countries to aid commerce and assist travel of civilians.

It also extends diplomatic immunity to each nation's consular representatives.

This spirit of goodwill was not so evident, however, in the divided city of Berlin, a thorn in relations between east and west since the end of the Second World War.

With the blessing of the Russians, the East German government imposed new restrictions on travel to West Berlin, which is 110 miles inside Communist territory.

Alarmed West German officials described the move as the most serious since the Berlin wall was erected in 1961 and the biggest threat to the city's economy since the 11-month blockade in 1948-49.

An estimated 12 million Canadians watched or heard the first national debate between the party leaders. Most were disappointed. Meanwhile nominatons closed for the June 25 election with a total of 967 candidates in the running. The Liberals, Tories and NDP each put up 263 for the 264 seats at stake.

Extradition moves were started in Britain to return James Earl Ray to the U.S. to stand trial for the murder of Martin Luther King Jr.

Teasing Exposure Of Lovers

KING, QUEEN, KNAVE, by Vladimir Nabokov. McGraw-Hill; $7.50; 274 pp.

Reviewed by Donna Smyth

Since the astounding commercial success of his English novels published in America, Nabokov has been resurrecting, or rather preserving, his earlier Russian movies by translating them alone or in collaboration with his son, Dmitri.

King, Queen, Knave is a translation of his second Russian novel with several minor revisions which Nabokov explains in the Foreword.

First published in 1928, the novel is set in Berlin where the author lived for several years with other Russian expatriates who gazed towards their distant border with dreamy, nostalgic eyes.

The main characters are a wealthy German businessman, Kurt Dreyer; his passionately cold blooded wife, Martha; and their attractive but naive nephew, Franz. Franz becomes the awkward lover of hungry, middle-aged Martha, while Dreyer remains unsuspecting, imperturbable, and disgustingly healthy.

Triangle

The main plot centres around Martha's plans to remove her husband from the scene while retaining his money. Thus, the classical triangular relationship between, king, queen, and knave is set up but from this point on, Nabokov begins to have fun.

His penchant for teasing the reader is much in evidence as the lovers narrowly escape one exposure after the other. With an unashamed wink at probability, the author contrives coincidences and mishaps which are both suspenseful and hilarious.

As Nabokov says, "Of all my novels, this bright brute is the gayest."

The gaiety, however, is Nabokov's own particular dark variety, streaked with madness, flecked with brilliant detail like the butterflies that keep flitting in and out of his novels.

There is the murder plot, for instance, motivated by brittle greed and moist lust, but doomed to the propitious bumblings of a Charlie Chaplin skit.

Real World

There is also a lovable dog named Tom whose wagging tail and bright eyes represent the real world which always threatens to bound in upon the lovers and destroy, with a bark, their dream-like relationship.

In addition, there is a mysterious Inventor whose success in creating life-like dummies seems to parallel Franz's psychological deterioration into a walking robot controlled by Martha who reverses the fairy-tale metamorphosis by changing from a beautiful lady into a toad.

Ironic fate in the veiled hand of the author deals the last cards with satisfying certainty at a sea-side resort, a favorite Nabokov locale.

Even as a young man, Nabokov's writing techniques tend to follow the old vaudeville motto, "Dazzle them with your footwork." He is an artist who delights in the play of the creative imagination for its own sake.

Although the language of King, Queen, Knave lacks the verbal fireworks of Lolita or Pale Fire, there are enough compensations in the novel to make it a welcome addition to the growing canon of Nabokov's works.

CORMORANTS nesting in dead trees along the shore of Wallace Island was one of the first sights to greet David and Jeanne Conover when they purchased their "dream island" in the midst of the Princess (Gulf Islands. See review of book Once Upon an Island beloaw.

They Bought Own Island And Left Smog Far Behind

Once Upon an Island by David Conover. Ambassador Books, $6.50. 242 pp. reviewed by Anthony Jenkins.

The hardships of Robinson Crusoe strike a chord of longing in nearly every man. There is something about being alone on an island and fending for oneself with the materials and the natural produce at hand that is of enduring appeal.

The story of how Jeanne and David Conover renounced the rat-race of Los Angeles and bought their own island has an added interest.

Her Boredom

Crusoe's Man Friday was not much more than a helpful door-mat and hardly existed as a person in his own right; but David Conover had to consider his wife's feelings, her loneliness and boredom, along with his own difficulties.

The interest of this book is not so much what the Conover's did to their island — though that in itself is fascinating — but what the island did to them.

Their story which began in 1946 is a distinctly committed version of the present-day drop-out mania.

Pay Mortgages

Deciding that the commercial grind in smoggy Los Angeles was not for them, the young couple packed what they could into their rickety car, sold their home and trekked north to fulfill David's boyhood dreams of owning Wallace Island just off Salt Spring Island.

They knew nothing about plumbing, carpentry, gardening or boating, yet armed with boxes of "how-to-books, they set about learning in order to build their own home and start the summer resort that would make them self-supporting and pay off the mortgage on their island.

What happened was a series of back-breaking trials and errors which began as soon as David determined to sail Bertha, their old life-boat, from Victoria into the Trincomali Passage. The sea which had seemed placid from the decks of a ferry became a danger to be reckoned with and (after near disaster) conquered.

The most memorable part of the book is the story of their first winter on the island when the rains went on and on. Their home-made pipes froze, storms tore their boat loose and destroyed their wharf, and food and money ran out. The challenge of winter drew David in upon himself as he battled to solve each new problem, and Jeanne felt excluded, stuck in their leaky one-roomed shack with little to do except stare at the endless mist and rain.

Theirs is the story of a partnership that matured and strengthened under ordeal.

Against all the odds, and despite the predictions of the local jeremiahs in the Ganges stores, they came out of that first winter renewed and alive.

Silent Island

The silence of the island which at first seemed so oppressive was filled with the sounds of seals and birds, and the forest was busy with activity which had once been hidden to their city-bred sensibilities.

This is an entertaining account, written in a light, easy style with only an occasional precious turn of phrase.

YOUTH BELIEVES OWN PRESS NOTICES

Egged Into Self-Destruction

THE GAP by Richard Lorber and Ernest Fladell; McGraw-Hill, 1968; $7.50.

Reviewed by GRANT McORMOND

The "gap" that is the subject of this timely study is the gap between the generations.

One of the authors, Ernest Fladell, is a successful advertising executive, 42 years of age; the other, Richard Lorber, is his nephew. He is 20 years old and currently working for his doctorate in Fine Arts at Columbia University.

The Gap is their record of a summer spent together in New York, consciously attempting to communicate, to bridge the gap between the long-haired pot-smoking, protesting youth, and the balding, responsible and affluent older generation.

Before a member of the older generation attempts to read the book, however, he must free his mind of certain premises.

For instance, one must abandon the idea that there are any such things as religious belief, morality, responsibility to one's fellow men, or family ties and affection.

Above all else, the reader must discard the belief, incomprehensible to modern youth, that discipline is necessary, let alone desirable.

But if a reader is able to free his mind and accept these new premises, it is uncertain that he will gain any new ones from The Gap.

SMOKES POT

Certainly as one reads of the attempts of Ernest Fladell to get turned on and tuned in by smoking pot, one becomes increasingly aware that the older generation is trying much harder to bridge the gap than the younger generation who refuse even to meet them half way on the bridge. In fact, if the words of Richard Lorber are to be believed, the attempt of his uncle to share his experiences and to communicate them deprived the younger man of much of the enjoyment he received from them.

When it came the turn of young Lorber to share the experiences of his uncle in the complicated world of business, it again becomes obvious to the reader that at best the young man is willing to make only a half-hearted attempt.

He is willing to share the business luncheons and ogle the long-legged models used for advertising copy, but the dull drudgery of office routine he finds unbearable.

Still, the dialogue founded on the shared experiences of two generations continues. The topics discussed here are the Vietnam War, taking marijuana and LSD, the unconventional dress of the younger generation, sexual freedom and the evils of our materialistic and capitalistic society.

Readers expecting anything new, different or profound on any of these subjects will be disappointed. But from the discussion there may emerge a new understanding of the character of modern youth, or at least of that segment of modern youth that prides itself on its intellectuality and difference.

Perhaps the most striking thing revealed by Richard Lorber in his role as spokesman for modern youth in The Gap emerges as much from the style as from the subject matter; that is, the supreme egocentricity of the generation represented.

One need only tabulate the number of times the personal pronoun "I" and the possessives "my" and "mine" are used in any paragraph to discover this one outstanding characteristic.

It is almost as if a whole generation fails to recognize, let alone respect the existence of anyone else in the world unless that individual signals his existence by the superficial gimmick of donning strange apparel.

This egocentricity fans out in all directions.

Because youth values itself so highly, all other values shrink to insignificance.

The Vietnam War is evil, not in terms of its Asian victims, but rather in terms of the way it impinges on the personalities of those who may be drafted.

Fear, then, is another characteristic of youth as revealed in The Gap: fear of pain, fear of discipline, fear of new experiences, fear of responsibility.

Combined with this fear is a rather dishonest overemphasis on the enjoyment of sensual experience. Sexual freedom and the taking of drugs are both means to this end, and both, in a rather hypocritical way, are justified or rationalized as devices for expanding the range of emotional and intellectual awareness.

In a sense, the traditional roles of youth and maturity have been reversed. It is youth that exhibits the rigid, inflexible mental attitudes, unwilling to accept or even to attempt to see opposing positions.

The older generation, on the other hand, has conscientiously attempted to tune in on the message that youth professes to be attempting to communicate.

GOOD COPY

Many readers will find themselves puzzled by the ideas expressed by Richard Lorber in The Gap; many more will find themselves annoyed; a few may find their understanding increased. Almost all, however, will concur with Ernest Fladell when he writes: "I hope that by the time my own son reaches Richie's age the kids will have stopped believing their own publicity.

"Right now and for a long time they have been good copy.

"They have been made shills for the movie industry, the fashion industry, and of course the ad business.

"Their creativity has been raped.

"Their rebellion has been bastardized.

"They have been egged into self-destructive overstatement."

CHURCHILL STORY WILL GO AHEAD

The sudden death of Randolph Churchill, last week, occasioned some speculation over what would happen to his massive biography of his father. The first two volumes, both of which made the best-seller lists, followed Sir Winston up to 1914. It has now been announced that volume three and the subsequent books will be completed by Randolph's son, Winston.

FISHERMEN AND THE CO-OPS

Tides of Change, by A. V. Hill. Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association. $5.25. Reviewed by Bryan N. S. Gooch.

A. V. Hill in Tides of Change deals with the history of British Columbia's fishermen's co-operatives and certain associated credit unions, covering in the main the details of ". . . groups whose active principles come fairly close to the main stream of 'Rochdale' co-operation."

He discusses the fortunes of such organizations as the North Island Trollers' Co-operative Association, the Gulf and Fraser Fishermen's Credit Union, and the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, and does so thoroughly and with considerable understanding of the economic and human problems faced by groups which are so much a part of the history of British Columbia's coast.

The material is clearly presented. The basic arrangement is chronological, with a chapter given to each of the major co-ops or credit unions considered. Financial data is included when necessary, but the book is not in any way cluttered with figures.

The author's arguments in favor of the co-op movement are well worked and convincing; indeed, his discussion of the PRFCA could not be more glowing in its praise.

Hill's style is pleasing, to say the least. He has made what might otherwise have been a somewhat dry account interesting — in fact, "absorbing" would be a fair word. This volume can be read with pleasure and profit by those persons interested in the development of this province, in its organizations and, more specifically, in its people, as well as by those involved in the fishing industry in some way. Tides of Change is a significant, human book; it is a good book.

Thietvanne Is Different; The Americans Pull Out!

THE SKY SUSPENDED by James Basset. Fitzhenry & Whiteside, $8.75.

Action at sea is the main ingredient of James Bassett's new novel, The Sky Suspended.

It has many of the qualities that older readers will associate with the adventure movies of the 1930s, portraying the strenuous activities of brawny American soliders of fortune in the Far East.

The hero of this work is Fredrick Peter Cragg, a naval officer of the Second World War who has never managed to adjust to life ashore in post-war America. His companions are a few of his wartime buddies, "the Mafia". They are recruited to aid a small country in Southeast Asia in its struggle against the communist forces encroaching upon it.

If the whole situation and locale suggest to the reader the war in Vietnam, there is certainly nothing in the novel to alter that impression. Even the geographical contours of the fictional South Thietvanne suggest those of Vietnam, and its capital, GaiSong, has all the characteristics of Saigon.

But in The Sky Suspended the Americans have withdrawn, and the Thietvanne government is forced to call in Cragg and his mercenaries in a last desperate gamble to save the country.

UP THE COAST

James Bassett wastes no time in getting his story under way, and as the voyage up the coast, deep into communist water continues, the tempo of the action increases.

The final naval engagement at Phom Than is fast paced, as is the subsequent final land action at Dokoro. The Mafia is left with only two survivors, but Cragg and his attractive French female companion escape back to GaiSong.

Almost as important as the humans in this novel of action in the South China Sea are the two vessels Cragg commands. One is a reconverted PT boat; the other is a disguised, heavily-armed junk.

It is an unlikely fleet with which to achieve such outstanding success as the destruction of 30 enemy vessels, but James Bassett knows his boats and armament, and makes the whole adventure plausible without boring his readers with tedious technical skill.

The Sky Suspended is not a great book but it is certainly easy, fast-paced reading. While there is romance and a touch of sex, the narration relies on neither of these elements for its appeal; while there is brutality and violence in the story, Bassett does not dwell upon them.

Like Bassett's earlier work, Harm's Way, the book should make a good action-filled movie.—G.G.M.

Something Of A Landmark

McLelland and Stewart have added Margaret Laurence's The Stone Angel to their paper back series, the New Canadian Library.

Originally published in 1964, the novel has become something of a landmark in Canadian literature and stands with the best work of any contemporary writer.

'KNIGHTS' MAY ANSWER INTRIGUING QUESTIONS

"Enter, fantastically dressed with wild flowers."

That's the sub-title of the performance to be presented Tuesday at McPherson Playhouse by Martin Jenkins and Harry Hill.

The quote is from Shakespeare's King Lear and it about sums up the mood of the evening when these two gifted professional actors team up for a night's work.

The title of the two man show — Great Knights of the Theatre — can be interpreted as the theme, the subtitle as its general treatment, although the touching the dramatic aspects of the lives of some of Britain's greatest actors are not overlooked.

Within a drawingroom set the two players perform at three different levels. They appear as themselves, as impersonations of other past and present actors, and actually as actors creating about 10 different roles out of King Lear.

"It is a challenge, for we tackle three or four different kinds of acting — for instance in impersonating the past great actors like Irving and Garrick, Wolfit who was at the peak of his career in the thiries and then Olivier and Paul Scofield," Mr. Jenkins tells you.

REPEAT SUCCESS

The former assistant director of the Royal Shakespeare Company and founder of Britain's Everyman Theatre, Mr. Jenkins has returned to the University of Victoria this summer to repeat his successful work of last year in directing the summer theatre workshop.

Harry Hill will have just completed his appearances as Cocky in the musical, Roar of the Greasepoint which followed on the heels of The Odd Couple in which he played Felix.

Great Knights, which Mr. Jenkins originated and which he has performed in principal cities in Britain and the United States, will answer several intriguing questions for its audience Tuesday night.

For example: How does a great actor tackle the madness he must portray as Lear?

Was Olivier successful as Lear?

What is a famous actor's reaction to a first-night failure?

What was the substance of the rivalry between George Bernard Shaw and Sir Henry Irving over Ellen Terry?

Who has been the greatest Lear of the English stage — Wolfit, Gielgud or Scofield?

Proceeds of the Tuesday performance of Great Knights will provide bursaries for secondary school students attending the Uvic's Summer Theatre Workshop.

Uvic Planning Seven Concerts

A total of seven public concerts will be given between July 3 and 13, constituting the second festival of chamber music presented by University of Victoria's School of Fine Arts.

The festival is the evening section of a summer workshop in chamber music which was inaugurated with conspicuous success last summer.

The concerts will be given in the lecture theatre of the MacLaurin Building, formerly known as the arts-education building.

This year's distinguished guest artist will be pianist Lamar Crowson of London, England and Cape Town, South Africa.

On July 5 he will give a lecture-recital, The Piano in Our Time, playing works by Fricker, Van Wyk and Messiaen. A second recital of works of his own choice will be given on July 10 and he will also participate in recitals with other faculty members, playing sonatas and chamber works.

Other faculty performers will be Robin Wood, director of the workshop, violinists Jack Kessler and Raymond Ovens, violist Mary Ingham of Australia; James Hunter, cello, Conrad Crocker, flute, Glenn Danielson, oboe, Ronald Phillips, clarinet, Morgan Griffin, bassoon, and Christopher Leuba, horn.

Works to be played at the various concerts will be by Brahms, Mozart, Beethoven, Telemann, Schubert, d'Indy, Vivaldi, Poulenc, Hindemith, Milhaud, Faure and others.

CHAMBER WORKS

The final concert will present students of the workshop in a series of chamber works.

Program details and tickets are available from the School of Fine Arts, telephone 477-6911, local 488, or the Student Union Building on campus.

The series subscription rate is $7 for seven concerts (students $3.50). Individual concert tickets are available at a slightly higher admission.

Bonnie and Clyde Not Very Welcome

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Memo to Bonnie and Clyde: You are not welcome in South Africa.

Fashions inspired by the gangster film can be seen on Johannesburg's Eloff Street, but its roaring guns and racing cars will not appear in movie houses here.

South African Broadcasting Corp. has barred the film's musical theme from its airwaves.

Parliament interrupted discussion of weightier matters to confirm the decision banning the cinema hoodlum and his gun moll.

Helen Suzman, lone representative in Parliament of the tiny Progressive party, said she saw Bonnie and Cylde overseas and thought it "brilliantly acted." She said South African audiences were mature enough to view it.

HADN'T SEEN FILM.

Not so, decided Interior Minister Pieter M. K. le Roux. He said he had not seen the film himself, but was confident that its ban by the Publications Control Board was in order.

Sourth Africans are ardent moviegoers, since there is no television.

Prosperous suburbanites discreetly pass the word to close friends that Bonnie and Clyde can be seen at the private showing of a print sneaked into the country for a day or two. Other South Africans remark smugly that they visited neighboring Swaziland or Mozambique to see the film.

The banning is not unprecedented. Among other recent films rejected were Guess Who's Coming to Dinner, The Graduate and In the Heat of the Night.

James T. Kruger, a member of the ruling Nationalist party, told Parliament that In the Heat of the Night portrays a dumb white detective and a smart black detective who always made the white detective look stupid. This, Kruger said, "could only be detrimental to race relations."

Mrs. Suzman said 25 of 695 movies submitted to the film censors were rejected and 325 were approved subject to deletions.

Some films are cut so drastically they are almost unintelligible. Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? had 15 deletions.

Plan Suzuki Party

Young violin students of Miss Frona Colquhoun will give a Suzuki party in St. John's Anglican church hall, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The students are being trained in the simplified Suzuki method violin playing.

Arts Program Remains ... But on Paper

By AUDREY JOHNSON

This decade of the sixties will probably go down in the cultural history of British Columbia as one of the most frustrating and problem-beset from the point of view of modern educational needs and ideals.

Nothing has changed more drastically in Canada's first century than educational standards and objectives.

From a time when the three Rs drilled over a period of seven or eight years was considered ample for the majority needs, we have passed through a phase where three years in high school was mandatory if one expected to achieve a decent job, and where, among other enrichments, learning to make a chocolate cake, a pie, a blouse, a footstool or some bookends was part of the curriculum.

This was in the thirties, at the dawn of the great science explosion.

Pleasant Frill

The fine arts were there, lurking at the outer fringe, regarded at best as a pleasant frill, but quite unacceptable as a major factor in the curriculum.

The importance of the fine arts to the human spirit was dramatically emphasized during the Second World War, when music, plays and other stage shows and visual arts projects were proved vital in maintaining balance and sanity in people under strain of long, arduous working hours and enemy bombardment.

Encouraging

Possibly recognition of this fact brought about an encouraging development in B.C. schools in the post-war decade.

At secondary school levels at least, the arts were taken out of the category of a "frill."

They became a part of the main curriculum and were recognized as one of three major subjects with university entrance status.

For a while it looked as though B.C. had among the most imaginative, wise and well-oriented general education systems in Canada.

Until the government came up with the idea of taking a close look at how the educational dollar was being spent.

There was nothing wrong with that as a proper cautionary measure. Even educators can get out of hand unless a fatherly eye is kept on their spending.

However, unfortunately this inspection turned out to be one of those guns-or-butter deals.

Dollars Diverted

A royal commission on education was appointed in 1958 and when it was all through two years later, a big percentage of nutriment had been squeezed from the program. (There is at least a strong suspicion abroad that this was done to divert dollars to the more politically viable big guns of industry and highways.)

The report of the Chant Commission was published in 1960 and almost immediately its blight descended upon the promising educational growth of this province.

Back we went to the concept of the thirties, with arts pushed to the outer perimeter.

Arts majoring disappeared and while a visual and performing arts program remained on paper, it no longer led to anything but a dead end.

Six Programs

Thus was destroyed at a blow an advanced fine arts curriculum that had flourished for eight years and shown some splendid results, an associate professor of education at the University of British Columbia told an arts conference audience several months ago.

At senior secondary level now, there are six programs—academic-technical, commercial, industrial, community services, visual and performing arts, and agriculture.

It has already been pointed out in a previous article in this series, how the system works.

Grade 11 and 12 students take a total of seven courses, five of which must come from the main stream academic-technical if they are to continue on to university.

One or two free electives are thus provided for in theory—electives that may be chosen from any program and which provide the university-bound student with his only prospect of in-school education in any of the arts.

But in reality the electives are less free than one would suppose from a perusal of the administrative bulletin for secondary schools, 1967, published by the department of education's division of curriculum.

Bright teen-agers are fully aware of the desirability of university education. And it is well recognized by teachers that the most artistically talented are almost always among the best scholars.

Weaknesses

But even good scholars have weaknesses—perhaps math, possibly a science or language.

So in by far the majority of cases of musically or otherwise talented youngsters, a weak subject that needs bolstering with an extra course to ensure university standing takes precedence over a fine arts elective.

Now the student with his special interest and ability in music, theatre or visual arts enters university and has his sights set very likely on a B.Ed. degree.

He would like to use his artistic skill in his future teaching career and the University of Victoria, UBC, Simon Fraser all offer tempting opportunities in the fine arts.

But unless he has been fortunate in what has been available to him in out-of-school time, he is so ill-prepared for the university level study in the field that, with all the other pressures that occur at this stage, he will be unable to make the most of what is available finally in arts education.

And so the implementation of the Chant Report perpetuates its blight by severely limiting the number of fully grounded and qualified fine arts specialists emerging each year into teaching ranks of the province.

Try to Cope

Educators striving valiantly to cope with the expanding needs of today's youth deplore the "acute shortage of qualified teachers"—the "emphasis on end product rather than educative process" (there is a clear distinction between vocational training and education of the whole person).

One gifted elementary school teacher exclaims that

No, we're not pulling your leg. We're merely doing simple arithmetics. Like this:

First Volvo. Drive it for six years. That gives you three years to pay for it, three years to make payments to yourself after you've paid for it.

Second Volvo. Take the payments you've made to yourself and pay cash for the second Volvo. Drive it six years and continue making payments to yourself that time. (At, say, $80 a month for six years, you'll end up with a nice round $6,000.)

Third Volvo. Take some of that $6,000 and pay cash for your third Volvo, too. (You'll still have about $3,000 left.) Continue making payments to yourself for six more years. You now have nearly $9,000. Enough for college, and your fourth Volvo. And you can take it from here.

Will it actually work? It will if you want it to. Will Volvos actually hold up for six years? In Sweden Volvos hold up an average of 11 years. In Sweden there are no speed limits on the highways; there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

See a nearby Volvo dealer. He can have a Volvo Canadian in your garage tomorrow. It's the only genuine do-it-yourself money-making machine we know of that the government doesn't frown upon.

Sitar Adds Exotic Touch for Pleasure

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Sitar Music of India; Kartick Kumar; DGG 136551.

Sitar music is never likely to be the mainstay of a Western discophile's collection, but it certainly holds interest for those who seek something different in their musical experience, who delight in unusual instrumental sounds, who wallow in atmosphere and who like to provide impressively apt background music for exotic dinner parties.

Because most of us cannot spare the time to learn to understand oriental music we tend to seek, almost unconsciously, for similarities to our own culture on which we may base an untutored opinion.

There is so much on this record which is linked to our familiar modes that it almost sounds as though the music must have been popularized or westernized.

The sitar, pictured on the front of the jacket and clearly described on the back, is not quite like any of our instruments but it has a kinship with guitars and often sounds like a high-pitched electric Hawaiian model, played differently to our custom.

WESTERN EARS

Most of the melodic line of the raga is familiar enough to be easily recognized and though the rhythms are more intricate and complex, the rhythmic patterns are comprehensible to Western ears.

The sudden emphasis changes are remarkably like those found in Elizabethan music and the cross-rhythms between instruments similar to those found in jazz.

The sliding technique (found in a less-pronounced form in cowboy and Hawaiian music) is at first queasily upsetting to our tonal-trained ears but when the skill of the performer is as high as that of Kartick Kumar so that the resultant note is true and the intonation accurate, the device can sound remarkably like a trill or ornamental technique in our music.

Though we undoubtedly miss much of the minutiae in which Indian performers delight, we can enjoy the atmosphere of the various contrasted sections.

CROSS RHYTHM

As excitement and acceleration increase another player joins in. The dry finger-beating of the tabla adds a cross-rhythm similar to that provided by the drummer in a jazz combo, and, like the jazz drummer, this instrumentalist is given occasional solo passages.

The open-stringed, lute-like tamboura picks up and adds to the harmonics of the sitar and provides a constant background.

Of all the various sounds produced, my favorite is that in which the background sounds as though it is made by the wet "glugging" of a washing machine agitator cup going up and down.

The record is very clearly engineered so that the more you listen to it, the more you hear.

The music is closely related to Indian philosophy of man and his world but because we are not aware of the significance of conventional interpretations we may make of it what we will.

It is strange, it is different, but gives great scope for imaginative interpretation and could provide a wonderful back-drop to creative dances.

Shaw Student Choreographs Rosalinda

That extraordinary combination of beautiful music and low farce comedy—Johann Strauss' Die Fledermaus—leaped into contemporary limelight in the 1920s when Max Reinhardt and Erich Korngold blended their theatric-musical genius to revive the 50-year-old operetta in Berlin.

Idea behind the production was to arrange the music so that principal comedy roles could be performed by first class comedy actors, while the major singing roles would be undertaken by leading singers with a talent for comedy.

The Reinhardt-Korngold version was a sensation in Berlin and in 1942, when it was presented on Broadway under the title, Rosalinda, it became New York's outstanding hit and ran for nearly two years.

LIGHT OPERA

In 1947 it was performed by the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera with Korngold conducting and again chalked up a major success.

It was repeated there in 1956 with Cyril Ritchard as Eisenstein and Jean Fenn in the title role—"the best Rosalinda ever" according to Korngold.

Starting on July 15, the Reinhardt-Korngold version will take the stage at Queen Elizabeth Theatre as part of the 1968 Vancouver Festival.

Moreover, Cyril Ritchard and Jean Fenn are to star again with Murray Matheson playing Prince Orlofsky, Daniele Barioni of La Scala playing Alfredo and Canada's international ballerina, Lois Smith and Ross Laidley also in the cast.

Choreography is being designed by former Victorian Walter Burgess. Mr. Burgess who has danced in, choreographed and directed many major shows in the United States and Eastern Canada, began his career here as a student of Wynne Shaw.

The festival production runs through to July 23, after which it goes on tour to Montreal, opening there July 30 and running to Aug. 4 at the Salle Wilfrid Pelletier.

Neurotic Idea Wins

HALIFAX (CP)—The idea that the world is made up of neurotics in a suppressing society has won $1,000 for Richard Minichiello of St. Mary's University here.

The idea was the basis for a six-scene play, Vertigo of Freedom, that won the award from the Canada Council for the best original Canadian play entered in the Atlantic zone of the Dominion Drama Festival this year.

Minichiello, a native of Boston, says, "I started the play off with the basic idea that we're all neurotics and developed it into a struggle between the freedom within an individual and the suppressing standards of society that won't allow this freedom to be exercised."

Your Own Thing Wins Praise

TORONTO (CP) — If you're a crow, only a few blocks separate Wall Street from Greenwich Village. If you're a writer, it's more like an ocean.

For a show to bridge the generation gap and draw audiences from both groups is unusual. For a show to get good reviews from Wall Street Journal and the East Village Other—a hippie newspaper—is remarkable.

Your Own Thing, which opened in Toronto's Playhouse Theatre June 13 for a five-week engagement, is such a show.

Your Own Thing was suggested by the plot of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night—the trouble a set of twins—one male, one female—can cause. Creator Hal Hester stresses the "suggested." "After all, I couldn't copy," he said in an interview. "If I did, I wouldn't be doing my own thing."

Scholarship Tea Near

Sale of tickets for Bastion Theatre's Actors' Committee scholarship tea next Friday is going well.

Theme of the tea, being held at 3465 Midland Road, starting at 2 p.m., will be "The Thirties." Costumes, old programs and other souvenirs of the era will be displayed.

Plans for conversion of the original fourth floor courtroom in the Maritime Museum on Bastion Square, into an approximately 100-seat intimate theatre, are being carried out.

In the meantime, casting of the youth theatre season production of Arthur Miller's searing play, The Crucible, will begin this Sunday.

Another Bastion activity, the 1968-69 school tour, has already received upwards of 100 bookings.

Expo Exhibit Themes Expanded

Thirty-seven works from the permanent collection of The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts will be shown in the municipally-operated Mount Royal Art Centre from June 20 to Sept. 2, it was announced today.

It is the third exhibition created by the Museum for the city within a month.

The two previous exhibitions — Woman and Her World and Zoo-In: An Odd Man's Bestiary — are on view in the pavilion of France at Man and His World.

The new exhibition consists of works by contemporary Canadian artists. They are:

The exhibition consists of drawings, paintings, watercolors, collages and graphics.

All three exhibitions were created by the Museum at the request of Mayor Jean Drapeau.

At Man and His World, the two themes developed were areas which had been only partially covered in Expo 67 and in the new continuing exhibition.

Woman and Her World deals with such themes as Woman and Family, Woman and Religion, Woman at Work, Woman in the World and Woman as Allegory.

Zoo-In covers the role of the animal in the world.

general music education at that level is "hit or miss."

And yet, of course, it is exactly at that level where the roots should be first set and properly nurtured.

Discussing the Chant Report with a senior department of education official, with respect to its elimination of fine arts as a major leading to university entrance, he commented that it was "up to the universities to establish their own requirements."

Theoretically so, perhaps, but how factual is that statement.

There seems to be some disparity between it and the fact that university educators are among the most perturbed over the situation.

Next article in the series will take a look at the university angle and, in summation, at what educators are doing and proposing to combat the blight.

Johnny Belinda Comes Home

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Johnny Belinda is coming home to Prince Edward Island this summer.

The much-travelled story of deaf-mute Belinda MacDonald—the Johnny in the title refers to her son—will get a world premiere at the Charlottetown Festival this summer as the first musical adaptation of the hit play. The production will open the festival July 1 and run all summer in repertory with two other major musicals.

The staging of Johnny Belinda as a musical is perhaps the must unusual venture yet undertaken in the festival's four-year history of presenting original Canadian stage works.

The story has a lead character who is a deaf-mute and speaks only one word, the name of her son, in the final scene of the play.

Despite this, the festival's artistic board has high hopes that Belinda will take her place beside Anne of Green Gables as an authentic Prince Edward Island heroine. The musical version of Anne has been a hit for three seasons in Charlottetown, scored great success on a national tour last year and returns for a fourth season at the festival this summer.

Anne of Green Gables was never troubled by having her home transplanted but Belinda found herself living in Cape Breton when a movie version of the story was produced.

James Stewart Honored

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Maj.-Gen. James Stewart, 60, recently ended a 27-year military career with a rare distinction: the U.S. Air Force's Distinguished Service Medal.

It was only the second time that the honor had been bestowed on a reserve air force officer.

From Lulu With Love

By AL FORREST

In the movie To Sir With Love, the British singer Lulu played a cheeky schoolgirl with a keen sense of humor.

Is she really like that?

"Am I cheeky?" she said in Vancouver this week. "Oh, yes, very cheeky. Even more than I was in the movie.

"I always have been. But I think I'm beginning to mature a little bit now."

SIDNEY
. . . 'warm, stately'

Lulu is 19.

She was born in Scotland and was christened Marie McDonald MacLaughlan Lawrie.

She shortened it all to Lulu at age 14 when she was signed to make a recording.

"Someone remarked that I was a lulu of a singer and the name stuck.

"I quit school and moved to London at age 15 and was doing quite well and then this movie came along.

"I played a Cockney schoolgirl. Now I've got the Cockney accent and can't lose it. My parents back home in Glasgow are about to disown me. They say I've gone over to the other side."

Lulu will be doing her second movie this fall, a musical story based loosely on her own life.

She also appears in a regular British TV series called Lulu's Back In Town.

This week in Vancouver, where she is appearing at Isy's night club, she waved a telegram which said her TV show has shot up to number one in the British ratings.

"I don't think I've made my first million yet," she said, "but I'm working on it. Acutally I don't know anything about money. I just enjoy spending it."

She had high praise for Sidney Poitier, who played the teacher in To Sir With Love.

"We were supposed to look up to him, you know? And it was easy because we did. He's a very warm person but you couldn't really get close to him because he's so stately and dignified.

'We did the movie very quickly. They seldom re-shot anything. They wanted it to look natural.

"In some scenes we weren't even aware that the cameras were rolling."

Where next for Lulu?

"I really haven't any idea. Things are happening so fast I haven't had time to plan anything at all."

●

The most entertaining TV performer this month is Creditiste leader Real Caouette who Thursday night waved a piece of paper which he said proved that Ottawa had loaned $1,250,000 interest-free to Ceylon . . . "wherever that is."

This brought to mind the famous TV election speech made in 1965 by Mr. Caouette, who talks English through a heavy French accent:

"De Liberal and Conservative are behind de big money boys. But we in Social Credit are behind de udders.

"Yes, and de udders are behind us."

Mr. Caouette never could prove this, however.

●

It is almost exactly 20 years ago to the day that Ed Sullivan launched his Toast of the Town television program.

On that Sunday night in June, 1948, he gathered together a crew of 35 persons, including 14 musicians, and with a budget of $1,350 he presented a night of variety featuring a new comic team Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

Martin and Lewis got $200 that night, part of it out of Sullivan's own paycheque. Sullivan went out of pocket often that first year when the budget woudn't go far enough to pay the guests.

SUSAN
. . . with a song

It's different today.

Sullivan pulls down a cool million dollars per year, guests receive at least $5,000 per appearance if they are known at all, and sponsors shell out a total of $372,000 for the hour.

It's not like the good old days.

●

TV TOPICS — It's the slack season for series shows but movies on TV this week are better than ever . . . Humphrey Bogart stars in The Treasure of Sierra Madre tonight at 11:15 p.m. on Channel 4 . . . earlier tonight at 9 p.m. Susan Hayward stars in the musical With A Song In My Heart . . . also watch for Peter Sellers in The Pink Panther on Tuesday, Bob Hope in Call Me Bwana on Thursday and Sophia Loren in Desire Under the Elms on Friday.

●

And finally, to end the news, here's the behind-the-scenes strategy guiding the political parties in this federal election campaign.

Liberals: "Promise them nothing but give them Pierre."

Conservatives: "Be patient and hope that Trudeau kisses it away."

New Democrats: "Run as hard as you can and try to stay where you are."

Social Credit: "Pretend the election isn't happening."

Creditistes: "We have nothing to lose but our seats."

When Will People Support a Gallery?

By TED LINDBERG

There is a group show at Pandora's Box Gallery (marshalled in short order after a scheduled show was cancelled recently) which demonstrates the organizing ability of director Benta Rehm and the resourcefulness of 10 local artists to produce heretofore unexhibited works.

Lindberg

It is a diverse and uneven collection of things mostly small in scale and subtle in effect, but nonetheless worth looking in on.

There are many little treasures here, offered at astonishingly low prices, considering the high reputation of most of the participants, this perhaps being explained by the regard these people hold for one of the city's few bona fide art galleries.

●

A prudent art critic, if he knows what is good for him, maintains a professional reserve that always stops him short of writing anything that might constitute collusion with, or endorsement of, artists, galleries or art administrators.

That's very logical and self-evident.

Of course this would be more pertinent in a sophisticated metropolitan community where an appreciable portion of the population actually values art and is willing to invest in it from time to time. That is, where there exists a considerable transaction of business.

On the other hand, it appears that in Greater Victoria (which wouldn't and couldn't literally support its handful of genuine artists, if they were the Original Dutch Masters), I see no threat to compromising myself or disrupting the economic fortunes of the art community, if I make some unprofessional and disquieting remarks.

●

First of all, I shan't waste our time discussing the plight of the artist on Vancouver Island.

At this moment I am only concerned with the Pandora's Box, which having survived several narrow escapes, finds itself once again on exceedingly short shrift.

Or to put it more succinctly, it might go under.

I am confident this is not a matter of mismanagement, and I happen to know Mrs. Rehm has subsisted on a budget so marginal that it is a wonder the gallery hasn't folded long ago.

This I find shocking and deplorable, because the private gallery provides a very valuable function for the community in which it resides.

It provides a window through which we may view the panorama of ART NOW, long before much of it has been evaluated, approved or rejected, masticated, digested and certified by the official art establishment, a process which normally takes several years.

It is the only continuing public forum for the local artist.

●

Without such commercial outlets, a community can jolly well wait for the taste-makers at the National Gallery, the Vancouver Art Gallery, Life, Time and Artscanada and other redoubtable authorities to tell us what's happening.

For those who enjoy a keen interest in the visual arts, this is simply not adequate.

One would assume that Victoria is past the stage of "mail-order culture," which remote settlements must endure; and above the level of supermarkets and giftie shoppes that offer meretricious reproductions of greeting card art on simulated canvas to the innocent and ignorant Yahoos.

In Canada and the U.S. it is understood that art comes last, if at all. This society has traditionally ignored and repressed its artists, poets and novelists.

Unlike the European (or even better, the Asian, who most reveres the creative act), it has never occurred to the average North American that art has a place in his life or that he might set aside a little for the purpose of buying an original work.

If he is lucky, he has been educated to the point of buying a few phonograph records (which appeal to his age group), paperback books (mainly non-fiction), periodicals (depending upon his interests and income), inexpensive reproductions and tinted family photos.

But too often, this is the extent of his "art" investment.

He will mortgage himself to the hilt for home, automobile, boat, clothing, liquor, electronic gadgets and the most inane knick-knacks which line his walls, fill his windows and gardens; but will not spend one penny for anything as challenging and unique as an original painting or sculpture.

Art in Review

His home is barren and reflects the paucity of his imagination and understanding.

He resents the constant implication that he is uncultivated; admits he doesn't know anything about art but insists that he knows what he likes; is distrustful of objects and concepts that don't have a ready and precise definition; and doesn't understand what is happening to the younger generation (but suspects it's all because they didn't live through the Depression, as if that were the only seat of wisdom).

He exists in a visual atmosphere of mass-produced objects, televised flickerings, advertising and wall-to-wall planned obselescence which is relieved only by the beauty of nature which he ostensibly respects but complacently allows to be destroyed.

Now one little commercial art gallery, or even two, aren't noticeably going to turn Victorians into erudite patricians overnight; not even with the assistance of the Moss Street Gallery, Uvic, Canada Council and all the king's horses: that will take somewhat longer.

●

But for some time, Pandora's Box has provided you with that one slender excuse for claiming this city is involved in contemporary local art.

If you read the art reviews in this paper, you have most likely whiled away some hours there, and may even have sipped some wine and enjoyed some stimulating conversation. You have never been charged admission (which larger, public galleries do), and you have never been submitted to the hovering ministrations of over-eager sales persons.

I cannot believe that after a moment's reflection on this matter, anyone can deny the city needs Pandora's Box more than it needs the city.

The only question that remains is what you personally might do about it.

FEATURED in concert Wednesday in Conservatory auditorium will be Victoria violinist Trudi Conrad who has been studying in Quebec City for past 12 months.

Violinist Returning For Special Concert

An extra concert of special interest has been added to the Victoria Conservatory of Music series ending the current term.

This concert will take place on Wednesday in the small Conservatory auditorium at 613 Pandora Avenue.

It is just possible that it could be the last to be presented at the present premises, although the exact date of the Conservatory's removal to Craigdarroch Castle has not yet been settled.

One of the young artists to be featured is Trudi Conrad, the Victoria violinist who has been studying in Quebec City for the past year. Trudi has recently been awarded a Canada Council grant for summer study in the United States.

The other is pianist Allison Marshall. Possessed of an outstanding talent, Miss Marshall has studied with Noel A. M. Smith and recently with Robin Wood.

Mr. Wood will partner Miss Conrad in the Cesar Franck Sonata for Violin and Piano.

Miss Marshall will play the Beethoven Piano Sonata Op. 31, No. 3, and Chopin's E-flat minor Polonaise and E Major Etude.

ARTS NUMBERS

Seating space in the Conservatory auditorium is limited to 85 and anyone wishing to attend should telephone the Conservatory, 384-1717, for a reservation.

This Sunday the last of the McPherson Playhouse group of concerts will feature 27 students in a program comprising piano, violin, cello, guitar, flute, vocal and speech arts numbers.

Pianists taking part will be Jocelyn Abbott, Karen Kavanagh, Stephen Horning, Heline Barker, James Ramsay, Janet Pennington, Ann Patterson, Wendy Stofer, Mary Chard, Ann Godfrey, Margaret Ann Maclure, Teresa Waggoner, Byron Hosking, Janet Henshaw, Heather Attwell ad Allison Marshall.

Violinists are Marc Destrube and Stephen Calder; cellists, Bruce Turkington, Joyce Menting and Michael Langley; speech students, Nona Avren, Catherine Creed, Karen Arstad and Ruth Chudley.

Others are Monica Maxwell, flute; Nigel Cocking, guitar, and Ronald Webb, vocal.

The Sunday concert begins at 2:30 p.m. The Wednesday concert at the Conservatory starts at 8 p.m.

Broadway May Be Next Stop

NEW YORK (AP) — The spawning ground for much of American theatrical avant-garde is in building lofts, stores, apartments, church basements and coffee houses.

This Off - Off - Broadway movement is an amorphous conglomeration of dramatic experimentation that now is begining to move from its underground home and into the theatrical mainstream.

Off-Off-Broadway — OOB to its growing number of friends—consists of some 30 or more experimental theatre groups, 99 per cent of them in New York, with as varied a repertory and style as theatre itself. The number is only guesswork, since so many are here one day only to vanish the next.

She Didn't Know He Was Loaded

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The widow of a U.S. Air Force sergeant will receive more than $2,500,000 from her husband's estate—an estate she didn't know existed until his death early this year.

Sgt. Edwin Lewis Clark had amassed more than $4,000,000 through stock market investments.

The couple lived apart after Mrs. Clark filed for divorce.

McNamara Searching For Funds

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Robert S. McNamara, now the $45,000-a-year president of the World Bank, already is showing some of the form he displayed as head of the Ford Motor Co. and then the U.S. defence department.

The man who put the Pentagon on computers—with disastrous effect, some critics claim—has launched the first five-year plan of assessing the borrowing needs of the developing countries.

But McNamara faces a serious handicap. He needs money at a time when interest rates are high and resources pinched.

The World Bank, a development agency, now charges a record 6.25 per cent on loans and pays more than that for the money it borrows to do so. McNamara has arranged first-time bank borrowing from Saudi Arabia, Switzerland and The Netherlands and just visited West Germany for the same purpose.

The U.S. has been the main source of funds but its international payments problem has cut into available funds. Despite this, McNamara would like to increase the current World Bank lending rate of about $800,000,000 annually to more than $1,000,000,000 by 1973, with special emphasis on profit-making projects such as tourism, on more educational facilities for the poorer countries and better agriculture.

A serious snag, the bank concedes, is that many developing countries are having trouble paying the high interest as well as repaying existing bank loans. Sweden and Canada have taken a lead in promoting so-called "soft" or negligible-interest loans as a result.

But the main World Bank agency for this source of low-cost credit, the International Development Association, is just about broke.

Doubt is expressed that the U.S. Congress, which has just denied the Asian Development Bank $200,000,000 and otherwise displayed hostility toward foreign aid, will approve this year the $160,000,000 American slice of replenishment funds for the World Bank.

So far, only The Netherlands and Denmark have acted to supply funds. McNamara has expressed confidence Canada will follow suit once a new Canadian government is elected.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Mortgage Rate May Drop; Bond Market Is Stronger

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Slight strengthening of the Canadian bond market this month should mean a minor drop in government-guaranteed mortgage rates, but the difference will be insignificant unless consecutive decreases take place.

Kent

Prospective house builders will hope it is the start of a trend. After all, a predicted ¼ per cent decline is a small dollar difference on mortgage payments in the 9⅛ per cent area.

In any case, a trend cannot be established until the long-awaited U.S. tax hike is in effect.

The National Housing Act rate is pegged to Government of Canada bond yields reviewed on a quarterly basis, and must be within 2¼ per cent above the average yield of seven selected long-term issues.

Average yield taken on the four final Wednesdays of each quarter determines the level of Canada bonds for NHA purposes.

The Bank of Canada quotes the June 5 average yield at 6.85 per cent, the June 12 level at 6.82 per cent. In the last two days further bond market strength was indicated, giving rise to a predicted 8⅞ per cent maximum NHA rate July 1 . .

Besides the expectation of a U.S. tax increase, there has been an easing of Bank of Canada discount policy since pressure on the Canadian dollar slackened. This tends to increase the money supply and bring down the lending rate to chartered banks.

A Canadian company continues to lead international shipping with introduction of modern container-carrying vessels.

White Pass and Yukon Corp. Ltd., of Vancouver, made history with launching of the world's first ship designed for container shipping in 1955—the Clifford J. Rogers, which operated between Vancouver and Skagway, Alaska, until it was replaced in 1965 by the current vessel, Mv. Frank H. Brown.

Friday the company said it had ordered a 6,000-ton sister ship for about $6 million for service in the middle of next year.

The last word in container ships, the new vessel will be 394 feet in length and incorporate a few modifications over the Frank H. Brown, regarded among the most modern of its kind.

"The new ship will enable us to meet any commitment in the foreseeable future," said president Frank H. Brown.

Like the previous two vessels, the new ship will be built in Montreal by Canadian Vickers Ltd.

It will have a gantry crane to handle the 8 by 8 by 25-foot containers that are carried in 200 cells below decks, and as deck cargo. The advantage of adding a ship is to give the existing volume of containers quicker turn-around time.

Although it has operated over the White Pass for 70 years since the Klondike gold rush, the integrated transportation company is in a new period of expansion dictated by northern development, much from the mining industry with such projects as the Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd. silver-lead-zinc undertaking near Whitehorse.

Preliminary exploration of its China Creek claims by Norex Uranium Ltd. has been unencouraging. Consultant engineers report seven drill holes totalling 1,126 feet show only limited mineralization of non-commercial nature.

The consulting engineers urge Norex to make a systematic examination of the property, located seven miles north of Trail.

President Ralph Ernewin points out that Norex still has 20,000 acres for exploration near Uranium City, Sask.

The company stirred hopes of southern B.C. uranium development with its announcement of a strike and exploration possibilities June 6. This was B.C.'s southernmost uranium find in a decade.

Probe Share Trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Securities Commission and the Toronto Stock Exchange are reviewing share trading in Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. and Canadian Breweries Ltd. stock, the Ontario legislature was told Friday.

Leslie Rowntree, financial and commercial affairs minister, made the announcement in replying to questions from Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park).

Dr. Shulman had asked whether there would be an investigation into the "heavy trading" in stocks of the two companies prior to the June 6 announcement that Rothmans had bought control of Canadian Breweries from Argus Corp.

Mr. Rowntree said Canadian Breweries officials have been given until July 10 to file reports on their trading activities in the company's stock.

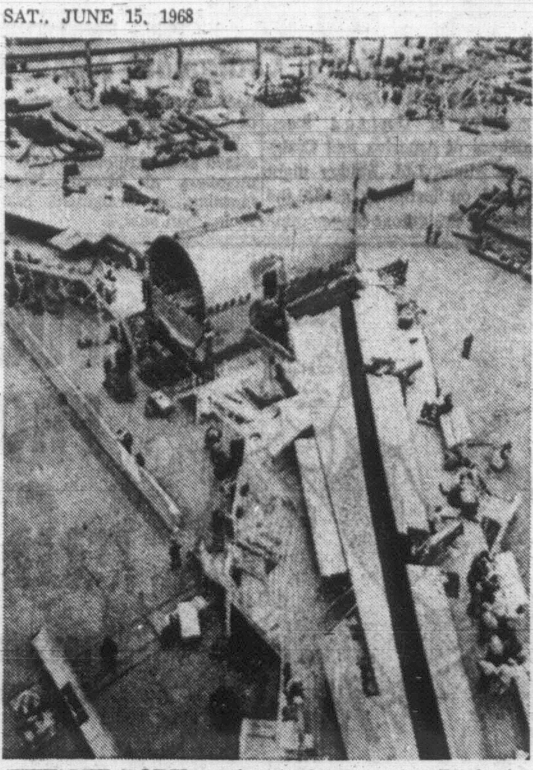
230,000 SHARES TRADED

About 230,000 shares of Canadian Breweries changed hands on the Toronto Stock Exchange June 6, although the takeover announcement was not made until 2½ hours after the exchange closed.

Canadian Breweries shares rose 50 cents to $8.62 on trade of 406,000 shares during the week. Rothmans stock rose $1.50 to $23.88 on trade of 12,800 shares and Argus Corp. traded 4,000 shares, rising $1 to $13.50 in the same period.

Rothmans paid $28,800,000 or $12 a share for Argus Corp.'s 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries.

Dr. Shulman asked whether charges would be laid against Argus Corp. directors for "misinforming shareholders and the public by denying it was considering sale of its Canadian Breweries stock while it was conducting negotiations for this sale."



THE MID-BODY section and wings for Boeing's first 747 have been joined in another step in the assembly of superjet at Everett. Each of the wings is 105 feet long and the mid-fuselage section measures about 40 feet. Rollout of the 747 is scheduled for this fall.—(AP Wirephoto)

Her Ambition Stops At Being a Manager

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Milligan says she doesn't want to be the president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank — she will settle for her present job as its first woman branch manager.

What's more, the branch, in a suburban Toronto hotel, is staffed entirely by women.

Mrs. Milligan's recent appointment caused quite a flutter.

One man who telephoned forgot what he was calling about when a feminine voice answered. "What's the world coming to?" asked another.

Twenty years ago a woman's chances of working in a bank, let alone becoming a manager, were bleak.

Margaret Blois, as she was before her marriage, attended Westdale secondary school in Hamilton. Her teacher there warned pupils that if they wanted a job in a bank they would have to do well in algebra. Margaret didn't.

But despite that she started her banking career at 19 in a Toronto branch, worked for six years and then took seven years off to get married and raise a family of two. When the youngest started school, she resumed her banking career as accountant at the Toronto International Airport branch.

"I think I've reached the limit as far as girls go at the present," she says. "I'm not campaigning either, but I hope this will open the way for a lot more women."

WEEK ON MARKETS

Summer-Long Rally?

By HERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices reached their highest levels since January in exceptionally heavy trading on Canadian stock markets this week.

The value of share traded at Toronto, the largest exchange, hit a record $111,102,000 compared with the previous best of $101,768,000 in April, 1964.

Funds poured in from both institutional and private investors on the growing conviction that there will be a strong summer rally. Looking back, analysts say there is a greater than two-to-one chance that markets will rise between now and September.

Current enthusiasm replaces a long period of monetary gloom and general uncertainty. Even the Vietnam "peace rally", triggered by President Johnson's speech March 29, lacked the support of major funds.

TAX VOTE APPROACHES

Looking at other signposts, investors are waiting for the outcome of next week's vote on the U.S. tax increase—spending cut bill in the House of Representatives.

Everyone feels this is an essential measure to keep interest rates from climbing even higher, and it will at least be a start towards solving the United States' fiscal problems.

Rising gold stocks showed that many investors are still uncertain about the future. Canadian golds picked up early in the week in response to active bullion trading in Europe. Gold itself was above $41 U.S. an ounce.

A sharp drop in the shares Friday reflected market conditions in London, where bullion plunged briefly to $40.20 U.S.

Some observers are beginning to take a bear view of gold. They point to the weakened position of France since the recent upheaval and to the accumulation of newly-mined bullion in South Africa.

They say France is now too weak to call for dearer gold, while South Africa is poised to depress the market by selling. The South African government denies this intention, but gold experts think it has strong internal reasons for wanting to do so soon.

Western oils and uraniums also moved up.

There were no fresh developments in the oil and gas drilling world, but there was an interesting rumor that the U.S. government has privately agreed to grant presidential permits for greatly increased oil imports from Canada.

Uraniums advanced after W. M. Gilchrist, president of Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. of Ottawa, predicted that uranium production will have to increase four times by 1970 to meet demand from nuclear power stations.

Star industrial performer was Great West Saddlery which leapt 7¾ to 11 on sales of 254,116 shares. National Hees, a subsidiary, climbed 85 cents to $5.75. Great West jumped from a low of 46 cents this year.

The spurt followed the revelation of a complex financial scheme by Edward and Peter Bronfman of Montreal, who now control Great West. They plan to acquire Aquila Computer System Co. for Great West, and eventually to transfer National Hees to their holding company, Edper Investments.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 2.50 to 162.22, golds 5.67 to 219.85, base metals .58 to 102.39 and western oils 7.87 to 212.61.

Volume was 19,830,000 shares compared with 16,542,000 last week. Advances outnumbered declines 44 to 304.

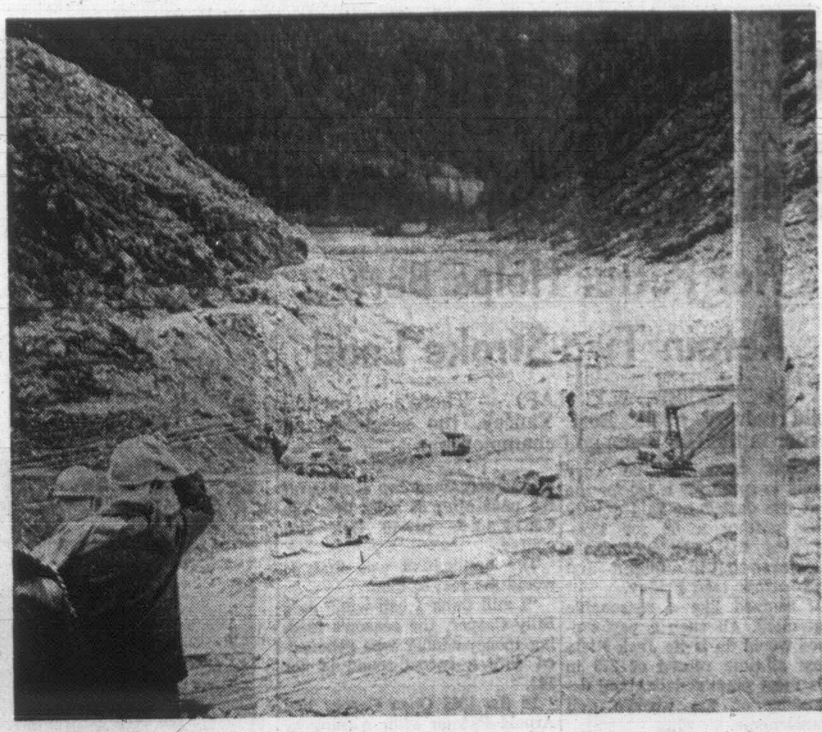
COFFER dam, rising 100 feet over Columbia riverbed, diverts channel and exposes excavation area where 800-foot, earth-fill Mica Dam will be started early next year north of Revelstoke. It is the last of the treaty dams being developed by international agreement with the U.S. for hydro power and flood control.



MATCHBOX toys working on exposed floor of Columbia River canyon are really very mighty machines. Manitowoc crane at far right is Rolls-Royce of construction industry, worth an estimated $400,000, but priceless tool in Mica Dam construction.

HYDRO WILL NEED . . .

. . . ADDITIONAL FINANCING

Mica Dam Completion—by Fall of 1971

By AB KENT
Times Business Editor

MICA CREEK — The giant dam of the Columbia River development has not yet started to take shape, but already its project manager is talking about finishing 1½ years ahead of schedule.

Such is the confidence and matter-of-factness of engineers guiding the five-year job that visitors to the remote Big Bend site don't get full impact of the $136.3 million job until their first sight.

Then it becomes clear, looking over the brink of the Great Columbia escarpment that will hold a dam to dwarf buildings like Place Ville Marie, lofting 737 feet over Montreal; thick enough at the base to contain Government Street from Dallas Road to the legislature; long enough at the crest to span Willows Beach waterfront from Jimmy Chicken Island to Cattle Point.

A tour for reporters was led through the project this week by B.C. Hydro co-chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, formally ushering in the 1968 construction season.

Much work has been done in the three years to date. Millions of tons of rock and earth have passed through the maws of mighty machines for road-building, coffer dams, site preparation and diversion of the Columbia through two 45-foot diameter tunnels averaging some 3,200 feet in length.

135-Mile Lake Will Take Form Behind Dam

Well advanced is the removal of some 6 million cubic yards of overburden from the canyon walls and floor. Next March, 120-ton belly-dump trucks will start to place 42.2 million cubic yards or rock, clay, sand and gravel fill that will wold back a new lake 135 miles long and containing 20 million acre feet of jade-green Columbia waters.

The job is expected to rquire new financing this year. Dr. Keenleyside was asked when Hydro would have its next bond issue.

"I think you'll have to ask our fiscal agent, who is the minister of finance, who is the premier of this province," he replied.

"I think we'll have to go the market in the next few months," he added.

The co-chairman agreed there is a good possibility the Mica dam will be done ahead of time. "We've got two good precedents and we may do it again," he said, referring to the smaller Arrow and Duncan dams further south.

He credited the consultants, engineers and contractors for this optimistic situation.

Site Located 50 Miles North Of Revelstoke

Project manager George McCoy, on behalf of a consortium of five companies, said it is expected that construction of the embankment forming the 800-foot-high earth fill may be completed in November, 1971.

"We think it's a reasonable expectation . . . but closing of the tunnels will govern completion," Mr. McCoy said.

The job must be finished by April 1973 according to the terms of international agreement on Columbia development.

Mica Creek dam is the northernmost of the series covered by the Columbia Treaty, lying immediately south of the confluence of Columbia, Canoe and Wood rivers some 50 miles north of Revelstoke.

An underground power house carved from the right bank's rock will rival the great cavern of the Peace River dam.

This will be about 900 feet long and 140 feet high, with capacity to house generators with 2 million kilowatts output. By comparison, the Peace River development will produce 2.3 million kilowatts.

Start of the powerhouse project, governed by a separate contract, has not been decided.

Dr. Keenleyside said this would depend on the rate of load growth in the Hydro system, which is expected to hit about 10 per cent in 1968 — the biggest rate in Canada.

He said Ontario Hydro reached the previous high of 7.5 per cent two years ago.

But there are other factors involved. Dr. Keenleyside said a continuing study of power development economics would likely determine the start of Mica power, the dam meanwhile serving to control the river for downstream benefits.

Among factors having an influence are the prospect of developing another power station downstream from Bennett Dam on the Peace, damming tributaries of the Fraser River, expanding Vancouver Island facilities for generating power and a new plant at Kootenay Canal near Castlegar, Dr. Keenleyside said.

Mr. McCoy outlined some construction details, comparing Mica with the Peace dam. For example, there are 57 million cubic yards of material in the latter, which cost $88 million.

42.2 Million Cubic Yards Of Material

Mica will have 42.2 million cubic yards including 4.4 million tons of glacial till, the compacted mixture of stiff clay forming the core of the dam to make it nearly impervious to water.

There will be an additional 27.8 million yards of sand and gravel banked on both sides of the core to give it the millions of tons of dead weight support required for this triangular cross-section type of earth fill dam.

To hold this in place will be 10 million tons of compacted rock, five feet deep on one side, 10 feet on the other.

The whole will rise 800 feet from bedrock, or 645 feet above the normal river bed.

That makes it 45 feet higher than Bennett Dam.

To the visitor, viewing Mica Dam from a point overlooking the downstream canyon on reconstructed Big Bend Highway, the structure will be at least as impressive as the Peace dam, even though shorter.

The Peace gorge is so huge it loses context, whereas the Columbia gorge rises abruptly between two steep mountainsides lending the illusion of nearness. The result is staggering and promises to be frightening from the road that will cross the crest of the dam.

At its peak in 1970, the construction job will employ between 1,000 and 1,500 men, the project manager said. This is far short of the 2,700 envisaged earlier.

1,500 Workers To Be Employed At Peak Period

They will live in a camp provided with many comforts of urban dwellings — like automatic washers and clothes driers, billiard and card rooms, a TV theatre, movies, individual beds and spring mattresses with a maximum of two men to a room, wood panelled rooms and corridors and the usual overwhelming menus of well-prepared food.

Where the contractor's camp stands today — finished last week — there was bush three months ago. With accommodation for 800 single men, the camp is built of factory-made components that may be hauled over long distances and bolted together on site.

Its 36 units cost upwards of $1 million and were manufactured in Langley by Campmobile Manufacturing Ltd.

Six miles downstream is the new village of Mica Creek, with the namesake creek running through one end and emptying into the Columbia at its front door. It is here the Hydro headquarters for Mica Dam is situated, along with the factory-built and on-site homes for families, single men's and women's dormitories, school, medical-dental clinic, bank, recreation and shopping centre, RCMP detachment and churches. A hotel will be built soon.

There are 73 homes and about 700 residents at the moment.

The village also serves as administration centre for CASECO Constultants Ltd., designer and supervisor of dam construction, and Mica Dam Contractors, a consortium consisting of:

Guy F. Atkinson Co., Arundel International Inc., Commonwealth Construction Co. Ltd., Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd., and L. E. Dixon International Inc.

With the filling of the reservoir in three to five years' time an historic site will be flooded. Boat Encampment, founded in 1811 by explorer David Thomspon as a fur trade outpost, will pass from the earth.

It has little to claim, save its place in the history of British Columbia. Clustered there are a small lodge, a few trailers, a ranger station and a cairn marking the route traders trod more than 100 years ago.

Savings Bond Sales Setting Record Pace

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians cashed $92,000,000 in Canada savings bonds between June 5 and June 12, more than any seven-day period in recent years.

Since early this year, holdings of savings bonds have declined rapidly as investors dumped their bonds to obtain higher yields on other securities.

Weekly declines of $15,000,000 to $30,000,000 have been common in the regular reports of the Bank of Canada.

Thursday's statement showed total holdings of savings bonds as of Wednesday, June 12, as $5,857,000,000, down $92,000,000 from a week earlier and $569,000,000 below the peak reached at the end of the regular fall sales campaign last November.

CASH REDUCED

The redemptions have reduced the government's cash on hand to uncomforably low margins. On Wednesday, the government's bank balances stood at $258,000,000, a slight increase of $2,000,000 from the previous week but $556,000,000 down from a year earlier.

Last month, to improve its cash position, the government opened up to the public a special series of savings bonds designed to replace a 1959 series that would ordinarily have matured this fall.

The issue offered an attractive yield of 6.88 per cent and about $200,000,000 were sold. But the financing increased total savings bond holdings by only $60,000,000 because many existing bond holders sold off lower-coupon bonds to take advantage of the improved yield.

In the three weeks since then, holdings have slipped by $127,000,000.

KILLY KEEPS MEDALS; CLEARED OF CHARGES

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — The International Skiing Federation cleared French Olympic champion Jean-Claude Killy Friday of charges of commercialism and violation of amateur rules.

The Frenchman thus can keep all Alpine medals he won in the 1968 Winter Games at Grenoble.

Federation president Marc Hodler of Switzerland told reporters after the opening session of a three-day board meeting that testimonies and documentation "clearly showed Killy acted in innocence" when he posed for magazine photographs for which he was said to have received payment.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Briefly, A Few Tunes at Mid-June . . .

If Ed Viggers appears to be asking too many questions today, it's because raiders moved in on the Victoria and District Soccer League this week. In the space of 48 hours this week, Vickers was left standing alone as the chief executive among footballers.

O'Keefes came around Wednesday and declared that Jack Metcalfe, secretary-treasurer of the District League, will be the new manager of the Pacific Coast League team. On Thursday, the B.C. Soccer Commission claimed Jim Wilmshurst, the District League's president.

JACK METCALFE

Wilmshurst and handyman Don Wakelyn will take over B.C. Commission positions previously held by Pat Mulcahy and Sam Smith.

"It doesn't leave us with much of an executive," commented vice-president Viggers.

This may me the time to clarify remarks, made a few weeks ago, about the commission's system of selecting its executive. No criticism of Smith and Mulcahy, or of their efforts, was intended. To the contrary, both always have been very co-operative and most helpful.

My objection was, and still is, to the "by-appointment-only" system the commission uses in naming its members.

●

Still with soccer, Vancouver Royals' manager Ginger Pickburn must have put a lot of spice into his language in order to convince Victoria's Ike MacKay to sign with the North American League team. Not too many months ago, MacKay was quite certain he wouldn't play professional, "even if asked."

MacKay certainly deserves the chance. And even if he fails to stick with the Royals, the Victoria youth won't hurt his future or ability by mingling with the best.

Royals' coach Ferenc Puskas also regards another Victorian, Bruce Twamley, as a prize prospect. Puskas considers Twamley as one of the finest 15-year-olds he has ever seen.

Puskas was so impressed that Twamley has been asked to join Royals after school is out. Twamley, if he agrees, would tend to equipment-handling duties and will work out regularly.

●

The week's National Hockey League news and Montreal Canadiens' claim of Larry Cahan in the draft jogged memories of the defenceman's recent visit to Victoria. He came here to be the guest speaker at a father-son banquet.

In a question-and-answer period that followed, one youngster asked about Bert Olmstead, a tough taskmaster who recently was replaced by Fred Glover as Oakland Seals' coach.

"What's he like?" said Cahan, repeating the question. "Well, let's put it this way, son . . . If Olmstead was working as a public relations man for Santa Claus, there would be no Christmas."

●

Set down for three days by Hollywood Park's stewards, Vancouver-raised jockey Wayne Harris took advantage of the rest to renew old adquaintances at Exhibition Park recently.

As a result of that visit, the B.C. Jockey Club is expected to announce the appearance of a "name" rider at Vancouver either July 1 or July 8. Those dates fall on a Monday when Hollywood Park is dark and Harris feels he can entice a name rider to B.C.

Having a great year in California, Harris has agreed to ride Max Bell's Merger in the Queen's Plate at Toronto next Saturday. Horse and jockey get acquainted in the Plate Trial on Monday.

Umpire Ousts Richey After Temper Display

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Hot-headed Cliff Richey blasted a ball out of the court again in another temper tantrum Friday and was disqualified in his semi-final match of the West England tennis championships with Davis Cup team-mate Arthur Ashe.

In the other semi-final, Clark Graebner of New York beat Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., 6-3, 6-3.

Kerry Melville won the women's title by defeating Karen Krantzcke 6-0, 6-1 in an all-Australian final.

Richey was ordered off the court after a heated exchange of words with Col. Harry Evans, the umpire. The No. 3-ranking American from San Angelo, Tex., had arguments with umpires twice before in the tournament.

In the semi-final, Richey won the first set 6-4 and Ashe the second 6-3. Ashe, the No. 2 American from Richmond, Va., had just broken Richey's service for a 3-2 lead in the third set when Richey belted the ball out of the court. The fireworks started.

Evans requested Richey not to do it again. Richey said he would do what he wanted. One word led to another and Richey's expulsion.

Goaltender Has Whips Cracking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The stellar goaltending of Scotland's Jack Reilly is helping Washington Whips move up in the North American Soccer League standings.

Reilly registered his third shutout of the campaign Friday night as the Whips downed New York Generals 1-0 before 5,685 fans.

In the only other game scheduled, Chicago Mustangs edged Detroit Cougars 3-2.

Hot Putter Helps Bert Retain Two-Stroke Lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — There's a certain mild naivety about Bert Yancey, the second-round leader in the U.S. Open golf championship.

"Right now, I'd be very happy to settle for a 140 for the next two days," he said quietly after posting a 68 for 135—equalling the best opening 36 holes ever shot in an Open—and a two-stroke lead Friday.

It seemed like a reasonable statement. All such a performance would do is tie Jack Nicklaus' all-time record of 275 in this most prestige-laden and demanding of the world's golf tournaments.

And such a performance may be necessary if Yancey is to stand off the challenge of Lee Trevino and some of the game's more glamorous names.

"He has to catch me," Yancey shrugged when Trevino came in with his two-under-par 68 and remained two strokes off the pace after 36 holes over the 6,962-yard, par-70 Oak Hill course.

The implication was that so would the rest of them.

"I still think I can win," said Billy Casper, the season's leading money-winner who rebounded with a second-round 68 for 143.

In the 1966 Open Casper tied Arnold Palmer after trailing by seven strokes with nine holes to play.

Defending champion Nicklaus, who had a par 70 for 142, said Yancey "can't be caught if he keeps up this pace, but that doesn't mean he will keep up that pace."

Putting Performance Piques Palmer

Palmer stumbled in with a 74—he didn't have a single birdie—for 147 and was a dejected and crestfallen man.

"My putting is atrocious. I can't get the ball near the cup," he said.

Al Balding of Toronto soared to a 76 Friday after an opening round of 70 for a two-hole total of 146. Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., had a 74 in the second round for a 150 total, missing the cutoff mark of 148.

Yancey used only 29 putts in his round, including birdies from 30, 20 and six feet away. His only over-par scores came on the fourth, where he was in a trap, and the 10th, where he missed the green.

Trevino, who made his big time debut in the Open a year ago, scrambled for his round, taking 32 putts and going into the rough eight times.

"But I was lucky, man," he said. "All but once the ball was teed up in that tall stuff. And I was putting real good.

"All I'm trying to do is stay away from those sixes, those double bogeys."

Charles Coody, who shared second place after the first day's play, slipped to a 71 for 140 and a tie for third with Don Bies, 70, Australian Bruce Devlin, 69, and Jerry Pittmen, 67.

Nicklaus was bunched in a herd of 11 at 142.

Adventurous Bid By Warwickshire

EDGBASTON, England (Reuters) — Warwickshire came close to repeating their 1964 victory over the Australian cricketers here Friday before they were held to a draw, 31 runs short of their target.

The county were set to make 299 in 210 minutes and made an adventurous bid for victory. Although still needing 60 with four wickets left, they claimed the extra 30 minutes and did not abandon their attempt until they lost their eighth-wicket pair with eight minutes left.

They eventually reached 268 for eight.

The Australians moved on to Hove for the 11th match of their tour satisfied to have maintained their unbeaten record despite a mammoth start of 394 for seven declared which left Warwickshire at one stage struggling to save the follow-on.

HEADING FOR JUNK YARD

Leaving track in cloud of dust and smoke is car driven by Les Scott of Chicago during Friday trials for today's trophy race at Toronto's Mosport circuit. Machine jumped three-foot ditch and ended up looking like pile of junk but Wilson escaped serious injury. Also unhurt was former world driving champion Graham Hill of England after his turbine car hit oil patch and was "demolished" in spectacular crash. Dan Gurney and Mario Andretti were one-two qualifiers for today's 200-mile race.

Young Moose Coralled By Forbes Field Jinx

By The Associated Press

Rookie Bob Moose of Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night just missed overcoming a long-lived jinx that prohibits no-hitters in Forbes Field.

The right-hander went the distance as the Pirates beat Houston Astros 3-0, and he made a serious bid for the first no-hitter ever in Pittsburgh's Forbes Field, which opened June 30, 1909.

But the jinx caught up with him after seven and two-thirds innings when Julio Gotay blooped a single to right. Ron Davis singled in the ninth and Moose finished with a two-hitter.

The longest previous hitless strings at Forbes Field was seven and one-third innings by Al Jackson of New York Mets July 21, 1965.

Elsewhere in the National League the Mets beat San Francisco Giants 7-3, Cincinnati Reds blanked St. Louis Cardinals 7-0, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Philadelphia 6-0, and then lost to the Phillies 2-1 and Chicago Cubs nipped Atlanta Braves 2-1.

RETIRES NEXT 21

Moose walked Rusty Staub with two out in the first and then retired 21 in a row before Gotay got his single.

The Pirates scored in the second inning when Fred Patek beat out a bunt for his first major-league hit, stole second and went to third on catcher John Bateman's throwing error and came home on Jerry May's single. They scored again in the sixth on Donn Clendenon's homer and got their final run in the eighth.

Rookie Jerry Koosman got roughed up in the ninth when he yielded two runs but had enough to win his 10th game against two losses in the Mets' victory over San Francisco.

New York, winning its fourth straight, scored once in the first and then wrapped it up with four runs in the third on Don Bosch's solo homer and Jerry Buchek's three-run shot.

Cincinnati broke open its scoreless duel with St. Louis by scoring four runs in the seventh with the aid of five straight singles.

ALLOW THREE HITS

Billy McCool and Ted Abernathy limited the Cardinals to three hits.

Bill Singer raised his record to 6-5 by pitching a seven-hitter for his fourth straight victory in Los Angeles' opening game triumph over Philadelphia that snapped a three-game losing streak. The Dodgers clinched it with a two-run second and a three-run third.

Philadelphia, held hitless for six and one-third innings by Mike Kekich, won the nightcap when Tony Gonzalez singled off Jim Brewer with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Fifth-inning doubles by Ernie Banks and Randy Hundley broke a 1-1 tie and gave Chicago a 2-1 victory over Atlanta.

NOT ALL CONNECTED

Ken Harrelson and Don Wert showed hitting power, but the rest of the American League hitters might just as well have taken the night off.

Wert waited until the 14th inning before blasting his seventh home run that brought the league-leading Detroit Tigers a 6-5 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Harrelson held off until only the fifth inning before beginning a barrage of three consecutive homers that drove in seven runs and surged Boston Red Sox by Cleveland Indians 7-2.

The rest of the league's hitters remained mostly grounded as Minnesota Twins trimmed Baltimore Orioles 2-1 on infield hits, infield outs and a wild pitch and errors helped California Angels past Washington Senators 2-0 and New York Yankees by Oakland Athletics 5-4 in 10 innings.

Valerie Attempts Track Comeback

It's an Olympic year and many former athletic stars will be attempting comebacks, hoping to compete in the Mexico City Games.

One of them is Valerie Jerome Parker, who will join brother Harry Jerome and other noted sprinters in the YM-YWCA - Times track and field meet next Saturday at Centennial Stadium.

Formerly one of Canada's swiftest distaff sprinters, Valerie dropped out of competition after her marriage and another Vancouver ace, Irene Piotroski, took her place as a record-breaker.

Now Valerie's back and both will be matching speed in what is shaping up as the best collection of track talent ever assembled in Victoria.

More than 500 entries are predicted for the meet with contestants coming from as far south as California and as far east as Winnipeg.

OLYMPIC CLUB ENTRY

One of the top clubs in Canada, the Vancouver Olympic Club, is sending 60 athletes, including Bill Greenhaugh, Barry Adams, Don Scott, Terry Dooley and Roger Mercier.

Greenhaugh competed on Canada's team in the Pan-American Games in the long and triple jumps. Adams is considered one of the best steeplechasers in Canada, Scott has been clocked in the mile at 4:05, and Dooley is another strong miler. Mercier has cleared six feet, six inches in the high jump.

Vancouver's rival club, the Burnaby Optimist Striders, has submitted 68 entries.

OFFICIAL TRIALS

Officials and general assistants are still needed for the meet and anyone interested may call Art Burgess at the YMCA.

The event has received sanction as official trials to name the B.C. team to compete for places on the national squad.

Junior events start at 10 a.m. while the open category competitons start at 6:30 and continue until 9 p.m.

Veteran Slugger On Disabled List

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers have placed veteran infielder Eddie Mathews on the disabled list. Mathews, 37, has been undergoing treatment in a Detroit hospital for a back ailment and has not been responding to treatment.

Pats, Weyburn Bolt From Rebel Movement

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Hockey League, formerly the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, has lost two centres from its 11-point circuit when Regina interests announced they would not operate outside the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and were joined by Weyburn.

Harry Bell, a Regina businessman who headed a group interested in replacing Regina Pats, said his group would work with the Pats' organization in hopes of establishing a Saskatchewan junior league.

He said Weyburn would definitely join his Regina group even though Weyburn had posted a $1,000 performance bond with the CHL.

Bell said he did not believe his group could operate outside the CAHA, "Even though we may not agree with many of their rules."

He said his organization had nothing against the junior league or its members but "the CAHA happens to be in control of hockey in Canada."

"All we can hope is that the two groups will sit down and iron this thing out."

CHANCE TO REIGN . . . . . . OVER TWO CLUBS

Theo Busiest Tennis Miss

Ernie Cockayne, the second seed, and Marty Taylor, last year's finalist, both went tumbling Friday in men's singles semi-finals at the Victoria Racquet Club tennis championships. But there was no stopping Theo Booker.

Cockayne was the victim of a blistering comeback by third-seeded Roger Skillings and bowed, 1-6, 6-3, 10-8.

Skillings was to face top-rated John Fraser in today's final. Fraser defeated Taylor 6-1, 6-0 in Friday's other semi-final.

And Miss Booker, recently returned from Australia, stepped forward today with a chance to reign over two clubs. She reached the Racquet Club's women's final by defeating Wendy Cuppage 6-1, 6-0 Friday.

On Thursday, Miss Booker reached the finals of the Oak Bay club championship by defeating Kathy Metcalfe in straight sets.

Theo was to play defending champion Sally Wood in today's Racquet Club final. Sally defeated Nancy Hill, 6-1, 7-5 in Friday's other ladies' semi-final.

Then, back at Oak Bay, Miss Booker and partner Gill Boyd reached the women's doubles final by defeating the Metcalfe-Ella Hogg pairing, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

ONE CHAMP TO ANOTHER

Beechler Does the Job In Publicizing Prineville

People have trouble with Prineville.

Some want to spell it "Princeville" and others make it "Pineville."

But George Beechler makes sure you have the proper spelling. And as long as he keeps on winning, Beechler will keep Prineville, Ore., on the map.

A slick one-handicapper, Beechler picked off the Pacific Northwest Golf Association's seniors championship for a third straight year Friday by touring the tough Royal Colwood course with a three-over-par 73.

SEVEN-STROKE EDGE

Twice runner-up in the U.S. national seniors title-hunt, Beechler had earlier rounds of 76 and 75 to finish the 54-hole PNGA test with 224, seven strokes ahead of his nearest rival.

Warren Dawson of Palm Springs, Calif., the 1965 titlist, was runnerup with 75-80-76 — 231.

Elmer Button of Port Angeles was third, 79-76-78 — 233; followed by Canadian seniors champion Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, 75-81-79 — 235, and Bob Bird of Salt Lake City. Another golfing medic, Dr. Max Hunter of Olympia, Wash., finished sixth with 76-80-81 — 237.

COURSE PRAISED

While Beechler came in for most of the plaudits at prize-giving time, the Oregonian had nothing but praise for Colwood's course.

"It has to be one of the finest courses I've ever played," he said. "And I have played a few in my day."

The tournament's best-ball prize went to Dawson and Seattle's George Cadwell, who combined for a nifty 63-67-65 — 195 on the par-70 course.

A Salt Lake City pairing of Bird and Steve Dunford finished a stroke behind with 67-66-63 — 196.

Victoria Trio Captures Cup

Playing on their home Victoria Lawn Bowling Club greens, Alice McConnell, Rhoda Ayres and Ella Raines won the "A" section of the Simmons Cup triples competition.

Taking "B" section honors was the Victoria West trio of Meina Wakefield, Joan Turner and Florence McDowell.

The Victoria West greens will be the site next week of doubles competition for the Baker Trophy. Opening games are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday with the following draw:

TUESDAY

WEDNESDAY

Bowling Competition Tries New Formula

Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club's inter-club competition for the Greenslade Cup triples will this year be played under a flight system instead of sectional play. First-game winners moving into the "A" flight and the losers into a "B" event.

Following is first draw, starting at 7 p.m.:

Thursday—Hall vs. Lynas; Renfrew vs. Hobbs; Dickie vs. Martin; Westaway vs. McGregor; Hadfield vs. Tapp; Barr vs. Walker.

Friday—Fleck vs. Wakefield; Fyvie vs. Clegg; Linders vs. Hilliard; Russell vs. Gavin; Fea vs. Noll.

BRITAIN LEADING CURTIS CUP TEST

NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (AP) — England's Margaret Pickard beat Kansan Jean Ashley in the final match of the day to lead Britain's women golfers to a 5-4 edge over the United States in the Curtis Cup matches Friday.

The 30-year-old Briton won the final two holes to top the 29-year-old former U.S. amateur champion from Chanute, Kan., 2 up.

This climaxed a series of tightly-waged matches over the 6,535-yard, par 38-38— 76 Royal County Downs links on the edge of the Irish Sea.

The British team, losers the last four times in this biennial competition, captured a 2-1 advantage in the morning's three foursomes and then split the six singles contests. Each won twice and halved two other matches.

The same nine-match program was to wind it up today.

. . . And Enjoying Edge In Tennis Competition

LONDON (AP) — Virginia Wade led Britain's women's tennis team to a 2-1 lead Friday over the United States in the Wightman Cup competition.

Miss Wade trounced Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis, 6-0, 6-1 in singles and teamed with Winnie Shaw for a 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 doubles triumph over Miss Eisel and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.

The Texas star, winner of the recent French open championship, crushed Christine Truman Janes, 6-1, 8-6 in the first match of the day on the Wimbledon courts.

Three singles and one doubles match will wind up the program today.

The Americans have won seven straight years and hold a 33-6 margin in the international duels. But the cup holders have been weakened by the loss of two of their top players—Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals—to the pro ranks.

BASEBALL CLASSES

Leagues to Pick Boys for School

Forty Victoria boys are scheduled to receive something special in the way of baseball instruction.

They are the ones who will be selected from city Babe Ruth, Pony and Colt leagues to attend an instructional school at Topaz Park, July 1 to 6.

Sponsored by the Victoria and District Baseball Association, the school will be conducted by the staff of the Okanagan Major League Baseball Camp, under the direction of Dale Parker, instructor at the Okanagan camp since 1961.

With Parker will be Mal Walton, Dick Calvert and Ken Lehman.

NUMBER LIMITED

Since correct instruction is difficult with too large a group, the Victoria school will be limited to 40 players of 13 to 15 years selected from the Victoria, Cosmopolitan and Optimist Babe Ruth leagues, the Layritz, Triangle and Carnarvon Pony leagues, and the Victoria Colt league.

League presidents will nominate outstanding players to a VDBA committee as candidates for the Topaz Park school, which will have morning and afternoon sessions.

Stamina Big Asset In B.C. Golf Chase

Johnny Russell is planning to make it two straight, two former champions are gunning for another title, flocks of other talented fairway artists are ready for shots at golf glory, and 30 clubs are represented in the field of 83 entrants.

That was the picture today at Gorge Vale Golf Club, where the gruelling scramble for the B.C. Amateur championship gets under way Monday morning with Russell, the long belter from Vancouver's Point Grey club, rated a good bet to retain the title he won last year.

Several contestants were testing their skills against the long, par-73 Gorge layout today and it appeared obvious that it will be a pair of weary men who survive six rounds in five days on the hilly course before clashing in Saturday's 36-hole, match-play final. Stamina as well as skill with sticks could be an important factor.

Bert Ticehurst, the perennial threat from Vancouver's McCleary course who won the crown in 1964, and Laurie Kerr, the six-time Victoria champion from Royal Colwood who collected the provincial title in 1960, are the former champions.

DONALDSON ENTERED

Other Vancouver-area contenders Art Donaldson, former Victoria Amateur winner; Gordie Fairburn and Bud Bird, who lost to Russell in the 1967 final.

Numbered among the Victoria entrants are city junior king Cec Ferguson, two-time city Amateur champ Ricky Kent, veteran Vic Painter, junior Dave Mick and southpaw Hal Jacobsen.

Following 18 holes of medal play Monday and Tuesday, the field will be trimmed to the low 64 players for a 36-hole test Wednesday.

EIGHT IN MATCH-PLAY

From there, the eight leaders after the 72 holes will advance into match play, contesting the 18-hole quarter-finals Thursday. Semi-finals, over 18 holes, are slated Friday and the two survivors will battle for the title Saturday over a 36-hole route.

Selections to the B.C. team for the Canadian Amateur championship and Willingdon Cup inter-provincial team matches will be made following the tourney.

Draw for the first two days with Monday's times listed first:

Lyon Extends Carls' Hunger

Carlings are starting to nudge Red Lions' record for futility in the Senior Men's Softball League at Central Park.

Red Lions had to go 13 games last season before finally breaking the ice. Veteran lefthander Don Lyon pushed Carlings through to a 12th game without a win Friday.

Lyon's two-hit pitching effort carried Bate Construction to a 2-0 victory over Carlings. He walked two and each time the runner was cut down trying to steal. The only others to reach base against Lyon were Ernie Savoie and pitcher Dave Norman, both with singles.

ERROR HELPS

Singles by Barry Milne and Don Lancaster sandwiched a throwing error by Norman to give Bates both their runs in the first inning.

The league enjoys an open weekend but one member team — second-place Colony Inn — will be participating in the Northwest Invitational tournament at Vancouver. Colony is scheduled to play its first game this evening against Auburn.

Playoff Format Changed

Little League baseball players will compete under a different system this season while chasing playoff championships.

Replacing the double-loss elimination style used in former years will be modified round-robin competition.

Little leaguers will launch their bids for local area titles on July 20 and start the Vancouver Island tournament on July 29.

From there, the tournament trail leads to the provincial playoff at Vancouver, the Canadian tournament at Windsor and the World Series at Williamsport, Pa.

Tournament schedule:

Area—Hampton Park, July 20 to 27; Gordon Head Park, Lake Hill Park and Lake Cowichan Park, July 22 to 27.
Vancouver Island—Victoria West Park, July 29 to Aug. 1.
Provincial—Vancouver, Aug. 5 to 10.
Canadian—Windsor, Ont., Aug. 12 to 17.
World Series—Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 19 to 24.

Sooke Loses Victory In Committee Room

The action was all for naught at Heywood Avenue Park Friday.

Sooke Hotel defeated King's 7-4 but the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League decision was promptly protested. The protest, based on a rules interpretation, was just as promptly upheld.

As a result, the teams will replay the game as part of a tripleheader Sunday, starting 3:30 p.m.

The protest also wiped out a fine effort by Bob Brown. The Sooke first basemen hit three-for-four, scored once and drove in four runs.

Violence Contributed By 'Anguished' Students

LOS ANGELES (UP) — many students who cried out in anguish at the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy have themselves contributed to the violence of the time, Chancellor Franklin D. Murphy said in his farewell address at the University of California at Los Angeles Friday.

Murphy, who will leave UCLA by Sept. 1 to become board chairman of the Times Mirror Co., parent corporation of the Los Angeles Times, told graduates at the university's 49th commencement exercises in Pauley Pavilion:

"Just about one week ago a great young American was cut down in the prime of life as his brother had been before him. It was an act of senseless, unreasoned passion.

"And why, cried members of your generation, must these violent acts characterize our time?

"Many of those who asked that question in universities all over this country were individuals who themselves had decided to take the campus law into their own hands, to confront, to occupy and destroy property.

"They seem not to comprehend a lesson of history that violence breeds violence — that it is in fact an infectious disease, and that the only treatment for this disease is reasoned dialogue, due process and the rule of law."

The capacity crowd of 13,000 at the commencement seemed to be in the same frame of mind as the chancellor, as an antidraft demonstration planned for the opening of the exercises was a dismal failure.

Scouts Help In High-Rise Enumeration

Greater Victoria's Boy Scouts Monday will begin helping the United Appeal to be prepared for this fall's campaign.

The boys will scout out the city's high-rise dwellers.

R. B. Hutchison, chairman of the appeal's campaign committee, said that so many apartment blocks have been built in the last year that a survey of where they are and how many persons live in them "is essential" to canvassing.

Most of the district's 1,000 scouts, venturers and rovers, who form one of the appeal's 23-member agencies, will tour apartment lobbies to count mailboxes and determine whether special arrangements must be made for entry.

Scout headquarters have asked for the co-operation of building managers.

The United Appeal campaign will begin Sept. 30. Its objective, expected to be above the $600,000 raised last year, is to be announced later.

SPECULATION has increased over the possibility that Senator Edward Kennedy may be offered the second slot on a Democratic presidential ticket headed by Hubert Humphrey. A Humphrey campaign aide said in Washington that Ted Kennedy "was not only desirable but essential to give recognition to what happened in the primaries." Friends of Kennedy say he will not make a decision on his future political plans for another month.

Assassin Prisoner Seeks Psychic Power

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan joined the Rosicrucian Order, a group that follows a philosophy designed to develop "psychic powers," a few months before he was arrested for the murder of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, a Rosicrucian officer has revealed.

Arthur Piepenbrink, 46, supreme secretary, said Friday that Sirhan was granted membership after applying by letter to the organization's headquarters here.

Piepenbrink said the 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant's membership had lapsed for nonpayment of dues. A spokesman said the Ancient Mystical Order of Rosae Crucis, the worldwide order's official name, expounds "a system of metaphysical and physical philosophy intended to awaken an individual's dormant psychic powers."

One of the questions on the Rosicrucian application form filled out by Sirhan was: "Do you try to practice good citizenship and obey the laws of the country in which you live?"

Piepenbrink said Sirhan answered, "Yes." He said if the answer is anything other than yes, the application is rejected.

Prisoners Guilty

FRANKFURT (AP) — Two former prisoners of the Auschwitz concentration camp—Bernhard Bonitz, 61, and Josef Windeck, 64—were sentenced Friday to life imprisonment for the murder of other prisoners in Nazi Germany's largest death factory. The court found Windeck guilty of five murders and Bonitz guilty of one. Bonitz had been charged with 72 murders and Windeck with 117.

Outbreak of Grief Syndromes In Wake of Kennedy Murder

WASHINGTON (WP) — Some people have become so grief-stricken over the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy that they have suffered real and imaginary physical illness as a direct result.

Five Washington doctors say that they and many of their colleagues have treated patients for what is called the "grief syndrome" and said a similar, larger outbreak of cases occurred following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

One doctor reported a patient of his suffered what appeared to be a mild stroke — blurred and double vision, numbness on one side of the body — when actually there was nothing physically wrong.

He said it turned out these symptoms were induced by remorse the man felt over Sen. Kennedy's murder.

The five doctors said that most of the grief-inspired cases concerned minor complaints ranging from headaches through upset stomachs and backaches.

Fine Butchers On Food Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — St. Lawrence Butchers Ltd., of Montreal have been fined $600, the maximum penalty, by Judge Raphael Beaudette of municipal court for violating a city health bylaw prohibiting the sale of meat from animals that have died from accident or disease.

The company pleaded guilty Friday to three charges of selling unfit meat.

Is It Safe to Visit U.S.?

WASHINGTON (CP)—The spectre of "social unrest" in the United States, which many predicted would have a stifling effect on the summer's tourist business, is apparently striking a bitter blow to certain localized areas rather than the industry as a whole.

Many Americans will be staying closer to home—and away from the troubled big cities. Also, early figures indicate an above-average flow of Americans into Canada, one of the few countries favored by United States tourists that has not been beset by riots, rebellion or even open revolution.

"The American tourist is a pretty hardy individual," said a spokesman for one travel organization, "and figures indicate neither social unrest at home or abroad, nor the president's plea to Americans to vacation at home will make him change his mind once it's made up."

President Johnson, to help fight the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit, has urged Americans to take their vacations in the Western Hemisphere—preferably the United States.

Figures from the Canadian government travel bureau here indicate inquiries about travel to Canada are up 40 per cent compared with the corresponding period in 1966.

Bureau manager John Bunt, saying he was "very satisfied" with this volume, explained that comparison with last year — when volume was about 25 per cent higher — did not give a true picture because Expo 67 made that an exceptionally busy tourist year for Canada.

EATING IS FUN, INEXPENSIVE

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eating local dishes should be as much a part of the adventure of visiting foreign lands as touring palaces, cathedrals and museums.

Yet many Americans will head for restaurants offering "American style" meals and end up ordering steak or hamburger with french fries — don't forget the catsup. And the tab!

They don't know what they're missing, according to Richard H. Growald. Growald lived and toured throughout Europe for years as a UPI correspondent and enjoys something of a reputation among fellow newsmen as an expert trencherman.

"Good eating is one of the bargains of Europe," he said. "Two dollars will buy a meal to write home about in most Western European cities. In the towns and villages, make it $1."

●

We asked Growald to list some of his favorite economical eating spots. Here they are:

Frankfurt, Germany: The Hacker Brau, a small restaurant with big tables one block north of the central square called Konstabler Wache. Average prices run from 90 cents for liver dumplings with sauerkraut and potatoes plus salad to boiled beef and vegetables for $1.20. The service is first rate and the cooking is hausfrau German at its very best.

Berlin: The Koenigsberg Pilsner restaurant two blocks west of the intersection of the Kudamm and Joachaimthaler Strasse and the Mampe restaurant 40 yards south of the intersection. You don't have to count your pennies and it's best not to worry about calories.

●

Luxembourg City: The Commerce Cafe, on the square outside the Finance Ministry, where chefs work wonders with the lowly suasage and potato.

Geneva: You are quite likely to find the U.S. and Soviet ambassadors taking advantage of the inexpensive prix fixe ($2.50) lunches at Le Bearne near the Rhone River. It is one of Europe's finest restaurants at any price. Quenelles — a fluffy mixture of finely ground fish and eggwhites poached in a rich sauce — are the major attractions for diplomats, businessmen and students.

●

Belgrade: The commissars may be up in the ancient castle overlooking the Danube where food also is inexpensive (eat the grills) but the prettiest girls, the best music and wildest gypsy music are in the cafe under the arches of the Belgrade soccer stadium. Marshal Tito used to eat here. Again eat the grills and cheese dishes.

London: Luba's Bistro on Yeoman's Row off Brompton Road in the west of London. Pre-Bolshevik Russian food far better and cheaper than any fare offered today in Mother Russia. No wine was sold but you could pick up a half-bottle of good French Macon at the Bunch of Grapes pub on the corner for $1.

Copenhagen: Most any sidewalk cafe selling those marvellous open-faced "Dagwood" sandwiches, layers and layers of meats, cheeses, fish and other savory delights and full meals in themselves.

●

Growald said it is almost impossible to find a bad or expensive restaurant in rural France. Prices are higher in Paris and other major cities but, for the gourmet dishes offered by the famous restaurants, well worth while.

Generally, he said, skip hotel dining rooms, although there are some exceptions with epicurean food and reasonable prices. He recommended Vienna's Hotel Sacher where "the veal and chocolate cake (sacher torte) are the finest remnants of the Austro-Hungarian Empire" and Moscow's National Hotel where the "caviar, atmosphere and view of the Kremlin and Red Square make the staid Soviet capital almost glamorous."

●

A final word of advice from Growald:

"If there is a blue plate special, take it; chef's cook most what they cook best."

Citrus Fun Land

SANTA PAULA, Calif. — Want to pick your own orange or lemon from a Southern California citrus grove?

A citrus park, first of its kind, has been proposed for this Ventura County citrus town in order to permit this and other experiences for visitors in the orange and lemon country.

The citrus park would be a sort of Knott's Berry Farm operation but centred around citrus instead of berries. The proposal has been made by the Ventura County Economic Development Association.

SPIRIT OF MISSION IS AIM OF CONFERENCE

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — A nucleus of St. John's congregation here are in the middle of a human relations conference going on this weekend.

It started Friday evening and will wind up Sunday afternoon.

Idea of the conference discussions being led by the Rev. Gordon Walker of St. David's Cordova Bay, is to stimulate a spirit of Christian mission among the leaders of the congregation and its organizations.

Organizer is church committee member Brian Simmons.

Mr. Walker will preach at the morning services at St. John's.

Newly confirmed members of Trinity Lutheran Church, Duncan, are to be "initiated" Sunday into the congregation youth group.

The initiation is to take the form of a hike and picnic on Mount Sicker at Westholme.

Duncan's Lutheran pastor, Rev. Baldwin Camin, goes to Courtenay Monday to take part in the monthly conference of Vancouver Island clergy of the Missouri Synod.

He said: "It's a time for study, companionship and communion."

Members of Duncan Rotary Club are to parade to St. Peter's Church, Quamichan, Sunday morning.

Parish rector, Rev. Neil Robinson, is a Rotarian and chaplain of the Duncan club.

Laymen are taking over the pulpit at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Duncan, while the minister Rev. Ronald McMillan is on holiday during July.

United Church lay reader Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan will preach July 7. St. Andrew's layman Dr. Owen Gloster will occupy the pulpit July 14, and former church organist C. J. de Witt will preach July 21 and 28.

Duncan United Church congregation votes this Sunday on what time they would like to attend worship during July and August.

Ballot papers will be available and they can vote for 9:30 a.m., 10 a.m. or 11 a.m.

Normally the church holds services at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The annual Vancouver Island AOTS rally will be held Sunday at Camp Pringle, Shawnigan Lake.

Duncan AOTS club's annual fun fair is set for Thursday, June 27, in the grounds of Norm Carter's home on Dobson Road.

Canon H. J. Jerry-Cooper of St. Mary's, Brandon, Manitoba, is to spend July looking after the astoral interests of the congregation of St. John's, Duncan.

He will be holiday relief for Rev. Allan Kerr.

Plan Special School Class For Emotional

Children unable to attend school regularly because of emotional problems may soon be able to attend a special class.

The Victoria Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday to discuss the idea.

The association will also consider sponsoring a survey to determine the exact number of emotionally disturbed children in the community.

Tour Gas Plant

Members of the Institute of Power Engineers will tour the B.C. Hydro Gas Turbine generating plant at Chemainus on Tuesday.

The tour leaves Victoria 6:15 p.m. Tuesday.

'Feeling Of Music Important'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

What good is music?

The question was raised by Hudson Blake—founder of Victoria's Tape Recording Club—in a talk to Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street.

"Music cannot be valued by how much of it there is. It cannot be measured by length, volume or speed. Yet we derive great pleasure from it," Mr. Blake said.

"Every pause, every silence in the score is part of the whole, as the pause and the silence in our daily life is part of the divine plan for our well-being.

"Like the rhythm of life, music always moves forward, never backward. And it is part of religion itself. All religious ceremonies have involved music and rhythm, if only in the beat of a drum.

"There is music in the rustle of grass in a summer breeze, the crash of surf on our shores. And it is the music of God talking to us.

INSPIRATION

"Music surpasses race, time and religion. You may say the music of our teen-agers is not music to you. But it is music to them and, at their stage of life, there may be inspiration in its wild beat. . . .

"It is the feeling that music evokes within us that matters. Let us keep our thoughts in tune with the melody of the universe. Let us be part of that great harmony."

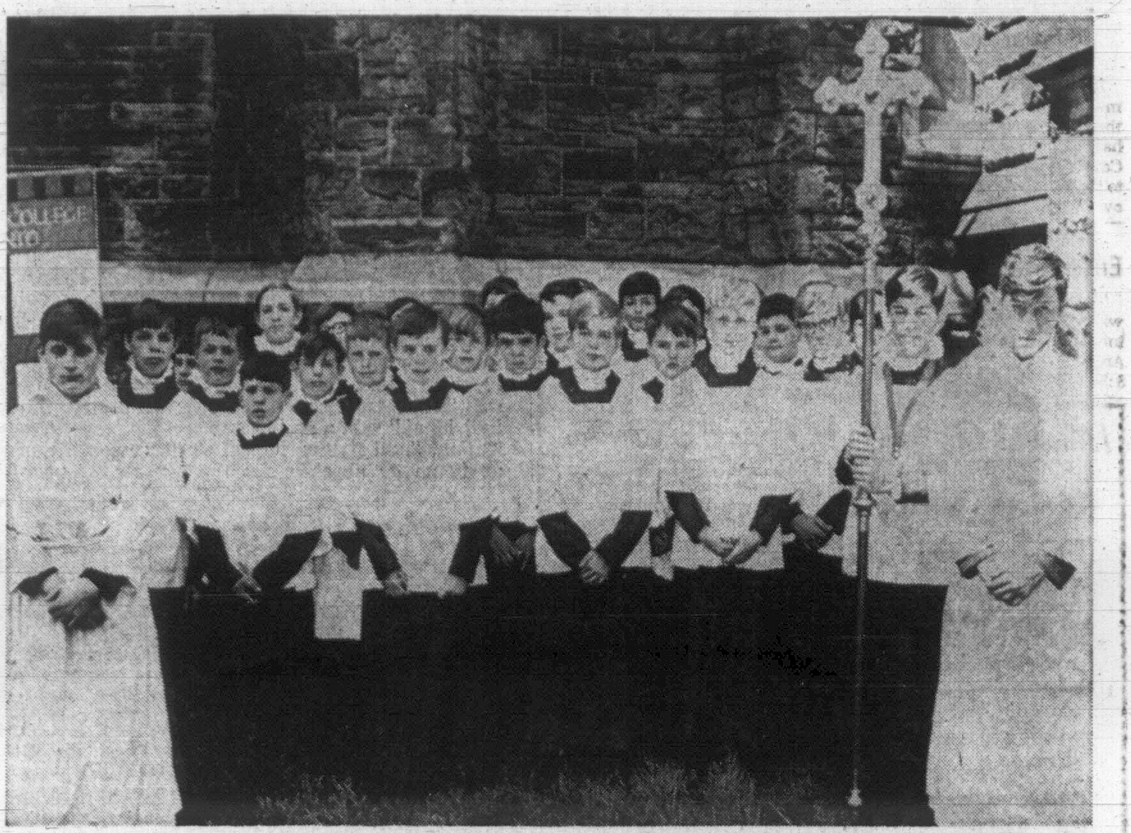
Charles Glauser, another speaker at the Truth Centre, quoted Shakespeare's phrase: "There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at its flood leads on to fortune."

Mr. Glauser said this phrase could be interpreted as: "There is a God in my affairs which I accept as the tide that leads on to fortune.

"It is the acceptance of this power which clears our consciousness of all negative thought and leads on to self-realization.

"I think of the tide as God. It is the power governing the whole operation of the universe."

Mr. Glauser said man has been taught to resist the tide instead of going with it.



CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL will play host next week to St. George's College Choir from Toronto. The 45 boy choristers will sing in the cathedral Wednesday at 8 p.m. They are paying their way on a tour of Western Canada and will be heard in Vancouver, Edmonton and Winnipeg. The choir has sung in oratorio with the Orpheus Choir and Toronto Symphony Orchestra and has appeared many times on TV and radio.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

St. David's to Honor Retiring Archbishop

Archbishop Harold Sexton will be honored at a public reception in the Anglican church of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, Sunday evening.

"This will be his last official visit as bishop of the diocese," says the vicar, Rev. H. Gordon Walker, "so we are taking this opportunity to express our appreciation and goodwill."

Mr. Walker said Archbishop Sexton is noted for his liberalizing influence on social customs and for advocating social reforms in church and state.

"He worked long and hard to have the church improve its extreme law concerning marriage and divorce."

At Sunday evening's confirmation service, Archbishop Sexton will dedicate a new altar table in memory of John and Helen Wilmot—the gift of their three daughters.

Mr. Wilmot died in 1951 at the age of 74; his wife in 1966 at the age of 90.

Choristers Honor Curtis, Frank Tupman

Ivor Curtis celebrated his 97th birthday Thursday night as guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Sanctuary Choir of Metropolitan United Church at Deep Cove Chalet.

Mr. Curtis, a former Times printer, sang in the choir until he was 89 — and played the carillon in the church tower until he was 94.

"I only stopped because I was afraid of falling down the stairs," he laughed.

"He is probably the oldest chorister in Canada," said Rev. Albert King, proposing a toast.

Mr. Curtis cut a large birthday cake and addressed the gathering.

From Bournemouth, England, he came to Victoria in 1919 and worked for Victoria Press until his retirement at the age of 84.

He joined the Metropolitan church choir in 1925.

Ivan Green made a presentation on behalf of the 55 choristers to their leader, Frank Tupman, who is leaving on a trip to England next week.

Entertainment was provided by Joyce Mair, Walter McConville and Dorothy and Richard Jones.

Saanich Silver Threads will hold a social for volunteers and members at their headquarters, Harriet and Lurline, Monday at 2 p.m.

There will be travel slides Tuesday at 2 p.m., and on Wednesday members will attend the weekly concert in the main centre at 1:30 p.m.

Committee Rejects Phase-Out

Should St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, be phased out of existence?

"No," says the church committee. "St. David's is the only Anglican church serving this growing community. And its vicar (Rev. H. Gordon Walker) serves as chaplain at Wilkinson Road Institute."

The committee was replying to a suggestion made by Brian Gingell at the recent Anglican synod in Victoria that 10 Anglican churches in the Greater Victoria area should be phased out as "uneconomical."

Mr. Gingell said many Victoria churches were established in the "horse and buggy" era, when transportation to more central churches was much more difficult than today.

In a resolution, St. David's church committee said:

"If it is the people's wish, St. David's can be made fully sustaining and can relinquish the Anglican Synod's yearly grant ($1,506 in 1968).

"St. David's will be maintained by its community, provided it is of sufficient value; serves its whole community well; and co-operates with other groups in the community."

St. David's maintains a close liaison with the neighboring United Church and will join its congregation at a family basket picnic at George Pringle Camp, Shawnigan Lake, Sunday June 23.

'MAN HAS WRITTEN GOD'S OBITUARY'

At the Church of Our Lord Sunday, Bishop Denys Rankilor will tell how the simple application of Christ's teaching to modern complex problems provides practical answers and solutions which will stand the acid test of time.

"We can still get more mileage out of the Sermon on the Mount than all the high octane fuel poured into our political and educational tanks by experts have yet given us.

"As a world society, we have a limited vision of poverty and an unlimited poverty of vision as to where we are actually heading.

"There is plenty of strong leadership in our modern world, but it is strong moral leadership the world is looking for, and that must come from the church," Bishop Rankilor said.

"But the difficulty with so many is the inability to decipher God's handwriting in the old Book, even though that handwriting be on the wall of human history.

"Small wonder modern man has written God's obituary."

MOD APPROACH to religion is adopted by The Contemporaries, a group of young musicians who will be heard in Victoria Salvation Army Citadel, 757 Pandora Avenue, Monday, June 24, at 8 p.m. "Our objective is to put across musically the significance of Christianity in a modern world," says director Tom Keene. Based in southern California, The Contemporaries will have travelled more than 40,000 miles through 30 United States by the end of this summer.

Hallowed Walls to Rock

LONDON (Reuters) — Pop music groups will pound out their frenzied rhythms in the hallowed interior of St. Paul's Cathedral as requiems give way to rock n' roll and the blues take over from Bach.

Gaudily-clad youthful musicians will shatter three centuries of religious serenity with the groovy sounds of 1968 among the monuments of England's great heroes.

Word is spreading around London's teen-age clubs that from October until Christmas the stately cathedral, masterpiece of architect Sir Christopher Wren, will be part of the pop-scene.

The man spreading the word is the dean of St. Paul's, Very Rev. Martin Sullivan. He wants to get young people involved in the church.

"I think young people are saying things we want to hear and I think we ought to tell them we are willing to listen," the dean said.

DR. NOEL

Well-Known Cleric Retires This Month

A ministry which began as a lay catechist on the coast of Labrador in 1921, will end at the Anglican church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay, on Sunday, June 30.

Rev. Dr. N. S. Noel, rector of St. George's since 1963, will retire from the ministry on that date.

Dr. Noel studied for ordination at Queen's College, St. John's, Newfoundland, and served the church in his native province until 1944.

Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia then invited him to become rector of St. Mark's, Victoria. In 1946 he became rector of St. Paul's, Nanaimo, and rural dean of the Comox presbytery, embracing the northern half of Vancouver Island.

Dr. Noel was appointed a canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, in 1947.

In 1952, at the invitation of Bishop Michael Coleman, he became rector of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, Regina, and dean of the diocese of Qu'Appelle.

St. John's College, Winnipeg, and St. Chad's College, Regina, conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on Dr. Noel in 1954.

From 1958 to 1963, he was Dean of Calgary. Archbishop Sexton then invited him to become rector of St. George's, Victoria.

He was a member of the general synod from 1949 to 1962.

Dr. Noel's noon day Lenten preaching, as well as his ministry as a missioner and conductor of retreats, has created for him a wide circle of friends.

Pope Seeks Dialogue

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — The Chinese Christian "Church of Silence" lies buried by 19 years of Communist hostility and "cultural revolution," but the Vatican thinks there are new reasons for hoping it will be restored.

Christianity in China has been called the "Church of Silence" — a term used here for a suppressed church — ever since the Communists took over the country in 1949.

At that time, China, the world's most populous country, had 3,295,688 Roman Catholics, 96 bishops, 5,700 priests and 5,900 nuns.

Today, there is no concrete information or figure on the church in China and its missionaries have been expelled. But one, Bishop James E. Walsh, a 77-year-old American, remains in prision.

Pope Paul has publicly expressed his wish for a dialogue with Chinese leaders.

The international Fides service, an agency of the Vatican's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith which deals with missionary work, has reported that the Chinese Communists originally hesitated to attack Roman Catholics directly.

START SUPPRESSION

Later, they developed a policy of systematic suppression of all Christians, particularly through the formation of an autonomous church front called the Patriotic Association, which was even joined by some priests.

The cultural revolution begun in China in 1966 was a hard blow to the church, says Fides. The Franciscan missionary Sisters of Mary were expelled in August, 1966, virtually ending all missionary work in China.

Vatican officials, however, are expressing the hope that China's gradual emergence from diplomatic and trade isolation and its increasing contacts with other countries will influence its leaders to take a more open attitude, even on religion.

Another reason for hope here is the wave of renewal sweeping the Roman Catholic Church since the 1962-65 Vatican ecumenical council.

One of the reasons for the only limited success of missionaries in China was that the church had been too rigid in preserving its Western and Latin tradition, Vatican officials said.

The Vatican council put an end to that rigidity and the church is free to adapt itself to different cultures and traditions. The Chinese language now can be used at mass along with Chinese music and vestments.

Printers Strike

ROME (AP) — Italians got their news from radio and television Friday after printing unions went on strike for 48 hours, shutting down all newspapers. The unions ordered the walkout after a breakdown in contract negotiations. The main issues is job security for workers affected by future automation.

Anti-Violence Action Mounts on Wide Front

NEW YORK (AP) — A cowboy actor hung up his guns. A newspaper discontinued two comic strips with a high biff-bam content. A re-enactment of a gangster massacre was cancelled in British Columbia.

These were some of the reactions throughout North America this week against guns and violence in the wake of the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Rex Allen, a Hollywood and rodeo star in the business 17 years, told an audience at the 27th annual Midwest Horse Show in Springfield, Ill., he was convinced Western movie and television performers had given guns too good an image.

Removing his own, Allen declared: "I will never put them on again in my life."

The Greensboro, N.C., Daily News notified its readers it would no longer publish Dick Tracy and Little Orphan Annie. The newspaper cited what it described as the "constant exploitation and advocacy of violence" in the two strips.

ALLEN
. . . hangs up guns

The re-enactment of the 1929 St. Valentine's Day gangster massacre, scheluled for a shopping centre show in Burnaby, was called off by promoter George Patey. He said he bowed to phoned objections by citizens who felt it would glamorize violence.

HIDES TOY GUNS

A Dayton store chain with outlets in six western U.S. states put its toy guns under the counter and said they would be produced only upon parental request.

Two of the four biggest department stores in Minneapolis reported they had stopped selling toys keyed to violence. The other two said they planned to follow suit.

In Richland, Wash., Donnie Einan, 7, suggested to his father, Duane, that both turn in their guns to the police. The elder Einan gave up a .32-calibre revolver. Donnie parted with an air gun and four toy pistols.

Law enforcement officers at Tampa, Fla., destroyed 300 guns seized in various criminal investigations by dropping them into a vat of acid. Previous practice was to sell such weapons at public auction.

A California student group which had campaigned for Senator Kennedy disbanded, reformed as The Kennedy Action Corps and began a door-to-door campaign for signatures on a petition calling for stiffer gun control laws.

The Jordan Marsh Co., and Raymond's, two department store chains with headquarters in Boston, discontinued sales of guns and ammunition.

In Honolulu, Assistant Police Chief Fred Paoa issued a plea eight days ago for residents to turn in unwanted guns. Since then, 105 handguns and 34 rifles, along with thousands of rounds of ammunition, have been turned in.

SENATORS SWITCH STAND ON GUNS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six senators who opposed a ban on mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns only a month ago now favor it.

The switch in position by the six became known Friday when the administration bill introduced Wednesday was printed and with it the names of 29 Senate sponsors.

The list included Senators Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.), Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.), William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.), Edmund S. Muskie (Dem. Me.), and A. S. Monroney (Dem. Okla.)—all of whom voted in May against an amendment to ban sale of long guns through the mail.

The amendment failed and the gun control legislation that was finally adopted—as part of the omnibus anti-crime bill—governs only mail order sales of pistols and revolvers.

The new administration bill represents another attempt to bring rifles and shotguns under the same regulation. It also would prohibit over-the-counter sales of such weapons to persons under 18 or to non-residents of the state in which the seller does business.

Cell Acid Control May Govern Life

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Instant knowledge, carbon-copy people and selections by parents of their unborn child's coloring may one day be facts of life, three doctors agreed Friday.

Dr. S. C. Sung, associate professor of neurological research, University of British Columbia, and Dr. M. R. V. Murphy and A. D. Bharucha of the department of biochemistry at Laval University, Montreal, said in an interview the substance DNA may put science on the brink of a whole new world of possibilities.

DNA is the short form of deoxyribonucleic acid, present in the nucleus of all living cells. It is often termed the heredity molecule.

Many scientists believe, that in different quantities and combinations, it may be responsible for body characteristics, behavior and possible intelligence.

The three doctors, interviewed at a meeting of the Canadian Federation of Biological Societies, said brown skin and white skin is apparently due to differences in the particular parts of DNA present in all cells.

Seven Days More Silence

A young American who refused to defend himself against a vagrancy charge has been jailed for seven days.

Michael White was charged after he ate breakfast in the Empress Hotel June 11 and then told the waitress he had no money.

"I respect your right to silence," commented Magistrate Ostler, "but you must realize when you come into another country you must respect the law of that country."

Nothing to Fear

CALGARY (CP)—Man should not fear automation because machines are only an extension of man and a tribute to his creativity, Jean Le Moyne, Canadian author and philosopher, said Thursday. He made the comment in an interview while attending the convention of the Learned Society of Canada.

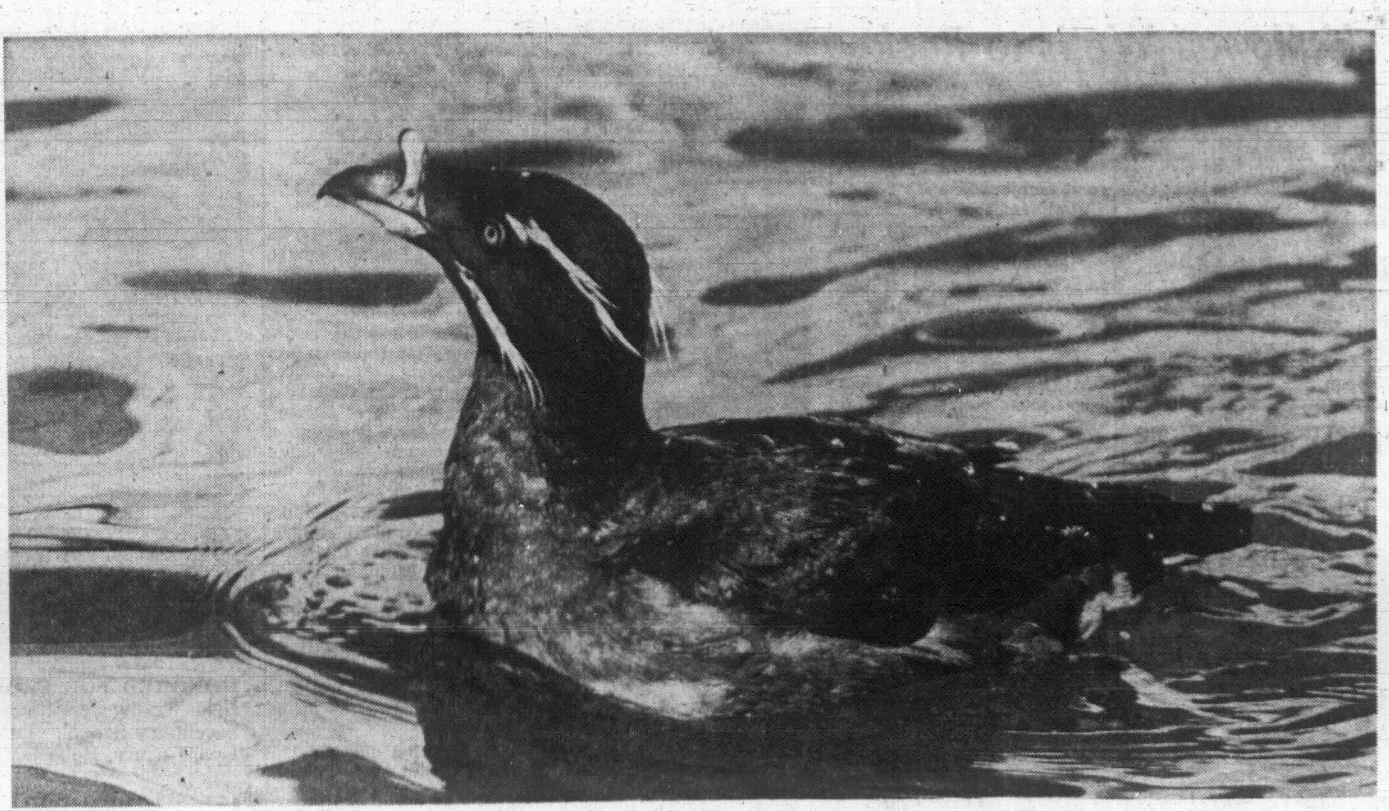
Tufted Puffins are found in all parts of North Pacific; are particularly common on offshore islands of British Columbia. A few nest in Gulf Islands.



Name of the Rhinoceros Auklet comes from the "rhine" on upper bill.

Our West Coast Sea Bird Islands Treasury of Sound, Smell, Color

Gulls squawk, cormorants croak, guillemots whine and puffins growl. Such are the dubious sounds of welcome as one approaches a sea bird colony in British Columbia.

Article and Photos

By Dave Hancock

Island View Wildlife Research Centre, Saanichton

More disconcerting than the deafening bird sounds of alarm, fright and aggression, are the aerial attacks by the gulls. One after another, the attackers make their raucous dive-bombing swoop, as the intruders carefully foot their way between the crouched chicks and nests cradling browny-green mottled eggs.

Will the gulls strike? The thought of their 3 to 4-inch long sabre bills raking across one's skull is not pleasant. They come close, but veer sharply away just before making contact. The intruder's apprehension gives way to confidence. About this time, he decides to ignore the white vigilante and gets abruptly clouted across the back of the head with a forceful wing butt.

Isolation

Sea bird colonies are located up both coasts of our continent — wherever isolation offers the birds protection from land predators. My wife Lyn and I return to some of them yearly to study the many birds' habits. Usually the islands are small, storm-swept and treeless. They are often no more than barren rocks with grass eking out a precarious hold in the crevices against the wind's force.

Our favorite island is Triangle Island, situated 50 miles off the northern tip of Vancouver Island. This massive dome projects 760 feet up into the often mist and fog-filled sky. Its large size offers many opportunities for life.

Here we are able to carefully explore the intricate web of life of the dozens of species of birds that surround us at all times.

However, people don't really belong on a breeding rookery. In addition to the inevitable damage of trodden eggs or crushed young, the greatest hazard to the nesting birds is indirect. As the gulls and cormorants are forced from their nests by the human intruder's presence, the ever-alert crows quickly move in to abscond with the unguarded eggs or tiny downy chicks.

Several hundred eggs and young may be lost in a few minutes if intruders are not cautious and some will be lost no matter how careful the investigator.

Death arises in other ways also. When a young gull chick is disturbed it runs away from its nesting area. Once displaced from its own territory, a young gull's chances of survival are small. Adults usually kill all chicks in their territory other than their own.

Preserves

Because of the unintentional destruction that human disturbance can have on a rookery, these islands are usually designated by the wildlife authorities as game preserves and access is prohibited except under permit.

If the intruder cautiously conceals himself in a blind, the colony quickly settles down to a bustle of normal activity. The parent gulls settle on their territory. Their young squeaker suddenly emerges from a tiny rock crevice where he had been crouching motionless and perfectly camouflaged. The female gull bows her head, hunches her neck, and regurgitates some partly digested fish which the young greedily takes from her throat.

The ominous looking black cormorants are also returning to their nests on the cliff. With a rush of wings, and a few hoarse croaks, a large double-crested cormorant flops onto her nest. The naked black-skinned nestlings start to struggle as soon as the nest is shaken. Immediately, the parent stands over them to relieve their tiny prostrate bodies from the blistering sun. A few drops of water from the adult's feathers stimulate the helpless young to lift their large heads. A few seconds of wobbling at the end of a long feeble neck and all heads flop down again.

Sixty yards down the cliff, the smaller Pelagic cormorants sit contentedly on their eggs with their throat or gular pouches panting. The only disruption occurs when a bird arrives back at the nest to find a neighbour pilfering some of its nest material. A few head lunges and grabs at another neighbour's nest to try and make up the loss of material, and peace again prevails—for another second or two.

Overhead, a glaucous winged gull dive-bombs a tufted puffin returning to its burrow, with a beak full of tiny herring—all neatly dangling by their heads in the powerful bill. The gaudy puffin does a quick sideslip using its big red feet as rudders to evade the raiding gull and flies headlong into the safety of the nesting burrow. The bird waddles four feet along an excreta moistened burrow to a cavity where her single downy chick awaits its dinner.

Happenings

All along the grassy slopes social gatherings of billing and growling puffins display their beautiful breeding colors.

For 40 days, junior's food requirements keep the parent puffins busy fishing from dawn to dusk. Then when most of its warm black down has been replaced by feathers his parents desert him. By this time summer is waning and the gaudy red bill sheath and golden head plumes of the adults are sluffing off and moulting out. After a week or ten days of living off his fat reserves, junior leaves his tunnel home.

Farewell

Under cover of darkness, he works his way down the grassy slopes to the cliff face and launches himself towards the infinite sea. By dawn he is several miles from land and the dangers of predacious gulls. Without parental care, he learns to swim, fly, and hunt his own fish.

Just above the tide line, a group of pigeon guillemots sun themselves on the rocks between feeding trips to their burrows or rock crevice nests. Their bright red feet contrast with their sleek black and white breeding plumage.

Our search of the rocks reveals a tiny but pugnacious little black fluff ball. Returning from the sea with a bright green and still wriggling blenny in its bill, a parent flew by into a crevice just over our heads. Faint squawks were heard as the two youngsters fought for the single fish. The parents quickly emerged and returned to sea for another load.

Our presence in the rocks flushes a pair of raucous Oyster Catchers whose long chisel-shaped red bills are used to pry open shell fish.

Wingers

The puffins and guillemots belong to a large family of birds known as alcids or the diving sea birds. These birds are fish or plankton feeders and swim underwater using their wings.

Murres, the penguins of the northern hemisphere, belong to this family as do the smaller murrelets and auklets.

These latter species only fly to and from the seclusion and protection of their nesting burrows under the cover of darkness.

Another nocturnal species is the diminutive sea swallow or petrel. These burrow nesters are one of the few representatives of the Albatross and Shearwater group that nest in the northern hemisphere. The tiny burrows are so narrow and twisted that to see the delicately grass-lined nest cavity, it is necessary to excavate the tunnel.

Bombs Away

The delicate adults have little means of defence although they have the unpleasant habit of forcefully disgorging the half-digested crop contents when disturbed. This oily plankton mass can be accurately directed several feet and certainly serves to deter most humans.

Only a single egg is laid and is incubated by both parents, each adult sitting for four to six days before being relieved. The brown little chicks are very slow growing and remain in the nest about 70 days before they venture off into the world on their own.

A sea bird colony is a beautifully complex structure. Generally isolated from destructive mammalian predatory, except man, birds of many species and diversified requirements live together by an intricate web of conflicts and mutually beneficial interaction.

The closeness of the nesting gulls necessitates that they compete with each other for mates, space and nest material, yet their combined mobbing behavior can effectively reduce predation and help drive away raiding mammalian and avian predators that would not be possible if they nested singly, As bountiful as the sea may be, there is a limit to the food available to any species.

Similarly each species of birds requires a slightly different type of habitat in which to nest.

Each His Own

The cormorant species select cliffs with a certain slope and ledge structure; the gulls, the level grassy areas between rocks; the puffins, the soiled and grassed areas into which to burrow; the guillemots, the rocky crevices just above the high tide; the oyster catchers, the open rocks just out of wave reach, and so on.

Each species may be limited by the availability of food, suitable nesting space and competition with other species or members of its own species.

If the puffins can't dig a deep enough burrow the gulls will get its eggs or young. If the gulls don't guard their own eggs, other gulls or crows will steal them. If the cormorants decide to nest too close together, they may spend so much of their time haggling over who has stolen whose nest material that eggs and chicks may die from improper care. The numbers and distribution of each species is dependent upon the numbers and distribution of many other species.

Loss-Gain

In nature's ever-changing yet beautifully balanced system, the loss of one's individual eggs or young usually benefits another individual. The gull chick benefits by the egg its parent stole from the quarrelling cormorants. And the cormorant which now deserts its empty nest perhaps lessen the disturbance to neighboring cormorants so that there is a greater chance that one of the previously too-close neighbors will be successful.

There is another approach to understanding the intricate inter-relationships of one animal living on another to the mutual benefit of both species, although perhaps not both individuals—at least, not to the benefit of the individual who was eaten.

The physical world is made up of a limited or finite amount of material. There is only so much gold, nitrogen, oxygen, etc., in the entire world. Living organisms are, however, constantly using certain elements.

Nature's Way

For life to be perpetual, there must be a continuous exchange and circulation of these elements from one individual to another — they cannot be all tied up indefinitely. Only plants in the presence of sunlight can concert the basic elements into organic materials. Therefore, unless an animal feeds on plants for these required nutrients, he must feed on other animals that in turn feed on plants, and these animals' bodies must in turn disintegrate to again nourish more plants.

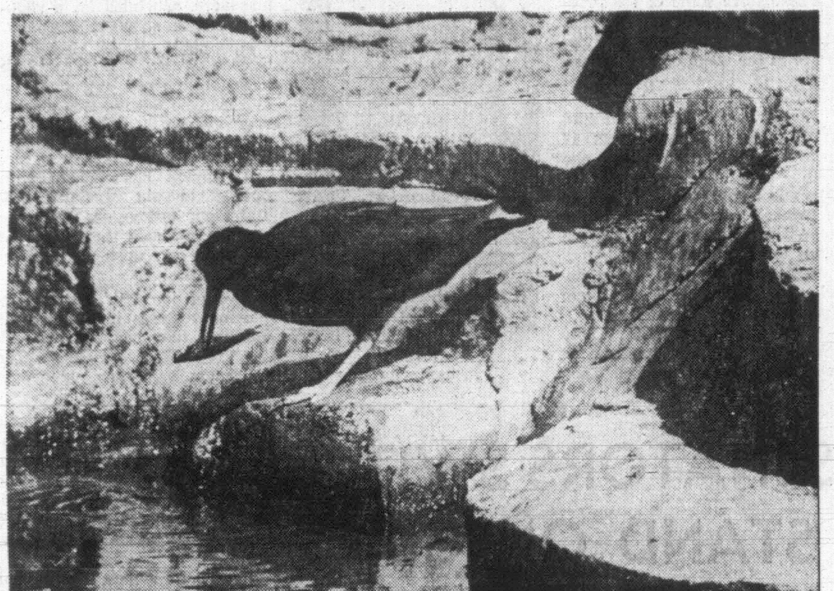
Let us look at a species near the top of a food chain. The peregrine falcon can neither live on vegetation (phyto-plankton) nor the animal plankton, nor the shrimps which eat the former lower rung species. However, our British Columbia coastal peregrines lives nearly exclusively off Cassins Auklets, and the ancient currelets. And these latter species live either directly on the shrimp or on small fishes that live on the shrimps.

Life-Sun

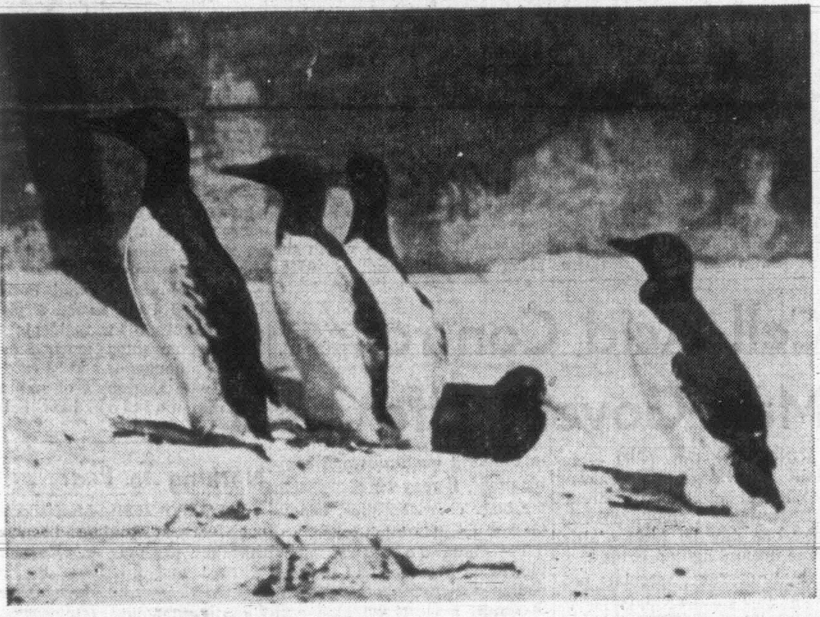
Therefore, the peregrine is able to utilize by a two or three-step chain, the sun's energy as captured by the phyto-plankton. And in turn, when the falcon dies, its body disintegrates and washes into the sea to renourish the plants.

Thus the complexity of nature is based on the assumption that animals can and do regularly produce more offspring than is necessary not only to maintain the species farther up the food chain but also to maintain the basic nutrients necessary to produce the primary plants.

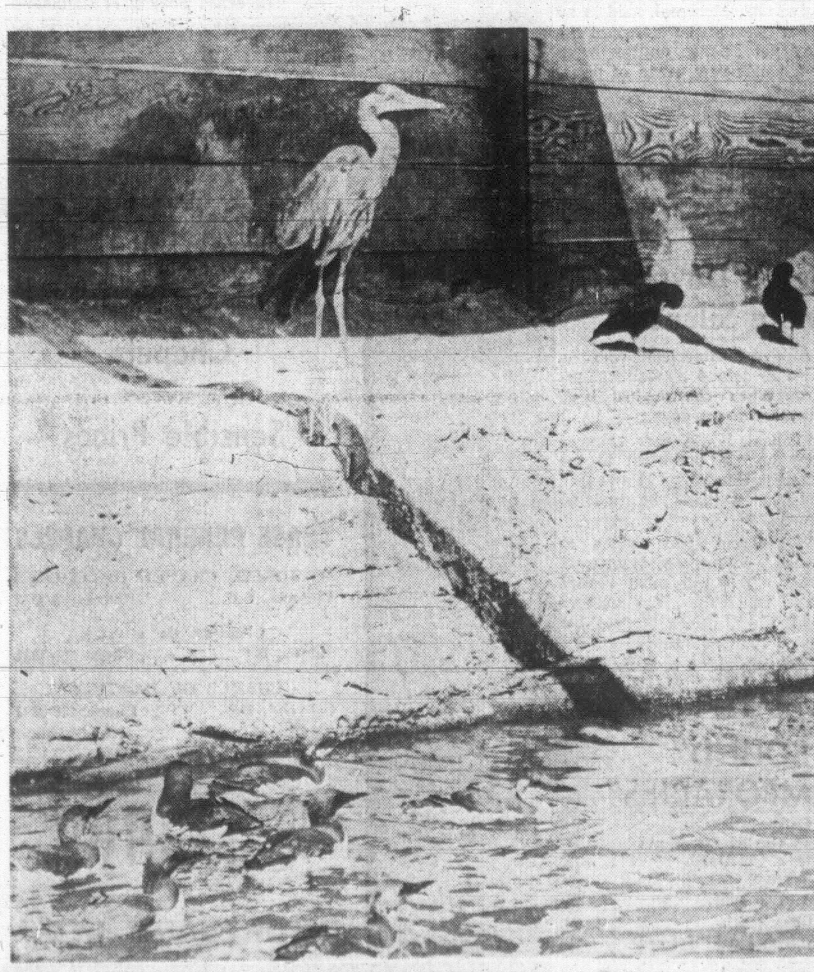
The complexities of nature's scheme; the intricate patterns and inter-relationship between conversion of the sun's energy into organic material by plants, the succession of food levels; and the eventual degredation of complex life again into simpler components seems to come into greater focus and in turn, lend understanding to the wierdly beautiful and seemingly chaotic profusion of sounds, smells, and sights, that greets one on a sea bird island.



Large shore bird is the Oystercatcher, which is usually found probing intertidal areas for worms and shellfish.



A Penguin-like bird is the Pacific Murre, which nest only on Triangle Island in British Columbia (at northwest tip of Vancouver Island). They are colonial birds — they like "togetherness".



A group of west coast sea birds in aviary is overshadowed by Great Blue Heron.

HELPS SCOTLAND YARD

Toronto Finds Buggy Murder Lead

TORONTO (CP) — A man held in Toronto in connection with the 1967 gangland killing of James (Scotch Jack) Buggy has been "rather helpful," a Scotland Yard spokesman said Friday night.

The spokesman, an aide to Det.-Supt. Arthur Butler, said the man, in custody since Monday, is definitely not a suspect in the slaying but has "pushed us along a little in our inquiries."

Buggy's bullet-riddled body was found tied up in wire June 6, 1967, in the English Channel near Seaford, Sussex.

Det.-Supt. Butler, in charge of the case since the body was found, came to Toronto Thursday on a tip from city police who picked up the unidentified man, a former resident of London.

Deputy Chief Bernard Simmonds of Toronto said the man "may be released soon." He said no charges have been laid.

LINK WITH ROBBERY

Earlier. Police Chief James Mackey said the inspector came to Toronto "to ask questions and get answers we feel couldn't be handled by correspondence."

Buggy's murder has been linked to the Great Train Robbery of 1963.

Although there has been no direct connection between Buggy and the Great Train Robbery, it has been reported that he ran across information about it and was demanding a cut of the loot when he was murdered.

In the Aug. 8, 1963, robbery, a well-drilled team stopped the Glasgow-to-London Royal Mail train and stole $7,890,000 in bank notes.

About $6,900,000 was never recovered, although 15 men were arrested and convicted.

Buggy was born in Nebraska but went back to Britain with his British emigrant parents.

In 1960, he was sentenced to nine years in prison for shooting a man outside a night club but was freed in 1966. Up to the time of his death he had lived in apparent wealth, driving a new sports car and wearing expensive clothes.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

'Dream' Lawn Costly

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

Judging from questions received by this column over the past 18 years, a lawn is a source of continual worry to many gardeners. We all have dreams of a beautiful green sward that will enhance the house and surrounding plantings, but few of us realize what is needed to turn such dreams into reality.

A problem lawn can always be traced back to improper preparation of the area before seed was sown. This "beforehand" preparation means more to a lawn than anything that can be done after the grass starts growing.

NEED KNOWLEDGE

Preparing and seeding lawns is a specialized branch of horticulture involving a vast knowledge of soils, including type, fertility and drainage, and of grass species and conditions under which each will thrive.

We home gardeners have to face up to the fact that a "dream" lawn, properly installed, is going to cost us from 200 to 300 dollars for a 60-foot frontage.

At present we think such a figure is exhorbitant, and we either attempt the job ourselves or pay someone 25 dollars to rake the surface reasonably level and scatter the seed.

During the next ten years we spend the rest of the 300 dollars on products we hope will correct troubles which are the direct result of improper preparation of the lawn area.

One question that frequently turns up, usually as a result of friendly argument between two gardeners, is whether lawn clippings should be allowed to remain on the lawn or be removed to the compost heap to rot down.

CONDITIONS DIFFER

No two gardeners will agree on the answer because, as with so many other gardening problems, there are varying conditions that have to be considered.

In the case of a beautiful lawn composed of truly fine grasses, that is regularly dressed each spring, clippings should be removed.

On coarser grasses used in home garden lawns, a deposit of clippings may, or may not, be beneficial, for several factors need consideration before a decision can be made.

First is the soil itself. A soil that holds moisture well could become too wet with a quantity of clippings on the surface. The result of too much moisture is reduced root action.

On a gravelly, well drained soil that tends to dry out quickly, clippings would act as a mulch around grass plants, reducing soil temperature and surface evaporation of moisture.

Grasses used for play areas are usually quite coarse and their matted clippings tend to lie on the surface rather than drop down between to soil level, resulting in yellow patches.

COMPOST HEAP

Another factor to be considered is the slow decomposition of clippings, a process involving several fungi. Should the quantity of clippings become too matted we have a miniature compost heap which could spread its decomposing activities to the living grasses.

Frequency of cutting the lawn must also enter the picture. If the gardener has time to cut the lawn two or three times a week, as all good lawns should be cut, taking off only one-sixteenth to one-eighth of an inch, these fine clippings need not be removed.

Most of us look upon lawn cutting as a necessary evil to be put off as long as possible. The results of this attitude are causes of many lawn troubles.

Incorrect and infrequent cutting can negate the good effects of regular watering and feeding.

When our work schedule limits us to one cutting a week, entailing removal of three-quarters to one-inch of top growth, clippings should be collected and composted.

Final factors to consider are type of mower, condition of mower, and amount of moisture on the grass at cutting time.

BURNS GRASS

The scissor action of reel-type mowers scatters clippings over a wide area when grass leaves are reasonably dry. The direction of rotation of the reel throws clippings into the air and allows each piece to fall separately.

One-eighth inch pieces of grass scattered thinly in this manner can be beneficial to a lawn.

The action of a rotary mower tends to collect clippings into masses and eject them in balls. Especially is this true if moisture is on the grass leaves.

These balls generate considerable heat and burn the living grass beneath them. Therefore all clippings from a rotary mower are best removed from the lawn surface.

As to condition of the mower, the majority of home garden mowers are far from sharp, in fact they are definitely blunt!

The professional grass cutter will touch up the blades of his machine every few hours of cutting. Very few home gardeners have learned the art of touching-up lawnmower blades, although it should be known by everyone using a mower.

Lacking this knowledge, the home gardener can do more harm than good if he attempts sharpening his machine.

He must therefore be prepared to have it done professionally once a month if his lawn is to be kept in good condition.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Lilacs and early peonies should not be neglected after flowering. Keep them well watered throughout summer.

See that mulches around shrubs are damp beneath, or their purpose is defeated.

If narcissus leaves have wilted they may be knotted until completely matured, then lift bulbs for summer storage. This should be done every third year.

Asparagus cutting should cease about June 20, or, limited to one week for each foot of growth made last year.

Water raspberry rows well and mulch lightly with grass clippings to prevent drying of soil. Scatter the clippings, don't dump in heaps.

Sow broccoli for fall use, and rutabagas. Also more bush beans. Sow lettuce where sheltered from hottest sun for summer crop.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. Last spring I planted a Koster's Blue Spruce. All the leaves (needles) have died during the past few months, only the tips of branches have new growth. Is this a natural occurence or is something wrong with the tree? L. B. McK., Victoria.

A. This could be a result of insufficient water last year when the tree should have been making new roots.

Or perhap peat moss (if used) was not thoroughly dampened before being incorporated with the soil at planting time.

When used dry, the peat moss will extract moisture from the rootball of the plant as well as from surrounding soil, creating a drought condition for the plant.

Q. I have a large bulb of hippeastrum (most of my friends call it amaryllis) which has almost died down now. Do I repot now, or in fall after its rest period? Mrs. J. Mc. B., Victoria.

A. The indoor bulbs are rightly hippeastrum. The only true amaryllis is an outdoor hardy garden bulb. Don't repot more often than once in three years, and then do it in fall before growth starts.

'Vietnam Peace Would See Economic Upsurge'

EATON
. . . wonderful

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born multi-millionaire industrialist and world traveller, says the United States will be kept busy in the burst of economic activity which he predicts will follow the Vietnam War.

"It will be wonderful for us because all over the world people are waiting to expand in all areas," Eaton said in an interview Friday. "We are the leading nation. We are going to be in demand. We'll find opportunities in every section of the world. This can't be based on military operations like the one in Vietnam."

Eaton, a native of Pugwash, N.S., was back in his office after several weeks of travel in Cuba, West Germany, Yugoslavia, Romania, Poland, the Soviet Union, France and Great Britain.

Describing the United States as a "country much subjected to mass psychology," Eaton said that "peace of the world depends on the journalists in the next month."

"It is a question of public opinion and the question of whether public opinion will sanction the stopping of the bombing of North Vietnam."

Eaton, 84, said some congressmen told him privately three years ago that it was a mistake to continue the war, but that the American public demanded it.

"The Soviets have a sincere desire for peace," Eaton said. "The U.S. will have to make concessions. The first concession is to stop the bombing. . . . The great question is how to find peace the quickest way, and the one with the lowest cost to ourselves in prestige."

MAY REFORM CHAMBER

Lords and Commons Heading For Showdown Over Rhodesia

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Lords and the Labor government appear to be heading for a confrontation over Rhodesia that could end in reform of the upper chamber.

Conservative peers, who outnumber government supporters in the Lords, announced Friday they will oppose tougher sanctions on the breakaway British colony called for by the United Nations.

Conservative leaders in the Lords said they plan to call up their full strength to vote down the sanctions. Many lords seldom bother to attend sessions in the upper house.

The peers cannot block the sanctions, but could put the government to the embarrassment of issuing a new temporary order every four weeks as long as they oppose the legislation.

Left-wing critics were putting strong pressure on the government to end the remaining powers of the peers to block legislation.

WELCOME SHOWDOWN?

Observers say the government might welcome a constitutional showdown over Rhodesia with the Lords as a way of winning back the loyalty of supporters who stayed away from the polls in droves in recent parliamentary byelections and local elections.

A defeat in the Lords would be a serious loss of prestige for the government at the United Nations, where British ambassador Lord Caradon worked hard to persuade Afro-Asian delegates not to demand the use of force against the white minority government of Rhodesia.

The Conservatives also plan to oppose the sanction in the Commons, but Labor has a substantial majority there.

The Commons vote will be Monday and the vote in the Lords the next day.

Formal approval of the upper house still is needed to pass legislation.

But many left-wing Labor supporters would like to see the House of Lords abolished outright.

Beach Free of Oil After Ship Disaster

ELEUTHERA, Bahamas — The Bahamas government has announced that oil contamination of the island's famous beaches has been averted. Some oil escaped during the refloating of the tanker, the General Colocotronis, but it is being controlled by chemical dispersants.

The vessel was refloated on April 29. After hull examination the salvage master decided there was no hope of saving the tanker and the towing process began early in the morning of Apr[illegible]0.

The sinking was [illegible]ted to be about 35 mil[illegible]n the point where the [illegible]p ran aground.

Since the 12-year-old, $6 million tanker crunched on the reef March 7, she had presented a grave threat to the island's beaches. When she struck the reef, she was carrying some 120,000 barrels of crude oil—which might have polluted the island's sandy beaches had it spilled out. But it didn't. Thanks to the meticulously planned and executed salvage operation, some 82,000 barrels of her oil were transferred over a period of 10 days to another tanker, the "Esso Margarita."

IMPORTANCE, PRIVACY

Put Little of 'You' Into Standard Home

By PAULINE GRAVES

If you are looking for a new house, the greatest bargain is a development house.

With workman crews constantly busy and large purchases of land, the builder can offer extras that you could not dupli.ate at the same price when building an individual home.

And with the variety of styles, you usually can find a house well suited to your family.

But, it is not you.

And the same exterior is repeated at intervals throughout the development. You can make changes though and they need not be extensive to distinguish your home from its neighbors.

OWN TOUCHES

Shown here is a house to which the owner added his own touches. The large wall at the right was the major structure involved, placed perpendicular to the front wall, giving importance as well as privacy to the entrance.

Two by twelve-inch planks, painted black to contrast with the white concrete, and installed over the existing steps, emphasize horizontal lines in contract to the vertical siding.

The strong horizontal design also brings the house closer to the ground, an optical illusion to be sure but the effect is there.

A curved post by the door balances the weight of the wall opposite and creates a feeling of protection at the entry. These three ideas alone stamped the house as the owners' own.

Mail Boat Welcomed

Louisiana welcomed the first mail boat on the Mississippi River in 1819, when The Post Boy arrived in New Orelans, operating between that city and Louisville, Ky., according to the Louisiana Tourist Commission.

Far be it from me to suggest that our families don't love us wedded and childed chaps all the year round. But tomorrow, the pace is stepped up, and we become Dear Old Dads.

Since most of us tend to blend with our backgrounds, we find it always just a trifle startling to be hauled into the Father's Day spotlight.

Naturally, we like getting presents, and I can take breakfast in bed anytime my dear ones choose to force it on me. Somehow, though, Father's Day retains a self-conscious, almost theatrical quality that is much less obvious on Mother's Day. Freud may have explained that fact, but I can't.

I only know that most Dear Old Dads I've hobnobbed with are more relieved than otherwise when the day wanes and they're allowed to sidle crabwise back into their natural environment.

("Well, it's nice sitting here in my slippers and all, but if nobody minds, I'd kind of like to get on with waxing the car.")

But don't think he doesn't appreciate all you've done for him. It's just that he's a victim of a nice, schmaltzy bit of sentiment which has somehow never become an integral part of his busy year.

★

The Encyclopedia Britannica gives a paragraph and a heading to Mother's Day, but makes only the briefest of reference to its male counterpart under the catch-all title, "Holidays."

This it really isn't. Still, the merchants like it—although a florist tells me it doesn't do much for his business—and they offer a bewildering variety of enticements.

Let's take a look-see.

Here's one that reads, "Give Dad a New Mug for Father's Day," an exhortation that struck me as less than kind until I noticed it referred to the coffee-holding sort.

A page or two over, here are turtlenecks for "Dad the Swinger," which is something of a contradiction in terms. In the same ad, you will find mighty nice gear for Dad the golfer, and Dad the fisherman, but I don't notice anything for Dad the sink unstopper, Dad the roof gutter cleaner or Dad the bike tire pumper-upper.

There's nothing specifically listed for Dad the house-painter, either; yet I know several guys, one of them me, who would twinkle and glow over a gallon can of exterior latex from his family.

But don't worry—we will be happy with whatever you happen to bestow, even though perhaps a trifle confused.

I know a dad who once got a highly superior English shoehorn with genuine pigskin handle. Since like most of us he just kind of slithers into his shoes, he was at a loss what to do with it. Finally and sneakily, he turned it to use as a bedding-plant planter.

★

At our house, now that our young are grown, the general attitude is, the heck with surprises.

When Father's Day nears, this D.O.D. commences to drop lead-pipe hints, and keeps right on until patience is outworn.

Then somebody asks me what I'd like, and we come to an understanding.

But not right away, you understand. As with most dads, there are a lot of things I'd like.

So this is weighed against that, and that against the other, with reasonable regard for the state of the donor's finances, until a balance is struck.

It's a comfortable arrangement all round, although it may not be exactly what Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane had in mind.

That sentimental lady invented Father's Day in 1910, and even though the Britannica ignores her completely, I guess Dear Old Dad does owe her a nod across the years.

Man, 28, Fined For Supplying

A 28-year-old man was fined $75 Friday for supplying liquor to a minor.

Frank Cirkelbach, 1120 May, was found guilty of the charge arising from an incident May 1.

Court was told the accused was the driver of a car stopped in Town and Country parking lot and containing 16 full bottles of beer. Three under-age passengers in the car smelled of beer.

CREW OF THE GOOD SHIP "Boozemark" lugs into position at the start of Esquimalt Buccaneer Day parade today. Mike Dachuk, 13, hauls along while David Naysmith, 11, takes a swig of Boozemark brew. Neil Brokenshire, 12, takes it easy. The parade, which included floats and bands and hundreds of children from minor athletic teams, came about midway through the municipality's annual celebration. A variety show, sunset ceremony and dances wrap it up tonight.

Test Samples Support Sewage Sea Disposal

The first direct evidence was given today to support disposal of sewage at sea.

Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health samples taken at the only deepsea outfall in the area would be acceptable to the Pollution Control Board of B.C., said Saanich Acting Mayor Leslie Passmore.

The sea water samples were taken May 29 off the 1,300-foot Finnerty Cove outfall in Saanich.

"The results of these tests show the coliform count to be well within the limits that would be acceptable to the Pollution Control Board," he said.

A number of individuals and groups have questioned whether dilution and diffusion by sea water is adequate to reduce the coliform count to an accepted standard.

The Pollution Control Board, in a letter to the engineering company which undertook the massive sewerage report, said the coliform count should not exceed 1,000 betwen May and September.

The May 29 tests show the highest count to be 240 over the outfall and 350 at a point 500 feet south of the outfall.

At 1,000 feet past the outfall, 1,000 feet north of the outfall, and two points halfway to shore the count was less than two.

"Admittedly these results are from one test only but tests will be taken through the summer months and if no significant changes are registered it would seem reasonable to assume that dispoal of sewage by long outfalls is the answer to our pollution problems," said Ald. Passmore.

The regional board has been authorized to implement the recommendations in the sewerage report of Associated Engineering Services. These recommendations include long outfalls to deepsea water.

He Always Wanted A Bathmat?

The mystery of Bobbie and his bathmat was partly solved today.

The owner of the little dog has shown up after a Times story Friday described how the Border Collie cross had been crouching beside a bathmat in a Langford field for the past four days.

The dog's owner is building foreman Marvin Sather, 52, who boards at 962 Page in Langford. He has been looking for his dog, whose name is Robbie, since it wandered away Wednesday night.

Mr. Sather has been supervising construction on a church hall, about a block from where Robbie kept his curious vigil.

But the bathmat remains a mystery. No one knows why Robbie held it so dear. His owner never saw it before.

Ask The Times

Q. Who invented parking meters and where were they first installed?—L.Q.J.

A. Parking meters were the invention of one Carl C. Magee (U.S.) and were first installed in the business district of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma on July 19, 1935.

Liberal Sun Likely For Trudeau

The weather looks promising for Prime Minister Trudeau's visit Monday night.

The prime minister arrives in Beacon Hill Park shortly after 8 for a whirlwhind high security open-air rally. It will be his only Vancouver Island stop.

The weekend forecast is for generally sunny, warm weather, and all indications point to the same continuing through Monday.

The prime minister is scheduled to arrive by helicopter direct from a Vancouver television appearance. He will land on the south side of Dallas Road just below the park lookout.

He will speak here from a platform bordering on the north side of Dallas Road.

Mr. Trudeau is expected to speak for about 20 minutes before leaving in a closed car under police escort for Victoria International Airport. The Prime Minister's chartered DC-9 jet is due in Calgary about 11 p.m. Monday.

As a security precaution, there will be no stops during the trip to the airport. Vehicles will be travelling at posted speeds.

92% at Empress Vote for Strike

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Employees at the Empress Hotel voted 92.59 per cent in favor of strike action Friday in a government-supervised ballot.

The vote showed 200 in favor, 11 opposed and five ballots spoiled.

Last month, employees voted 155-to-2 to reject a majority conciliation board recommendation of eight cents an hour retroactive to Sept. 1, seven cents an hour in the second year and numerous classification adjustments.

A spokesman for Local 276 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers from Vancouver said this morning a strike date will be set next week.

●

The existing contract expired last Aug. 31. Hourly wage rates run from a low of $1.25 an hour for porters to $2.33 for sous chefs, said the union.

The hotel said porters average $300 a month in gratuities and the conciliation recommendation on classification adjustments ranged from six cents to 28 cents for 128 employees.

Empress manager Leslie Parkinson said last month the hotel will not operate in the face of a strike but would close down. He was not available for comment this morning.

In 1963, when employees came within a few hours of striking Victoria's biggest hotel, Canadian Pacific brought in supervisors and conducted local interviews to replace strikers.

SAANICH OFFICERS ASSAULTED

Two Saanich police officers were assaulted in separate incidents early today.

One officer was injured but not kept in hospital.

In the first incident Const. Bob Pringle was assaulted by a man arrested at midnight in the Town and Country parking lot, police said.

The man subsequently escaped due to the presence of a large crowd.

He was arrested again today and is in custody charged with assaulting an officer. He will appear in court Monday.

RED LION INN

At 2:15 a.m. police were called to the Red Lion Inn following a disturbance. Police say a "battle royal" occurred at the rear of the motel.

Const. Norman Ellison was assaulted while attempting to break up the fight. The man escaped and others blocked the officer when he gave chase, police said today.

Police are looking for several other men involved in the incident.

Nightclub Fight Costly

Two men were fined $50 each today for fighting in a downtown nightclub.

Lawrence Goodson, 29, of 651 Constance, and Robert Moffit, 22, of 1507 Westall, pleaded guilty.

Court was told the men, both bleeding, were found being assisted from the scene of a scuffle at 1318 Broad Street early today.

10 DAYS TO GO

Heavy Response Seen As Advance Polls Open

Voters were lining up at one advance poll in the Esquimalt-Saanich riding this morning.

In Victoria they were turning out at double the rate of the last election.

Six Victoria and five Esquimalt-Saanich advance polls are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and the same hours Monday.

The number of voters turning out to them hints at big showing for election day June 25.

Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea can be reached at 384-7145. David Wilson, returning officer in Victoria, is at 386-6384.

Mr. Wilson described the turn-out as "very heavy". Mrs. Lea said the line-up occurred at 9 a.m. at the St. Luke's Church Hall on Cedar Hill Cross Road. The Langford poll was also reported very busy.

Liberal candidate David Groos is sending a pink napkin and a teabag to some Victoria voters.

The letter of explanation includes a Trudeau pamphlet.

The idea is for everyone getting a teabag to invite a neighbor in for tea and talk over Trudeau policy outlined in the pamphlet.

It's a new gimmick, and it may save Groos supporters some canvassing time.

Independent candidate George Burnham will be in Beacon Hill Park Speaker's Corner Sunday afternoon.

He plans to carry his campaign to restore the Red Ensign to Veterans' Hospital patients and provincial servants next week.

He was handshaking on his own in the 1100 block Douglas on Friday.

Dr. Harvey Richardson is another local candidate who once worked in Greater Victoria shipyards.

Dr. Richardson Friday refuted Liberal David Anderson's claim of being the only candidate who had done so.

"I worked as a boilermaker's helper after I had gained my MA in physics," he said.

"I was waiting to go to Europe and didn't want to take a permanent posting in my field."

He returned to shipyard work in 1953, before his appointment to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

He worked at the drydock in the area between the double bottoms in ships—"just as low as I could go."

JAIL SENTENCE REDUCED TO FINE

A sentence of three months' imprisonment on a Victoria motorist was reduced to a fine of $500 in county court Friday.

James Steen, 30, of 413 Langford, was convicted by Magistrate J. A. Byers in police court last Feb. 26 on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Victoria lawyer John B. E. Goult appealed both conviction and sentence before Judge Montague Drake in county court.

Judge Drake upheld the conviction but reduced the sentence.

Police evidence was that a car driven by Steen struck a pedestrian on the south side of Gorge Road, near Earl Grey Road, on Nov. 11 last.

URBAN CRISIS UPON CANADA, SAYS MAYOR

'We Will Be Cast on Scrap Heap of History'

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Massive sacrifice and effort are required by urban societies if the cities of North America are to survive.

Mayor Hugh Stephen told an audience of secondary school principals and vice-principals Friday evening that city-dwellers would either find an answer to rapidly growing problems or "we too will be cast upon the scrap-heap of history. And the jungle will once again come into its own."

Taking as his theme "The Urban Crisis" Mayor Stephen said one of the major problems is finding a better method of civic government.

"I have always opposed, and still oppose, the introduction of party politics, in its generally accepted sense, into municipal affairs," he said.

★ ★ ★

"But I must also say that if local government is to become swift enough and mobile enough and resilient enough to react to the rapidly approaching crisis-years ahead, some more responsive mechanism of policy-making must be evolved."

Mayor Stephen noted that in Montreal, under the leadership of Mayor Jean Drapeau, tremendous gains had been made following the introduction of a civic party system.

"Programs (in Montreal) are formulated by a small executive committee, debated in party caucus and, once approved there, the ratification by an obedient council is a mere formality," he said.

"Democratic? Perhaps not entirely, but incredibly swifter and more effective than our (form of government)."

Mayor Stephen repeated an oft-stated theme to his audience.

★ ★ ★

"It is a complete incongruity that the property tax, which was originally devised to take care of the elementary needs of a rural, self-help society, should still be called upon to maintain in a large measure all the complex educational, physical and recreational requirements of a modern and sophisticated urban environment."

"Not only is it plainly inadequate to the task but its assessment base is nothing like resilient enough to the inflationary demands upon the civic purse.

"Unlike the main sources of federal and provincial revenues, which advance in almost direct proportions to the dictates of the national growth patterns, the property tax is historically a laggard in its ability to adjust to changing circumstances."

Mayor Stephen said little change is being advocated at the municipal level.

"And yet it is mostly at the local levels that the direct results of urban growth are first felt," he said. "Unlike many federal and provincial expenditures ... the new roads, sewers, parking facilities, etc., must be supplied without delay.

★ ★ ★

"Among all these manifold commitments, none is becoming more onerous than education ...

"While Victoria's general mill rate has advanced by only some 5 per cent, the school mill rate has risen by 40 per cent."

Mayor Stephen said the only answer to the tax problem is a full review of federal, provincial and municipal tax and cost-sharing formulas.

"I wish very much that I could tell you tonight that our institutions of government were ready and poised to confront the emergency ... Unhappily, and in honesty, I have to confess ... that we are facing an explosive farce as destructive in its potential as the hydrogen bomb with resources that were already outmoded 50 years ago."

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

New Kio printed sweaters are here! . . .

The sweater section in Wilson's is always a colorful spot . . . but right now it's gaily abloom with flowers . . . the lovely flower patterns on the Kio printed sweaters from West Germany . . . a new shipment of which arrived the other day . . . The colors are absolutely glorious . . . and patterns are completely new and different . . . flowered designs mostly, but some unusual geometrics too . . . There are the well-loved cardigans, which have the nice fit of jackets . . . and this year, a new style with a notch-collared V-neck . . . Buttons, we think, are especially attractive in this new shipment . . . These printed sweaters are 100% wool and are washable . . . They make a nice jacket for a plain sleeveless summer dress . . . an attractive top for a straight skirt . . . and are very much in demand as toppers to wear with Wilson's Bleyle slacks . . . which come in colors to match or blend with the colors in the sweaters . . . There are several new shades in Bleyle slacks this year . . . a new turquoise . . . bone . . . light beige . . . along with the regular colors of moss, celery, light, medium and dark blue, red, shocking pink, camel and brown . . . And everyone who's ever worn Bleyles swears by them . . . they fit so perfectly, look so completely RIGHT! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Pierced ears . . . for men . . . is the growing rage in London.

My Fair Lady . . .

Suddenly everyone wants to look sweet and feminine and My-Fair-Lady-sh . . . and one of the best ways of doing so we know of is to acquire one of Madam and Eve Shop's adorable voile dresses . . . When we were very young, every nice girl owned at least one voile frock for dress-up occasions . . . Now voile is "in" again for summer wear any and everywhere! . . . M & E have some ravishingly feminine little dresses of white Swiss voile with black dots . . . one with a "granny" yoke edged with narrow black lace, which appears again at the wrists . . . Another of the same material has cowl neck edged with frilling, a slightly gathered skirt with a narrow black grosgrain tie around the waist, long sleeves . . . Return of the bias cut skirt is exemplified in a demure voile dress with white top . . . three rows of ruffled white lace encircling the bodice and sleeves . . . dark brown and white plaid skirt, belted with black patent leather . . . We love the dark brown voile with smocked yoke and white collar . . . long sleeves gathered in at the wrist . . . And there's a black and white printed voile with V neck and a jabot front . . . double, bias-cut frills at skirt bottom . . . Also a grey wrap-around dress with surplice front and rippling frills . . . Sizes range from 11 to 15 . . . and we're told all of these voile dresses are washable . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

The Victorian shirt is the dominant look, both now and for the fall.

Royal Copenhagen Christmas plates . . .

Some people collect Royal Copenhagen Christmas plates like others collect stamps or coins . . . but unlike these latter, there's only ONE plate a year . . . which appreciates in value in the course of time . . . (the first 1908 plate, we understand, is now valued at $700!) . . . But quite apart from being an investment, collecting and owning Royal Copenhagen Christmas plates brings real pleasure and satisfaction, because they're such beautiful things! . . . Last week at Montague Bridgman's we saw the 1968 plate . . . for which Bridgman's are now taking orders for August delivery . . . and since numbers are limited, you'll want to get your order in soon . . . This year the blue and white plate is particularly interesting, we think . . . By artist Kai Lange, it's called "The Last Umiak" . . . and is a Greenland scene of icy waters, snow-covered mountains, a Umiak . . . Eskimo boat rowed by women . . . and in the foreground, a sledge dog surveying the scene . . . In the summer of 1966 the last voyage of a Umiak took place . . . now replaced by motor boats . . . but the sledge dog still plays an important part in far northern travel . . . Artist Lange has captured an historic sight in his latest Christmas plate . . . It's a lovely thing you'll be proud to own . . . Price is $9.95 . . . So get your order in right away . . . Montague Bridgman Limited, 811 Government St., 383-0821.

A rewarding career for your teen-ager . . .

We're addressing this mainly to you parents who have a daughter . . . or son . . . finishing school this month . . . and giving serious thought to training for an interesting and financially rewarding career . . . If your child shows signs of artistic ability, why not consider hairdressing? . . . The well-trained, creative hairdresser has her pick of jobs . . . anywhere in the world . . . her future is assured! Glamour School of Hairdressing, here in Victoria, has teaching standards among the highest in North America . . . In the past 18 months not a single one of their students has failed to graduate . . . and good jobs have invariably been waiting for them at the end of the six of nine months' course! . . . So great is the demand for this training that the School is scheduling an extra course to start on July 8th . . . (the previously announced course beginning Aug. 5 is already nearly all booked up) . . . So if you're interested, please register soon as possible . . . after a reasonable tryout, the School will give you an honest report on whether or not your daughter will "make it" as a hairdresser . . . Sewing and fashion design . . .

And another school . . . this one for all of us who would like to learn to sew . . . to design clothes . . . draft our own patterns . . . learn the fine points of tailoring . . . is the recently opened Ursula Redwood School of Fashion Design . . . where individual instruction in small classes is given in each of the above skills . . . We ourselves . . . who've never sewn in our lives . . . are enrolled with the beginners . . . and are well on the way to turning out a pretty snazzy dress! . . . Ursula Redwood, as you probably know, is Victoria's top dress designer and couturiere . . . and she has a real knack for imparting her know-how in the easiest possible way . . . We've also attended her class in fine tailoring where experienced dressmakers are busy perfecting their skills . . . Courses consist of 10 2-hour sessions, and cost a mere $15 . . . In July Mrs. Redwood is starting special classes for teen-agers . . . pattern drafting classes and a special 5-session Saturday morning sewing class for the young . . . where they'll learn to design and sew the "Psychedelic" clothes they love . . . real wild things! . . . This latter course costs only $7.50 . . . and all we can say is that if we were a teen-ager, we wouldn't wait another day to sign up for it . . . even if we had to baby-sit from here to eternity to pay the tab! . . . Ursula Redwood School of Fashion Design, 1121 Vancouver St., 385-5833.

Saba's fabrics will inspire you . . .

Having just talked about designing and dressmaking . . . it's only natural that we should turn to fabrics . . . specifically, the beautiful, interesting and unusual fabrics you invariably find at Saba Bros. . . . When we visited Saba's fabric dept. the other day, our eye was immediately caught by some new material for summer dresses . . . a cotton and polyester mixture which looks like heavy chambray . . . and comes in heavenly shades of lime, light blue, yellow, turquoise, skipper blue, orange, cream and white . . . it's washable, unshrinkable, 45 inches wide and costs $3.50 a yard . . . To go with it, there's 4" wide smocked ruching in matching colors, with white nylon edging . . . $2.50 a yard . . . With very little of this material and ruching you could make a delightful, high-style dress . . . Yours alone, whose twin you'd never meet! . . . So do go see it and let your imagination run riot! . . . Saba's have some beautiful rayon crepes too . . . plain, satin-back and sparkle crepe which would be lovely for wedding and bridesmaid dresses . . . They come in different weights and widths . . . from $4 to $7 a yard . . . and in every imaginable color as well as white . . . There's a crepe radiant which is washable and crease resistant . . . An elegant double crepe in mint green, white or shocking pink . . . which is absolutely perfect for Vogue's Nina Ricci ensemble No. 11940 in the Paris Original book . . . Saba Bros. Say what you like, no woman is well turned-out unless she's wearing a hat . . . and this is as true in summer as at any other time of year . . . Miss Frith's have a selection of summer hats which should quite literally go to your head . . . We admired an Andre creation of white veiling with small silk petals which looked light and airy as a cream puff . . . A Dior white organza turban sprinkled with lilies of the valley . . . a terrifically chic Mr. John helmet of black and white straw in a woven check design topped with a straw pompom . . . There are beautiful natural panamas which team so well with cotton dresses . . . and we admired many of the wide-brimmed hats of sheer black straw . . . which cast such an alluring shadow over the eyes in summer sunshine! . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1917 Douglas St., 383-7181.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Styles to Stress the Individual

"Looking Ahead" for Fall, 1968, Jaeger mixes woodsey hues in an all-wool, gored Maxi skirt. The high-rising waist meets a softly-tailored, long-sleeved, cream silk shirt. The narrow belt is buckled in brass. A delightful at-home costume for a woman of any age.

The first glossy prints and new releases for fall 1968 have arrived from New York.

There are no sensations for the sensation seekers and very few out and out pronouncements on the "Look" for the next seeason.

Damaske

We all have our own favorite expressions and to me this will be a "Mugwump" season . . . a time of fashion fence-sitters with their "mugs" on one side and their "Wumps" on the other. Don't misunderstand . . . I am not knocking the situation . . . it is a season when there is something for everyone.

The youthquake is still sending out tremors but they are not as earth-shattering as they were a year ago. Designers are beginning to remember that good fashion does not belong just to the young. There are signs of fashion sanity for the emotionally-secure woman who enjoys dressing to her age and type rather than being a magazine mimic.

Skirt lengths are certainly a matter of individual taste . . . never has there been more choice and, strangely enough, no one length is capturing the spotlight. Many coat and dress ensembles and suit and coat costumes favor two lengths. The dress or skirt will bare the knee and the coat will fall below it.

Most designers are keeping the midi and maxi lengths to a rather small collection of late-day dresses.

Waistlines at their natural level are more in evidence and are emphasized by wider belts but there is still much favor shown to the high empire. There does seem to be an indication that the low-dropped waistline is losing popularity.

Colors again run the gamut and it is unlikely that there will be a strong swing to any single shade as there was a number of years ago . . . the bright Kennedy pink.

Those who promote color seem to be pushing grape and purple tones but these colors are too difficult to wear to really snowball as the hot pink did. Purple tones suit a very limited number of women and they are tricky to co-ordinate . . . especially in the moderate price range.

There is variety in every phase of fashion and the time of slavishly following a look is passing . . . the emphasis in the coming season will be on the individual.

Strawberry Tea Aids Handicapped

The Vancouver Island Society for Hearing Handicapped Children will hold a strawberry tea in the Bay's Douglas Room on Monday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The event will be opened by Mrs. Lorna Vinden, secretary to the executive secretary of the Vancouver Island office of the Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia. Mrs. Vinden was Canada's top athlete in the Paraplegic Pan-American Games, held in Winnipeg in 1967. She won six gold and two silver medals.

The aim of the tea is to raise money in order to start a pre-school class in Victoria.

There will be stalls of home baking and fancywork. Raffles will be available and door prizes will be offered.

Mr. Seigrist was presented with an Indian sweater and Mrs. Seigrist was given flowers.

WORLD CHILDREN'S DAY

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor has proclaimed today to be World Children's Day.

One of the most fitting memorials of the occasion can be seen in the reports given at the recent national IODE convention in Edmonton which listed impressive figures in the Order's program for help to children. They included $6,382.85 sent for children in sanitoriums and orphanages overseas, $18,568.32 sent to similar institutions in Korea, an X-ray machine for a tuberculosis clinic in Korea costing $11,000,331, cases of clothing valued at $102,201.60 sent to the Save the Children Fund in London, England; 332 cases of colthing sent the fund in Korea, valued at $48,899.69, and 46 cases of clothing given to the Canadian Save the Children Fund, valued at $14,533.23.

LEAVE FOR MATERNITY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government will consider adding a maternity-leave provision to the Canada Labor Code, according to a party policy paper mailed to Liberal candidates in the June 25 election.

Inclusion of maternity leave for working women, however, is subject to recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women, which has not yet reported.

The labor code sets wage and working standards for a wide range of industries under federal jurisdiction.

When Kay Collins and her husband, Morley, head for Europe this summer there'll be a particularly precious strand of pearls in her luggage. The jewelry was a parting gift from her colleagues and former colleagues at View Royal Elementary School—(Bill Halkett photo)

Lifetime of Teaching to Finish When the Bell Rings This Month

By PAT DUFOUR

When the school bell rings for the last time at View Royal Elementary School this month it will tolling the farewell salute to one of the school's favorite teachers.

Kay Collins, who was one of the original teachers on staff when the school was opened 18 years ago, is retiring after 40 years in her profession with "only two years out for the role of housewife."

She reports that most of her students look disbelieving when she tells them that her retirment is due. This makes sense. Meeting this vivacious woman for the first time it's hard to realize that she gradutated from the Vancouver Normal School in 1919.

She tempers her regret at leaving with the knowledge that most of her English and music students will be leaving too. They'll be grade seven graduates.

There's not a trace of accent to reveal that she was born in Scotland and spent some of her childhood in Ireland. This could be due to the fact that she came to Canada when she was 11.

She and her husband, Morley, have no children which perhaps is why Kay Collins is known throughout the city as a woman who never spares any effort to help the younger members of our citizenry.

Never a lover of fancy frills, Kay Collins is grateful that her last school "is a little off the beaten track, so that there is not such a drastic change in children's attitudes as there is in metropolitan areas."

Always ready to laugh at herself (a quality that has endeared her to generations of pupils) she tells of the only time she was dubbed with a nickname "at least, in front of my face."

The story concerns a roly-poly student who endeared himself to her through his comedian antics in the classroom.

One day when he was particularly rambunctious she corrected him. Caught up in her subconscious thoughts, she called him Fatso. Hastily, she apologized. In the manner of very young men, he had the last answer. "It's O.K. Skinny!" he jauntily replied.

This summer, as in the past five years, Mr. and Mrs. Collins will fly to England for a seven-week holiday.

"I've had a constant love affair with London since I spent six months there way before the war. We stayed in Chelsea in a boarding house run by two old ladies. They treat us like family, and it's wonderful to be able to enjoy so much good theatre."

Theatre has always been one of Mrs. Collins' loves, absorbing much of her spare time when she and her husband lived in Vancouver and drawing her to the Victoria Theatre Guild when they came to Vancouver Island.

Although her looks belie her age, Kay Collins admits that there are occasions when she's dramatically reminded of her many years in the teaching profession.

"When a middle-aged balding man comes up to me and asks me, 'Weren't you Miss Wallace?' I feel positively antique."

Mistress of the English language that she is, it seems that Kay Collins must mean unique, not antique.

Ask any of her many pupils or their parents, they'll all agree.

At Arbutus Toastmistress Club Installation

AUTHOR AS SPEAKER

Mrs. Agnes Newton Keith, local author of "Land Below the Wind," "Three Came Home" and other books, was the guest speaker when the Arbutus Toastmistress Club held its installation banquet at Holyrood House.

Mrs. Keith said that writing was a compulsion with her, explaining that she often began in the middle of a story, working in all directions at once. Many of her books have been translated into as many as 11 languages.

She advised would-be writers to study the market before submitting their manuscripts.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Peter Small, whose original sketches of natives of various countries decorated the program covers, in keeping with the evening's theme "Hands Around the World."

NEW MEMBER

Mrs. A. M. Clarkson said grace, Mrs. R. S. Butt proposed a toast to the guests, to which Mrs. M. F. J. Searman responded. Topic mistress was Mrs. S. M. McCulloch. Mrs. A. D. Wilmot was inducted as a new member.

Toastmistress Mrs. J. L. Brens introduced Mrs. G. L. Cook and Mrs. C. M. Dowling, who repeated the speeches which had won them the club contest and the ITC contest at club and council levels respectively.

PRESENT TROPHIES

The speakers were later presented with the Robinson Trophy, a silver tray, and the Nell Edwards Award, an original oil painting. A silver rose bowl, the President's Trophy, was received by Mrs. W. A. Ludlow, who was installation officer and presented each executive member with the gift of a simulated jewel representing the member's office.

A pearl was received by past president Mrs. G. H. Love. Other jewels received were: Topaz, Mrs. Cook, club representative; amethyst, Mrs. Clarkson, treasurer; ruby, Mrs. J. A. Miller, corresponding secretary; sapphire, Mrs. L. R. Hammett. recording secretary; emeralds, Mrs. D. E. Pite, vice-president, and diamond, Mrs. Harry Winstone, president and publicity chairman.

Guests included Mrs. M. A. Butt, Mrs. Doris Webb, Mrs. M. F. J. Dearman, Mrs. H. R. Ker, a charter member of the club; Mrs. W. E. Enoch, Mrs. D. A. Shaw, Mrs. J. Hzozdanski, Mrs. E. J. DEAR ABBY . . .

What's the Penalty For Wife-Beating?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Beth and I have been married about 10 years and have a very good marriage and two adorable children.

I have been travelling quite a bit lately in my business and it has created a slight problem. Yesterday when I came off the road, after having driven from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. Beth says, "It's a lovely evening, let's go for a little ride."

When I am out of town I eat in restaurants all the time, which gets pretty tiresome, so when I come home I look forward to a good, home-cooked meal. Well, Beth greets me at the door with, "I've been cooped up in the house all week, let's eat out."

Tell me, Dear Abby, what is the penalty for wife beating in the state of Nebraska?

RON

DEAR RON: I don't know, but I would guess that you'd be ahead to "take a little ride" and eat out occasionally.

DEAR ABBY: The other day a letter came addressed to my husband. Thinking it was an advertisement, I opened it and found several pictures of nude women with a letter saying, "If you want more, send money."

I suppose I am naive, but I was shocked. I don't know whether my husband sent for these pictures or not. If he didn't, shouldn't these people be reported for sending this kind of stuff through the mails?

My problem is this: I'm afraid if I show this stuff to my husband and question him, he'll start having all his mail sent to his office and I won't see any of it. He is sometimes a little careless with money, and charges things he doesn't want me to know about. I recently quit working, and now I see all the mail before he does, and I like it this way. What do you suggest?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your biggest problem, as I see it, is the obvious lack of communication and mutual trust between you two.

For openers, ask him how he came to be recipient of the girlie gallery. (He may be innocent). Then present the material (in its original envelope) to your postmaster, who will add it to his bulging file on pornographic abuse of the United States mails. If your husband sent for the stuff, you have still another problem. You are married to a "little boy" who still likes to look at dirty pictures.

DEAR ABBY: I am a maiden lady, 70 years of age. I retired 10 years ago and am making my home with my sister, 74, and her husband, 76.

My brother-in-law is a kind man and a good Christian. We have had a happy home together because we all like to do the same things.

Of course, at our age, any one of us might pass away at any time, which raises this question: If my sister should go first, her husband would be utterly helpless to cook and keep house for himself, so since it is "my" house, too, I know my sister would want me to stay on and look after him. But how would this look to other people?

My brother-in-law has no other relatives. Your advice, please?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: The LAST thing I would worry about is how it would "look" to other people. Why not wait until the problem presents itself before worrying about how to solve it?

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. WOO. What "old Chinese proverb"? The size of one's ears has absolutely no bearing on the length of one's life. Quit worrying!

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Age is a Favorite subject, when other women whisper behind your back.

The gossip may very well go something like this: "Isn't it a pity that Marge has let herself get so fat?" Then followed by, "What a shame! Marge has so many lines in her face she looks like Whistler's mother."

Those facial lines are easy to cope with; easier than getting rid of fat, and smoothing away age lines is now comparatively fast. Recent work in the highly specialized field of skin physiology has made it possible for many women to smooth their facial lines into relative obscurity. They can park them where they should not bother them for a long, long time if ever again.

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance re-established by maintaining the water balance of skin's stratum corneum at normally required levels.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, the control-ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the stratum corneum automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you progress in this course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. One contains CEF 600 and is for the women with early worries; that is, for the woman under 40.

The double-potency CEF 1200 is for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay or for you if your facial lines are deep. It smooths age lines faster.

To prepare your skin to receive CEF there is 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinsed off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

2nd Debut Liquid Makeup (with CEF 600) is probably the most covering make-up in all the world. Imparts a flattering, flat matte finish and hides most blemishes completely. Moisturizes, too, with CEF 600. Six shades.

Finally 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of hands chapping. This is a dual-purpose balm. Money Back Guarantee on all 2nd Debut Products.

SHOPPING GUIDE

This Off-Beat Store Uniquely Victorian

By PENNY SAVER

If you wanted something uniquely Victorian, where would you find it? And if you were an up-and-coming craftsman (or woman) where would you market your wares? Until I found the fascinating shop I will talk about today, I wouldn't have known how to answer those questions.

This shop, which has only been open a month, is right off the beaten track — both in location and in the kind of item it sells. All the goods are sold on commission (a liability when the artist needs money right away) and much of the stock is put together in the back of the store. The accent is on the young as the proprietors are well within the under-30 bracket, but there are items there to interest the most jaded shopper.

What kind of shop is it? That is a difficult question to answer. It isn't an antique shop, although there are items for sale that could be classed as antiques. Old postcards are five cents each, as are antique hat pins. Leather spats, old copper tubs, brass spigots—anything that catches the fancy of the staff is painted and polished, priced and put on sale. And the prices are uniformly low.

This isn't a gift shop, although most of the items there would make good gifts. Prints begin at $3.50, as do small drawings. Pottery—all local of course—begins at $1. Necklaces made of seeds, wooden beads and Indian beads begin at a dollar and go as high as $3.50 while enamelled copper pendants and bracelets range from $2 to $3. Can they be made to order? If the artist is given enough time, why not?

Hand-Made Stockings, Dresses, Hats

The back room sees more than just antiques getting a face-lift. One of the owners makes dresses and hats for the store. Right now most of the sizes are small and the skirts short, but who can resist a $20 "flag" dress. This dress (size 10 or I would have bought it on the spot) is covered with Union Jacks of every size. The gathered skirt falls from a high bodice and the mandarin sleeves look like each is one big flag. I was amazed to learn this was the most expensive dress on the rack. So far the selection is small but so is the business. The owners hope to be able to expand in every craft as they become more established.

What goes with hand-crafted dresses? Why hand-knit stockings of course. Wool stockings are $3.50; string, $2.50. They can be made to order in less than a week.

Mobiles also grow in that back room. Regular three and six-piece mobiles are 75 cents to $1.50. Right now the predominant colors are black and white but any mobile within their patterns could be made to order in the color of your choice.

Borrowed from Britain are smiles-on-a-stick for 10 cents a smile. But with Victorian ingenuity, these young people have added the third eye and frankly-fake flowers. Hang a single mobile piece on the end of a stick and — presto — a mini-mobile, also a dime. These all make wonderful attention-getters in a floral arrangement I find. Hand-made "hippie" flowers are $1.50 and can be made to order.

Would you like to see this unique shop for yourself? Please call 382-3131 for the name and address.

Service Wives Donate Machine for Children

Wives of officers serving with the armed forces in the Victoria area have added another item to the list of contributions they make to the community.

Recently, the Women's Auxiliary of the Pacific Maritime Command donated an audiometer to the public health office in Belmont Park at Colwood. No larger than an average suitcase, the new piece of equipment will benefit hundreds of children in the years ahead.

Designed for small children, the machine emits in a gradually decreasing voice a recorded message that describes pictures of animals and objects on a chart that's place in front of its users.

Already the new donation to the clinic has given well over 100 tests to kindergarten and grade one students in the area.

The presentation was to the clinic supervisor, Capt. Ghislaine Belanger, by auxiliary president, Mrs. J. I. Kellett.

Reginald Stone says;
The THOMAS ORGAN is unique in the fact that beginners play today, not next week or next month. The "Color-Glo" keys and "Color-Glo" music go "hand in hand," literally guiding you over the notes. The old saying, "You haven't heard anything yet" attributed to Al Jolson, applies to the fine line of THOMAS ORGANS. When you shop around, you owe it to yourself to really investigate. THOMAS! Every melody becomes a production number on the THOMAS ORGAN with the built-in features of Chimes, Sustain, Repeat, and decay percussion, "Band-Box" and "Playmate," and a host of exciting tones not available on any other organ costing as much or more! . . . It Interrupted Arguments

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stop the music cried the judge. It stopped.

It all happened because the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra was playing chamber music while Chief Justice H. W. Davey wasn't in his chambers.

He was in a small courtroom overlooking the courthouse plaza with two other judges trying to concentrate on legal arguments in an appeal case.

On the plaza outside, the chamber group was staging the first of several planned open-air concerts designed to publicize the July 2 to Aug. 18 Vancouver Festival.

After 15 minutes of listening to legal arguments intertwined by strains from Mozart and American composer John Verrall, the chief justice ordered a halt. He sent a court official with orders to stop the playing forthwith.

"He told us our music was disturbing the chief justice and ordered us to stop playing or we would be committing contempt of court," said viola player Peter Webster, leader of the chamber group.

Webster, first violinist John Matthews, violinist Wendy Hamper, cellist Judith Fraser and bass player Bill Fawcett shouldered their instruments, marched across the street, and resumed playing in the lobby of the Hotel Georgia.

Chief Justice Davey's secretary, confirming her boss had ordered the music stopped, commented:

"You can't stop a trial for music, no matter how good it is."

THREE YEARS' WORK

Reactions Mixed On Labor Report

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Three years' work culminating in a 145,000-word report on labor relations in Britain has received radically mixed reactions.

Comment Friday from sources generally favorable to the governing Labor party range between coolness and enthusiasm, while most supporters of the Conservative opposition jumped on the royal commission which prepared the report.

The commission, headed by Lord Donovan of the Appeals Court bench, urged Thursday that Britain's traditional system of industry-wide collective bargaining be replaced with dealings on the plant level.

This was the key proposal in an array of recommendations designed to bring order into labor-management relations.

POST COMPLAINS

The Birmingham Post complains that the commission "turns down the idea of legal enforcement on collective agreements."

"It rejects secret strike ballots, a compulsory 'cooling-off' period for strikes and representation of employees on the boards of companies, though it does make some proposals for safeguarding the rights of individuals in industry both against employers and against trade unions," The Post says.

Allan Flanders, an Oxford University expert on unionism, seemed pleased that the commission rejects treatment of collective agreements as legally-enforceable contracts and turns down also "measures for punishing either unofficial strikers or trade unions for failing to discipline them."

"Do we really have so little to learn from Western Europe, Canada, Australia, the United States and Japan?" asks the Conservative Daily Telegraph in setting out its criticisms of the report.

Many countries, unlike Britain, provide legal sanctions against violators of union agreements with managements, The Telegraph says, and they "seem to have little difficulty in applying them."

APPROVE REJECTION

Commentators strongly sympathetic to unions approve the commission's rejection of penal sanctions against unofficial strikers, arguing that such sanctions would themselves pose formidable problems in practice.

Supporters of the commission approach agree that instead of sanctions there should be a massive reform of the entire machinery of labor negotiations.

They consider that transferring talks on pay and conditions to the level of individual factories is a step in this direction.

Alberta Expected To Join Medicare

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Alberta may soon decide to participate in the national medicare plan.

That possibility [illegible] here today following meetings Friday between Alberta health minister J. Donovan Ross and federal health authorities.

The medicare plan becomes operative July 1 when Saskatchewan and British Columbia will be provincial participants.

Alberta's minister of health visited the national capital to confer with federal health officials.

A spokesman for the department of national health and welfare said he would "not be surprised" if Alberta [illegible] way clear to join the national scheme. But he declined to elaborate on his statement.

Mr. Ross left Ottawa late Friday and en route to Alberta stopped off in Regina today.

The federal spokesman confirmed that Mr. Ross had discussed medicare when in Ottawa. He said it was not Mr. Ross' first visit.

The federal deputy minister of health, Dr. J. N. Crawford, said the Alberta minister had "discussed several questions with us." Buoys Drift As Freshets Increase

Three Department of Transport river buoys have been washed away by spring freshets in the Fraser River.

The missing markers are numbers 12, 32 34.

DOT superintendant of lights Bill Exley today warned feshets — floods caused by melting snowcaps — annually make markers on the Fraser undependable.

Buoys are anchored in place by four-ton concrete blocks and 15 fathoms — 90 feet — of one and one half inch chain. Freshets cause the buoys to tug the blocks out of the mud and drag them off downstream. If the buoy reaches deep water, it will actually float the block.

All three of the loose buoys have been recovered and are in storage.

Captain Exley said another problem with the markers is their tendancy to sink into soft mud.

He said if soft mud conditions are present, anchor blocks have been known to sink as much as 54 feet.

Buoys are normally serviced in September by the lightship Estevan. The 210 foot, 11,000 ton vessel has little trouble freeing blocks from mud.

Washed out markers that can be replaced within four days are not mentioned in the daily Navigational Aids bulletin.

PAULDING—E. Rhoda, died June 14, 1966.

"I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air,
I only know she cannot drift,
Beyond His love and care."

—Ever remembered, Jim.

PEAT — In loving memory of Duncan McLaughlan Peat, who passed away June 16th, 1967.

A Prayer For Grandad
In the quiet of the Benediction.
And as I Kneel in prayer
Remembering oh so clearly on this day
God's promise of no pain or suffering there.
Gentle sleep, Dear Father.
This is my fervant Prayer.
For the Years of toil and loving care.
I was privileged to share.
His memory held in great esteem.

—By Mrs. Mary Patricia Cook.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand was played in a rubber bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club. Barbara Kashmar, who sat South, was rather disappointed when she saw the dummy. It represented just about the worst possible raise, and she noted there were problems in each of the four suits.

There was an automatic correct spade play and Barbara made it by playing dummy's nine. When East won with the king, one hurdle appeared to have been taken care of. It looked as if she could finesse the spade jack later on and get rid of one of her minor suit losers on the ace.

East returned the three of hearts and a lot of players would have gone wrong at this point in the proceedings by playing the eight, but Barbara played the queen. West won with the king and led a trump back. Barbara won in her hand with an honor so as to retain the nine as an entry to dummy.

She cashed her ace and king of clubs next and led a spade to dummy's jack. If East had produced the queen, Barbara would have been down at least two tricks, but the jack held. Now Barbara was able to discard her three of clubs on the ace of spades. Then she led a club from dummy and ruffed high. This dropped East's queen. The eight of hearts was led next to put dummy in with the nine, and two of her three diamonds went on the last two clubs.

Sort of a humdrum hand, but look at all the chances Barbara had to go wrong. We will concede that the nine of spades at trick one was automatic and the play of heart honors in order to make the nine spot an eventual entry to dummy was also automatic, but we wonder if many players would have remembered to cash the ace and king of clubs before taking the spade finesse.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE
FIVE ACRES

PRIVATE PARK
PARADISE

Special circumstances have made available to me a showplace of Shawnigan Lake which has been featured in Victoria papers and which it is difficult to do justice to here! Ideal as a permanent or Summer home as a haven for harrassed businessmen, as an institutional site for relaxation and rehabilitation. Set among some of the largest Douglas firs remaining on the lower Island which it would be a desecration to remove but which would probably be worth the price of the property, there is a very modern 3-bedroom brick, stucco and siding home overlooking the lake and having in addition a sparkling new "in-law" type suite below! All this will be sold furnished with fridges, ranges, washer and dryer and appropriate furniture throughout. There is well over 300' of waterfrontage with boathouse, float, and the original "lawn on the lake." Really interested parties, please plan to spend an hour or so with me to really absorb the value here! It is priced very realistically in relation to its present and future potential.

Fire Aftermath Of Birthday Party

A fire following a birthday party in a Saanich home Friday caused an estimated $1,500 damage.

The family cat was the only casualty in the blaze which broke out at the home of Mrs. Charles Ryan, 764 Lily Street.

Cause of the fire which started in the basement has not been determined.

The upstairs of the building suffered only smoke damage while about one quarter of the basement was charred, Saanich firemen said. Part of the loss was believed covered by insurance.

Mrs. Rran's 14-year-old son Lindsay was home alone at the time of the outbreak and was driven out of the house by smoke. A neighbor turned in the alarm.

Mrs. Ryan and another son, 17-year-old Todd were downtown shopping following a birthday party given at the home for the mother by the two boys.

A birthday cake, left on a utility room table, was charred and flattened after the fire.

Mr. Ryan is aboard the survey ship Richardson at Tuktoyaktuk in the Arctic.

Minister To Push Status Quo

QUEBEC (CP) — Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said Thursday night he will seek a meeting with the Roman Catholic School board that plans to introduce French-language unilingualism in the schools of St. Leonard, a Montreal suburb.

Mr. Cardinal's promise to meet the board "as soon as possible" emerged from a day-long debate of the sensitive language issue in the Quebec legislature.

The education minister described as "a good idea" a suggestion by Opposition Leader Jean Lesage that a meeting be held with the school board to urge that the status quo be maintained until the government formulates a new long-term language policy for Quebec schools.

Backers of French-language unilingualism for children of new Canadians gained control of the St. Leonard school board in local elections Monday and plan to introduce unilingualism progressively, beginning with Grade 1 this September.

ENROLMENT IN 1969

Nanaimo Site For College

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Friday announced the cabinet has passed an order-in-council establishing the Vancouver Island Regional College near Nanaimo.

Dr. Roy MacMillan, head of the regional college advisory board, said the first students could be enrolled next year. The committee now will seek a principal and a site and start hiring staff.

Mr. Campbell said members of the college council will be named soon.

Member of the regional college advisory committee Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan welcomed the news this moring at Duncan.

He said: "Establishment of a regional college council should now come within three or four days and planning of the college should follow quickly after that."

MONEY NEEDED

He anticipated participating school districts from Cowichan to Campbell River will have to include regional college costs in their 1968 budgets.

Mr. Hammond said Friday's decision came closely on the heels of a visit made recently by members of the advisory committee to Deputy Education Minister Dr. G. Neil Perry and the head of regional college planning, Bill Reed.

Estimates are there will be between 500 and 600 students who will take advantage of regional college courses in the first year on the Island.

Mr. Hammond said there is a forecast of 800 to 1,000 for the second year.

He stated the department is now willing to consider entrance by examination for those without high school qualifications.

Appeal Made On N. Pender Pollution

A South Pender Island woman made a last-ditch attempt here Friday to block a property development firm's plan to dump sewage into the sea.

Mrs. Eve Smith appealed to the B.C. Pollution Board to upset a decision of its director, C. J. Keenan, allowing Magic Estates Ltd. to install a sewage system for a 1,200-acre development on North Pender.

Mr. Keenana had given the company the go-ahead provided waste was first pumped into large septic tanks and treated before being pumped through two outfalls to the sea.

Mrs. Smith told the board other proposed subdivisions on Pender and other Gulf Islands would expect the same treatment.

SERIOUS PROBLEM

"Once that happens we will have a serious pollution problem," she said. "The Gulf Islands are now in the process of being subdivided and now is the time to institute sound sewage policies.

"People on the Gulf Islands are thinking of the future and want measures taken now to prevent pollution."

She advocated some more satisfactory method of sewage disposal, such as treatment by electricity.

"This might appear more costly at the outset but in the long run, taking all things into consideration, it will be cheaper to prevent pollution at the source."

F. S. McKinnon, chairman of the board, was sympathetic.

But he pointed out the board's main concern is to determine if the company's proposed sewage system is inadequate and could cause pollution.

Studies conducted by experts, he said, showed there would be no pollution and no solids discharged into the sea.

The board reserved its decision.

Teen Plans In Jeopardy

CAMPBELL RIVER — "If we don't get a building of our own we are going to drop the project," stated Shaun Murphy, 18-year-old leader of a group who are trying to establish a teen centre in Campbell River.

This week council turned down the teens' request, channeled through parks and recreation commission, for $20,000 to construct their own building.

As an alternative Mayor Skip MacDonald suggested the group make use of the centrally located Cedar School gymnasium. He said that the school board has agreed to make the gym available every evening and on the week ends. The students rejected the idea as too restrictive.

Rusty Graveyard South of Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A new, five-acre graveyard is being prepared eight miles south of here for bodies nobody wants.

It will be used to store old car bodies which are banned from the city dump.

The site, near an Esquimalt-Nanaimo railway siding, is being levelled with the help of heavy equipment from Nanaimo's vocational training school, its students and instructors.

The junked cars will be stored there as a possible source of revenue should the scrap metal market improve.

Don't Fondle 'Lost' Fawns

DUNCAN — Nobody could love a little fawn more than Jim and Tosca Oyen of Duncan Zoo — except its own mother.

And this is the point Jim Oyen tried to make Friday after accepting a week-old orphan fawn into the custody of the zoo.

He said: "People should never pick up fawns. Although it may appear they are deserted they almost never are.

"In 99 per cent of all cases the mother is nearby. She stays away from the fawns because she can be scented by predators such as cougars.

"The fawn, which does not have any scent, only goes to its mother briefly to nurse."

Mr. Oyen said even human touching of a fawn may cause the animal mother to reject her offspring for a long time.

Policeman's Dream Came True on Ranch

By ED GOULD

There's an old adage that warns that it is unwise to change horses in midstream but Ted Hamer made the swith three years ago and has suffered no regrets.

"My only regret at leaving my policeman's motorcycle for a real saddle is that I didn't leave it 10 years earlier," Mr. Hamer says.

"Not that the Victoria Police Department wasn't a good place to work. It's just that running the R Bar T Ranch suits m better than routine police work."

The R Bar T is a ranch on Salt Spring Island for children aged 9 to 15.

Mr. Hamer gained experience with children while in charge of Greater Victoria School Patrols for seven years, as coach and manager of Little League and Pony League teams and Boy Scout leader.

There's a lot to be said for owning your own spread — 278 acres on Maxwell Mountain — and the only boss Mr. Hamer now has is his attractive wife-Ruth.

'HIRED HAND'

"She's the manager and I'm the hired hand," he says.

The R Bar T is run just like a working ranch with all guests being assigned a horse of their own, a saddle, harness and blanket — and chores.

That means grooming the horse, keeping his hooves clean, cutting wood, shovelling manure, pitching hay and making their own beds.

Mrs. Hamer and her mother, Mrs. Florence Mullens of Victoria, are the chief cooks but the bottle washing is a community effort too.

Most of the kids come from the city but with assistance from counsellors Lynne Groves, 19, of Victoria and Sue Jane Perry, 20, of West Vancouver, they quickly adjust to ranch life.

They sleep in bunkhouses, swim, hike, play games and enjoy cook-outs and Friday night trail rides to watch the sunset over Sansum Narrows.

But the big interest is riding, riding and more riding.

"Some night you practically have to pry them out of the saddle," Mr. Hamer says.

$3.5 Million Lowest Bid

A Vancouver construction firm submitted the lowest of eight bids for expansion and alteration of West Coast General Hospital at Port Alberni, Amalgamated Construction Association announced Friday.

Dawson and Hall Ltd. bid $3,579,846 on the 18-month project to improve and develop the hospital's acute care facilities.

The two next bids were entered by Bird Construction Ltd., Victoria, $3,599,477; and A. and B. Construction Ltd., Nanaimo, $3,602,228.

WORK STARTS ON GANGES SCHOOL JOB

E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd. of Victoria have been awarded a contract to construct five new classrooms at Gulf Islands Secondary School at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

Construction of the $70,000 project will commence immediately, a company spokesman said.

The classrooms, of a portable variety, were agreed upon by ratepayers by referendum.

Port Alberni Rental Homes Criticized

LAKE COWICHAN — Overcrowding in the home is the single greatest menace to health, according to Dr. Hamish Symon.

As director of Central Vancouver Island Union Board of Health, Dr. Symon said here Friday he is receiving complaints from people on welfare about the poor state of some rented homes.

He said the complaints referred particularly to the Port Alberni area.

Dr. Symon said: "There are flagrant examples there of overcrowding.

"And study after study has shown that people who live in good houses mainly enjoy better health than those who live in poor houses.

NO CONTROL

Dr. Symon said there is no control on the amount of rent paid by people who are being supported on welfare.

George McKnight of Port Alberni said he is compiling a report on public housing which he will submit to the board of health shortly.

He said: "So far the B.C. government has not taken advantage of federal money which is available for public housing.

"We should get on to it before the funds dry up."

IN HAIR-CUTTING CASE

New Magistrate Named

GANGES — A new magistrate has been agreed upon by both prosecution and defence counsel in an assault case involving an enforced hair-cutting incident June 1.

Sidney magistrate D. G. Ashby will preside in the case of four men charged: Gilbert Marcotte, Brian Beech and John Quesnel of Ganges, and Mervyn Walde of Fulford Harbor.

Counsel for the four men, Jakob de Villiers of Victoria, asked that local magistrate M. F. Peiler relinquish his jurisdiction because "of your friendship with the parents of one of the complainants."

Mr. Peiler objected to the inference but agreed to step down when initial prosecutor Fred Rhodes of the RCMP made a similar request. (Brian Smith of Victoria is assuming the crown's case.)

A tentative court appearance of the four accused was set for August 2 at the Ganges courthouse.

Charges arose when four youths and their parents complained to police that a cabin the youths were living in near St. Mary Lake was entered and the occupants shorn of their long hair by force.

Earlier the same night, another youth told police he was dragged from his automobile and held while his hippie-length hair was cut short.

Two of the youths have since left the village.

Silver Threads Close for Day

The Sidney Silver Threads will be closed Monday while the advance federal election poll is conducted at the centre.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be social afternoons.

Jacko will be played Friday.

All programs take place at 2 p.m. in the Knights of Pythias Hall, 9760 Fourth Street.

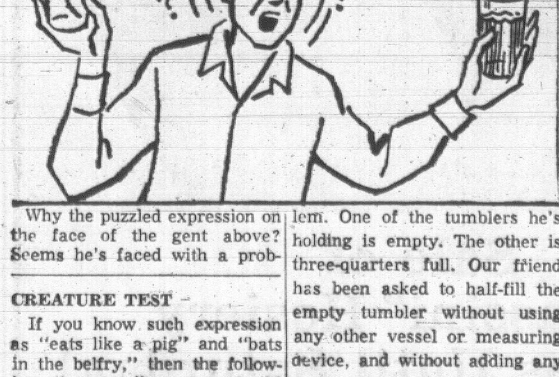
Beanie the Pup and Pussy-willow are playing hide and seek outdoors, above. What's missing from the picture? To find out, simply draw a line from dot 1 to dot 2, to dot 3, and so on, to dot 17. If crayons are handy, draw from 1 through 3 with brown, 3 through 6 with green, 6 through 11 with brown, and 11 through 17 with green.

SMART GALLERY



Why the puzzled expression on the face of the gent above? Seems he's faced with a problem. One of the tumblers he's holding is empty. The other is three-quarters full. Our friend has been asked to half-fill the empty tumbler without using any other vessel or measuring device, and without adding any water or pouring any away. Obviously, he's baffled, but there is a way of solving the problem, so let's hope he doesn't give up. Can you suggest a simple means of measuring the quantity of water desired?

Remember, he is asked to measure out exactly half a tumblerful.

Answer: Fill water-bearing tumbler to the t-p by dropping in pebbles or other small objects; then pour water into empty glass until level in each is the same. The amount poured out will be half a tumblerful.

CREATURE TEST

If you know such expression as "eats like a pig" and "bats in the belfry," then the following "creature" quotes should not buffalo you. Just replace the word "creature" in each by the appropriate animal.

1. Now that he is bankrupt, he has gone to the creatures.
2. In the afternoon he sometimes takes a creature nap.
3. Things look bright when the creature hangs high.
4. He was so hungry that he creatured down his sandwich.
5. The sparring mate took it on the chin so often he became a creature for punishment.
6. Omission of the letter S in "cosmic" makes a creature of a difference.
7. His story was that he walked into an open door when he got the creature under his eye.

Answers: 1. Dogs. 2. Cat. 3. Goose. 4. Wolfed. 5. Glutton. 6. Whale. 7. Mouse.

ANSWERS IS ON PAPER

How can you take 4 from 4 and leave 8? It'll take paper to do this but a pencil or pen won't be much help.

Answer: Cut the corners from any quadrilateral. The figure will then have eight corners.

TRACK DOWN AND IDENTIFY?

Put on your thinking cap for this one: On May 27, 1955, an Englishman had walked one-third of the way across a railroad bridge 8,920 feet long when he heard a train coming up the track behind him. The train was travelling at 45 miles per hour. He could just escape by running at uniform speed to either end of the bridge. What was his name?

Solution: The length of the bridge is 1½ miles. If the man ran toward the train, he would have had ½ mile to go when the train started on the bridge. Since he reached the end of the bridge at the same time as the train, he could run one-third as fast or 15 miles per hour. This means that he ran the mile in 4 minutes. At the time, Roger Bannister was the only Englishman who had accomplished that feat.

SECOND LANGUAGE COMES IN HANDY

During a recess in one of the United Nations meetings in New York, four members of delegations sat around a table swapping stories. In nationality, the four were Swedish, Brazilian, Spanish and American.

It so happened that in addition to speaking his own language, each man spoke the language of one of his companions at the table. No two men spoke the same two languages. Each man had a common language with the man who sat on each side of him.

"Habla Espanol?" said the American to the man opposite.

"I do not understand you," said the man thus addressed, in Swedish. The man on the American's right interpreted the reply.

If the reply had been in the man's own language, the man on the American's left could have interpreted it.

What other language did the Spaniard speak?

Solution: The Spaniard spoke Portuguese, which is the language of Brazil and Brazilians. It is indicated that each man had a common language with the man who sat on each side of him. Since the American's other language was Spanish, the men on his left and right spoke Spanish and American. The man opposite the American did not speak English, but did speak Swedish, so his other language must have been Portuguese. His common language with his other neighbor then must have been Portuguese.

HOW MANY PASSENGERS?

Talk about college students' stunts. Though it sounds impossible, one great-grandmother, two grandmothers, one great-grandchild, two grandchildren, three mothers, one son and two daughters all got into one compact-sized automobile and drove away. How many persons were in the car?

If you don't know, take a guess.

No fair peeking below.

Solution: Only four — one boy, his mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother.

White's advantage of an extra man in this checker poser is somewhat neutralized by Black's three kings. White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in six moves is the challenge.

Long-time champ Millard Hopper's solution to the problem is given below, if needed.

Solution: White 10-6, Black 1-10-17, White 18-23, Black 25-18-27, White 31-24, Black 20-27, White 13-22-31-24; then, 16-20, 24-19, etc.

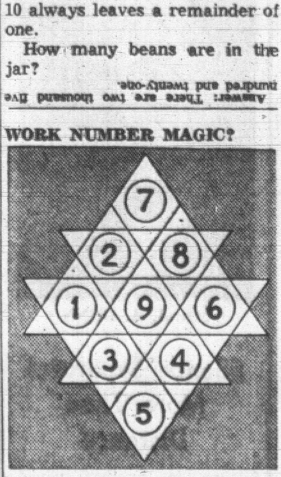
GUESS THE NUMBER OF BEANS

Suppose you are asked to guess the number of beans in a jar. You are given this clue: The number therein, when divided by 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 always leaves a remainder of one.

How many beans are in the jar?

Answer: There are two thousand five hundred and twenty-one.

WORK NUMBER MAGIC?



The numbers 1 through 9 can be magically arranged in this geometrical figure.

As the figures now stand, you will find that multiplying the number in the top row (7) by numbers in the next row (28) gives 196 — figures in the third row. But, if you multiply the number (5) located in the row at the bottom by the figures in the row above it (34), a similar product (196 — centre row) does not result.

Now, this is a rather nagging situation, and the problem is to rearrange the figures in the design so that the two figures in the second from top and second from bottom rows, when multiplied by the single adjecent numbers, will equal the three figures in the centre.

This can be done by moving not more than five.

Kiss Campaign Ruled Out As Stanfield Meets Dief

FORMER prime minister John Diefenbaker shakes hands with Tory leader Robert Stanfield at Saskatoon Friday in first meeting of the two prominent Conservatives since campaign started.—(CP Wirephoto)

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

SASKATOON — John Diefenbaker and Robert Stanfield raised the flag of party unity on the Prairies Friday as two crusaders for a common cause.

For the first time since the campaign began the past and present leaders publicly indicated to their party and the west that they stood shoulder to shoulder for a Tory victory.

The aura surrounding Mr. Diefenbaker was still sufficiently strong to lend a certain drama to the occasion, even though he is merely running as the private member for Prince Albert.

It was a scene easier witnessed than recorded. About 200 supporters and the probing eye of television were on hand to capture the nuances.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his wife flew from Prince Albert, arriving ahead of the Stanfield party which was heading east from Victoria.

The former leader's small plane circled for awhile and then waited on the ground until the campaign plane landed.

Newsmen accompanying Mr. Stanfield piled out and bolted towards Mr. Diefenbaker as he climbed out on the wing and was assisted to the tarmack. For several minutes Mr. Stanfield remained in the background, but did not seem the least bit disturbed.

At this point, Mr. Stanfield who had been waiting on the rim of the crowd moved in to speak to the man he had succeeded.

The ensuring dialogue may not grip future generations, but it was friendly and went like this.

VERY GLAD

Diefenbaker: I'm very glad to see you. How's everything?

Stanfield: Oh, fine.

Diefenbaker: You look as though you have been in the west for months and months. You've got the western color.

Stanfield: You know how easy it is to have a national election campaign.

GOOD SHAPE

Stanfield: You have to be in good shape.

Diefenbaker: You look well.

Stanfield: I feel fine.

Diefenbaker: Ah, you look wonderful.

Before they left for the Museum, Saskatoon Mayor Sidney Buchwold informed Mr. Diefenbaker that a memorial plaque was being dedicated in his honor on the corner where he had once sold a newspaper to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mrs. Stanfield were driven around an outdoor dirt track in the back seat of a 1912 rambler.

The two men were presented with miniature covered wagons, and were asked to kiss some pretty girls dressed up in gay nineties costumes.

"No," said Mr. Diefenbaker firmly. "I am not going to enter the osculation business."

What about Mr. Stanfield?

No again. "Mr. Diefenbaker and I always stand together," the leader smiled.

CHOIR TIRLS

"Good for you," Mrs. Diefenbaker said in the background.

Mr. Diefenbaker was reminded of the story of a southern minister who was brought before his church deacons on a charge of kissing the choir girls.

He pleaded that he was merely carring out the "admonitions of the Lord who instructed him to take the lambs of the flock to his bosom."

The deacons, said Mr. Diefenbaker, were stumped and pronounced their minister not guilty but advised that "From now on if he carries out the admonitions of the Lord he will confine his activities to ram lambs."

Everybody laughed and Mr. Diefenbaker's parting jab was that the "Great television debate" bore as much resemblance to a debate as he did to Mr. Trudeau.

Douglas Shows Vigor But Campaign Calm

EDMONTON (CP) — In terms of campaigning, 1968 style, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas runs a relatively relaxed race.

Campaign organizers admit the pace is geared to the physical stamina of the oldest national party leader, now 63, in the current campaign for the June 25 election.

Not that Mr. Douglas lacks stamina. He has plenty.

But he has stayed away from the kind of shopping-plaza-hopping or mainstreeting through a half-dozen communities a day that have been features of the campaigns of Prime Minister Trudeau and Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

The Douglas campaign basically hits one area a day, the main event being a speech to the party faithful at a night rally.

He admits that long air flights, when the day stretches out because of time zone differences, take their toll.

"Nobody ever realizes it," he commented over a cafeteria breakfast one campaign morning this week.

GIVES AN EXAMPLE

He talked about how his own constituency organization in Vancouver would tee up a day for him after an early morning departure from Ottawa, three hours ahead on the clock.

There would be an airport press conference on his arrival at Vancouver, visits to various committee headquarters and probably a party function and dance that night. When midnight arrived, he had been up 20 hours and would be yearning for bed.

"But when I say I'm ready for bed, they always sav: 'what do you want to go to bed for, it's only midnight.'

"They just don't realize that for you it's three o'clock in the morning."

Mr. Douglas has learned all the campaign tricks. On an hour's flight from Saskatoon to Edmonton he can get about 50 minutes sleep.

He carries a sparse 130 pounds on a five-foot, five-inch frame.

GOOD ON PLATFORM

Campaign organizers know Mr. Douglas is good on a platform and they make the most of this. The evening rally is a set piece, with Mr. Douglas on the platform with the local candidates.

The basic speech is one that quickly becomes familiar to reporters following him. But the jokes that are chestnuts for the reporter after a day on the Douglas trail are still fresh for the new rally crowd in each community.

Each speech puts a particular emphasis on one aspect of NDP philosophy, one that has a particular impact for that area.

Housing was a big point in crowded southern Ontario, for example. In Saskatoon, naturally enough, it was wheat. A better deal for Indians was the point in Peace River, Alta., and Canadian control of the Canadian economy took the spotlight in Edmonton, where United States companies are heavily involved in oil developments.

The Douglas delivery is first rate. Speeches usually are paced well and the jokes sprinkled throughout, keeping the audience interested and at ease.

Daytime appearances for Mr. Douglas generally consist of a news conference on arrival in a new community plus a couple of occasions that will allow him to get next to the voters, on appearance at a plant gate, a visit to a home for the elderly or a drive through the community with stops at party campaign headquarters.

'Shabby Heritage'

CONTROL ERODED

EDMONTON (CP) — New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas told an election rally Friday night that Canadians must wrest economic and political control from foreign investors before it is too late.

"It will be a shabby heritage we pass on to our children if our lack of concern about foreign control . . . results in our children becoming tenants in their own land and subject to the whims of a absentee landlord."

He told about 2,000 persons the Watkins report on foreign investment in Canada had warned that Canadian sovereignty is being eroded and Canadian independence diminished.

The NDP leaer pledged that a Canada development corporation would be formed, if he headed the next government after June 25. It would bring Canadian resources and the savings of Canadians into a fund to ensure Canadian ownership of industry.

YOUNGEST VOTER in Vancouver Quadra is Mr. Scaramouche Hope, retired, a ten-month-old dog owned by Mrs. Florence Pyper, who says she is mystified about how her pet got on the voters' list. (CP Wirephoto.)

Mr. Hope Won't Cast His Dog-Gone Ballot

VANCOUVER — Candidates trying to enlist the support of Mr. Scaramouche Hope, listed in the voters' register for Vancouver-Quadra riding, may run into trouble.

Mr. Hope is not only under age — he's a white and caramel-colored sheltie dog.

But how he made the voters' register for the June 25 federal election is a mystery to owner Mrs. Florence Pyper.

"I just don't know how his name got on the list," she said Thursday.

Mrs. Pyper, a teacher, said neither she nor her husband saw the enumerator.

"Maybe it was one of our neighbors trying to be funny," she said.

But joke or not, it is too late to do anything about it for the June 25 federal election, said returning officer Mrs. Margaret Mirko.

"I'm not interested in this at all," she said.

"The court of revision is now over and the lists cannot be changed."

How will 10-month-old Mr. Hope vote? Mrs. Pyper said she has no idea.

"We don't talk about politics and religion in our family. It is a personal thing, so we haven't discussed it with him."

HERE'S THE PRIME MINISTER as himself (left), and next here he is as Robert Stanfield doing the Tory flop (centre), and finally (right) here is doing the Tommy Douglas dive in which he hits the water face first. PM DOES THE TORY FLOP

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau clowned and showed superb diving skill at a motel pool here during the lunch break of his campaigning day Friday.

While he clowned, admiring reporters looked on. Mr. Trudeau demonstrated his version of the "Stanfield dive" and the "Douglas dive" — something less than his usual grace.

The 48-year-old prime minister showed up in green trunks at the fairly secluded pool just after arriving from hectic shopping-centre tours in Mississauga and Oakville.

Looking a little shy about the whole thing, he bounced up and down on the end of the board and then went back to check the balance of the board. As a small crowd collected, waiting for him to perform, the prime minister finally jumped into the water.

He went through his paces, doing smooth swan dives, back flips and full-gainers.

"That's a full gainer with a scream," he said after one spectacular number.

"Do a Stanfiled dive," a spectator called from the edge of the pool and the prime minister obliged by flopping into the water.

"Do you want to see a Tommy Douglas?" he asked. He did a split off the end of the board and smashed face down into the water.

Attractive reporter Sharon Waterman, 19, of the University of Toronto Varsity, was lounging against the fence and Mr. Trudeau called her to come on in.

"No bathing suit," she said.

"Well, Marilyn Monroe did it," the prime minister replied.

The attractive young wife of the innkeeper, Mrs. Peter Vanderburg, came over in a bikini and joined the prime minister for couple of laps of the pool.

The Liberal candidate in Halton riding, 37-year-old Rud Whiting, also joined in for a while.

A group of teen-agers gathered at a distance fence to cheer the prime minister. He walked over with a towel around his neck to sign autographs and touch hands before going in to change.

'Return First' Caouette Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alex B. Patterson, acting national leader of the Social Credit party, says if Real Caouette has any hope of leading a unified Social Credit party, he'll have to bring his Ralliement des Creditistes back into the fold first.

Mr. Patterson said in an interview Friday that Mr. Caouette's Quebec-based Creditistes will not be allowed to send voting delegates to a Social Credit national leadership convention tentatively scheduled for the fall.

LIGHT AND SIGHT

"Let me take it to the light," you often say when you want to see something more clearly. Whether you wish to read a telephone book, thread a needle or buy a piece of cloth; good clear light helps you to see it in its true detail and colour.

Adequate illumination is one of the first requisites of good seeing. Normal eyes need it, and suffer ill effects without it. But nearsighted eyes demand an abnormal amount of light, to give sharpness to their vision. Proper lighting can do much to preserve your vision, but it is only one factor. Your eyes deserve the most careful and regular checkups. Have your eyes examined regularly and you will be rewarded with the greatest gift of nature—good vision.

Grit Ad A Lie: Tories

Times Ottawa Bureau

SASKATOON — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Friday night accused the Liberals of spreading a "deliberate lie" about his stand on national unity.

Mr. Stanfield told a crowd of close to 2,300 that Prime Minister Trudeau and "his friends" were conducting a campaign to distort his policy.

He referred to a large advertisement which he said appeared in a Calgary newspaper.

The ad described Mr. Stanfiled's view on unity as a promotion of "two nations" and "special status" for Quebec.

'DELIBERATE LIE'

"I accuse the Liberal party of a deliberate lie which is not worthy of a national party seeking election," Mr. Stanfield said. He prefaced his charge with a reference to certain literature which is being spread around the country attacking Mr. Trudeau's background.

The prime minister this week lashed out at the pamphleteers for propogating "hate literature."

Mr. Trudeau said that "lies and distortions" on the views of individuals are dangerous to the Canadian society and have no place in the election campaign.

Mr. Stanfield said Friday he did not approve of any man having "mud slung at him."

He rejected the "articles in obscure papers which have given a distorted impression of Mr. Trudeau's statements in the past."

Having said that, Mr. Stanfield added: "I agree that his words should not be distorted and I call on the prime minister and his friends not to distort my words."

'REPUDIATE AD'

If Mr. Trudeau really believes what he is saying, he should immediately repudiate the statements in the Calgary newspaper ad, the Tory leader said.

He stressed firmly that he had never advocated a "two nations" policy for this country.

He and his party believe in one Canada, with a federal system, made up of two founding races working in harmony with people of other diverse origins who have helped to build the country.

The Conservative party felt that if any special powers are offered to one province, they must be offered to all provinces.

Mr. Stanfield said his Quebec strongman Marcel Faribault was in agreement with this view and had never argued otherwise.

He recalled to his Saskatoon audience Mr. Faribault's words recently in Winnipeg that he "loves every inch of this land and would fight anyone who tried to tear it apart."

Groos Pickets His Own Shop

By ERIC MAURICE

Victoria Liberal candidate David Groos this morning joined union men and unemployed shipbuilders by picking up a placard and picketing his own headquarters.

The pickets, the same who appeared at the Stanfield rally outside Memorial Arena Thursday, were protesting the closure of VMD shipyards.

Close to 30 men took part in the picketing of all three party campaign headquarters in Victoria at 9:30 a.m. Later, some of the men went to Esquimalt-Saanich candidates' headquarters.

"I have very great sympathy with the people conducting this demonstration," Mr. Groos said.

Asked if he felt he was to blame as a member of the government for the last five years, Mr. Groos said, "It's an international financial matter.

"The blame can't be laid entirely at our doorsteps.

"We are having a tough time with the shipbuilding industry right now, but I think we'll get over it."

NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson said the picketers have a very valid complaint concerning the obvious discrimination against the Western shipbuilding industry.

"While the Liberals are desperately trying to save the Eastern yards, the Western ones are being neglected."

Conservative Eric Charman told a delegation of picketers Canada should take an example from the protection other maritime nations give their shipbuillding industry.

"How can we possibly talk about keeping the shipyards open when the government isn't comparing its methods with those of other countries?

"I am not ashamed to ask for and demand regional allowances" to get shipbuilding contracts here, Mr. Charman said.

Told of Mr. Groos' picketing, Mr. Charman said, "If he'd been working for the last few years, he wouldn't have to be out there carrying a sign."

A spokesman for the picketers said they plan to descend en masse on the Trudeau assembly Monday night.

Strike Ban Near For 4,000 Nurses

Yes Vote 'A Dare' To Cabinet

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 4,000 nurses in British Columbia are headed towards compulsory arbitration settlement of their wage dispute with 61 hospitals.

As expected, they voted overwhelmingly in favor of striking and have three months in which to serve 48-hour strike notice and take this action.

However, under Bill 33, there is no doubt the government will act to either stop a strike before it starts or end it quickly if it starts.

The cabinet has authority to do either. All it must do is proclaim certain sections of the Mediation Act. It would then refer the dispute to the commission and order that the decision be binding on both sides.

FACE HEAVY FINES

If a strike is in effect when such an order is made, the strike must end in 24 hours and employees must return to their duties. Heavy fines are provided for failure to do so.

If no strike has started, the law prohibits one from commencing.

There is always the possibility, however, that direct talks may be resumed between the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. and the B.C. Hospitals Association.

But the gap between what the nurses want and what the hospitals will pay indicates this is an outside possibility unless one side makes a large compromise.

Official results of the strike vote are not expected to be made public until Monday. Spokesmen for the RNABC were not available Friday night or today.

But reliable sources said the strike vote ran as high as 97 per cent in some hospitals. It was indicated that nurses in 59 of the 61 hospitals supported strike action.

CONFIRMED SPECULATION

Earlier this week, Labor Minister Peterson all but said Bill 33 will be used to stop a nurses strike. In this, he confirmed speculation May 29 when the nurses voted down a recommended salary increase of 21 to 27 per cent in two stages this year. The hospitals had accepted the recommendations.

The minister said in an interview "Hospitals and schools I regard as essential public services. The public could not endure a closure of those kinds of facilities."

He also said hospitals and schools "are some of the very clear areas where the act (Bill 33) would apply."

SPOCK TO APPEAL CONVICTION; FACES JAIL TERM

BOSTON (AP)—Baby doctor Benjamin Spock, Yale University Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., and two others were convicted Friday night of conspiracy to counsel young men to evade the draft. A fifth defendant was acquitted.

"My main defence was that I believed a citizen must work against a war he feels is contrary to international law," Spock said. "The court has decided to feel differently."

After the conviction Friday night by an all-male jury, Spock's lawyer, Leonard Boudin, and defence attorneys for the other three said there would be an appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The four are expected to carry their appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary, as part of their opposition to the Vietnam war.

Convicted with Coffin and the 65-year-old pediatrician were Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student, and Mitchell Goodman, 44, a writer and teacher from Temple, Me.

•

Marcus Raskin, 34, a Washington research director, was found not guilty by the jury after seven hours and 20 minutes of deliberation. The trial began May 20 and lasted four weeks.

U.S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford ordered Spock and the other three freed in personal recognizance until sentencing on July 10. They face maximum sentences of five-year prison terms and $10,000 fines.

The jury, in a list of findings on specific charges made in the indictment, found that Spock and the other three conspired to counsel, aid and abet selective service registrants to refuse or evade duties under the Selective Service Act.

During his two days on the witness stand, Spock said the war in Vietnam was "illegal, immoral, unwinnable and against the best interests of the United States."

NEW THREATS

Bonn Fighting Travel Bars

BERLIN (AP)—With new threats rumbling out of East Germany, Bonn authorities today planned ways to press the Soviet Union into stopping East Germany's slowdown of traffic in West Berlin.

Mention of "new and unpleasant surprises" from East Berlin spurred the West German government to seek talks with Allied governments on ways to ease the newly imposed travel restrictions—including the possibility of threatening to refuse to sign the United Nations treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

The treaty, passed Wednesday by the UN General Assembly, was drafted jointly by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Observers believe a threat not to sign it would push the Soviets into action with its East German ally because Moscow has voiced strong objections to a nuclear-armed West Germany.

Refusing to sign would leave the door open for the West Germans to arm themselves at any time.

CARS LINE UP

Traffic out of Communist-surrounded West Berlin was slowed again today by the new visa restrictions imposed by the East German regime Thursday. Police said at one time cars were lined up for four miles on the West Berlin side, waiting to be processed through an East German crossing point.

At the Helmstedt, West Germany, crossing point at the other end of the 110-mile autobahn connecting link, a spokesman said traffic to Berlin was light and was going through East German control points without delay.

HAMILTON SHOWERS CARNATIONS ON TRUDEAU

PM Scores Big at 16,000-Strong Rally

Special to The Times

HAMILTON — The Steel City set sparks flying Friday night as it hammered out the biggest, loudest, liveliest meeting of the election campaign.

More than 16,000 cheering supporters jammed the main stand at Hamilton's civic stadium to meet Prime Minister Trudeau.

It was the biggest political meeting in the city's history, and held in a Grey Cup-type atmosphere in the football field.

There were bands, balloons and cheerleaders.

Carnations were showered down on Mr. Trudeau's open convertible when he made a circuit of the track after his half-hour speech.

And the prime minister was the big scorer.

It was the biggest live audience he has faced in his political career, and he performed like a veteran.

In this highly industrialized, highly-unionized city, he set out a Liberal policy platform for Canada's work force.

He drew frequent cheers as he read from the text.

But the biggest ovation came when he turned without text, to his beliefs in a strong, one-Canada with a bright, challenging future.

Mr. Trudeau told the crowd he wanted people to become involved in tackling Canada's problems on a country-wide and not a narrow basis.

The prime minister turned to hundreds sitting in an overflow end-zone section, and state: "None will be left out in the wings as you are tonight."

It was the end of a hectic day of campaigning in the Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Peninsula areas that saw Mr. Trudeau draw big crowds at shopping-centre appearances all along the way.

There was tight security, although aides said they knew nothing of reported crank calls threatening the prime minister's life.

But in a stop in a Toronto suburb there was a plainclothes policeman on a store roof with binoculars and a rifle.

In Hamilton, there was also an army of police out.

At St. Catharines, people fought to keep their feet as

IWA UNITS MEET; TALKS CONTINUE

Membership meetings of the International Woodworkers of America will be held in Victoria and Duncan Sunday as contract negotiations continued in Vancouver today.

The Victoria local will hold its meeting at noon at 715 Johnson. Duncan members will gather at the James Street curling rink in the morning.

No statement on progress was made by either the IWA or Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for 113 timber companies on Vancouver Island, the mainland coast and in the Queen Charlottes.

Union leaders again asked the 26,000 logging and mill workers to "sit tight" until they receive instructions from the negotiating committee, which has authority to call a strike "failing a satisfactory settlement" under the 92 per cent membership strike vote approval earlier.

There were unofficial reports that FIR has made a wage offer beyond the six cents an hour made earlier this week and that the IWA, which originally sought 50 cents an hour, made a counter proposal.

The current contract expired last midnight but FIR said the extension of talks automatically extends the last contract. Nearly all operations, however, are closed Saturdays and Sundays.

Probe Share Trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Securities Commission and the Toronto Stock Exchange are reviewing share trading in Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. and Canadian Breweries Ltd. stock, the Ontario legislature was told Friday.

Leslie Rowntree, financial and commercial affairs minister, made the announcement in replying to questions from Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park).

Dr. Shulman had asked whether there would be an investigation into the "heavy trading" in stocks of the two companies prior to the June 6 announcement that Rothmans had bought control of Canadian Breweries from Argus Corp.

Mr. Rowntree said Canadian Breweries officials have been given until July 10 to file reports on their trading activities in the company's stock.

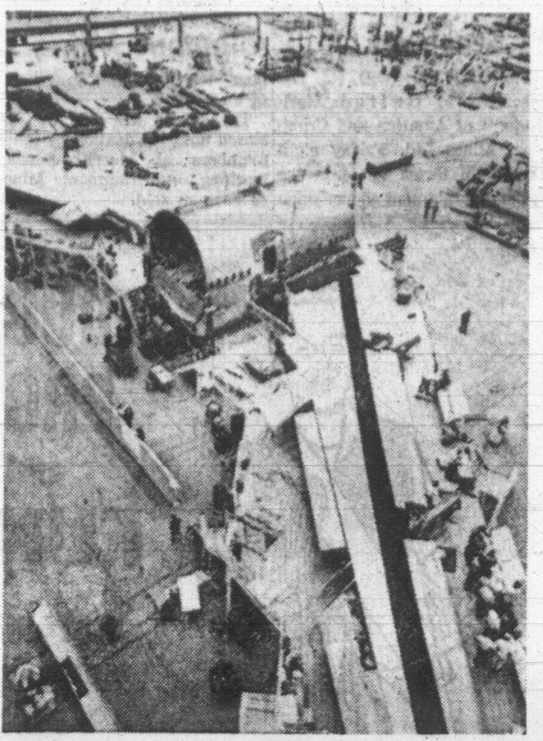
230,000 SHARES TRADED

About 230,000 shares of Canadian Breweries changed hands on the Toronto Stock Exchange June 6, although the takeover announcement was not made until 2½ hours after the exchange closed.

Canadian Breweries shares rose 50 cents to $8.62 on trade of 406,000 shares during the week. Rothmans stock rose $1.50 to $23.88 on trade of 12,800 shares and Argus Corp. traded 4,000 shares, rising $1 to $13.50 in the same period.

Rothmans paid $28,800,000 or $12 a share for Argus Corp.'s 11-per-cent interest in Canadian Breweries.

Dr. Shulman asked whether charges would be laid against Argus Corp. directors for "misinforming shareholders and the public by denying it was considering sale of its Canadian Breweries stock while it was conducting negotiations for this sale."



THE MID-BODY section and wings for Boeing's first 747 have been joined in another step in the assembly of superjet at Everett. Each of the wings is 105 feet long and the mid-fuselage section measures about 40 feet. Rollout of the 747 is scheduled for this fall.—(AP Wirephoto)

Her Ambition Stops At Being a Manager

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Milligan says she doesn't want to be the president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank — she will settle for her present job as its first woman branch manager.

What's more, the branch, in a suburban Toronto hotel, is staffed entirely by women.

Mrs. Milligan's recent appointment caused quite a flutter.

One man who telephoned forgot what he was calling about when a feminine voice answered. "What's the world coming to?" asked another.

Twenty years ago a woman's chances of working in a bank, let alone becoming a manager, were bleak.

Margaret Blois, as she was before her marriage, attended Westdale secondary school in Hamilton. Her teacher there warned pupils that if they wanted a job in a bank they would have to do well in algebra. Margaret didn't.

But despite that she started her banking career at 19 in a Toronto branch, worked for six years and then took seven years off to get married and raise a family of two. When the youngest started school, she resumed her banking career as accountant at the Toronto International Airport branch.

"I think I've reached the limit as far as girls go at the present," she says. "I'm not campaigning either, but I hope this will open the way for a lot more women."

WEEK ON MARKETS

Summer-Long Rally?

By HERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices reached their highest levels since January in exceptionally heavy trading on Canadian stock markets this week.

The value of share traded at Toronto, the largest exchange, hit a record $111,102,000 compared with the previous best of $101,768,000 in April, 1964.

Funds poured in from both institutional and private investors on the growing conviction that there will be a strong summer rally. Looking back, analysts say there is a greater than two-to-one chance that markets will rise between now and September.

Current enthusiasm replaces a long period of monetary gloom and general uncertainty. Even the Vietnam "peace rally", triggered by President Johnson's speech March 29, lacked the support of major funds.

TAX VOTE APPROACHES

Looking at other signposts, investors are waiting for the outcome of next week's vote on the U.S. tax increase—spending cut bill in the House of Representatives.

Everyone feels this is an essential measure to keep interest rates from climbing even higher, and it will at least be a start towards solving the United States' fiscal problems.

Rising gold stocks showed that many investors are still uncertain about the future. Canadian golds picked up early in the week in response to active bullion trading in Europe. Gold itself was above $41 U.S. an ounce.

A sharp drop in the shares Friday reflected market conditions in London, where bullion plunged briefly to $40.20 U.S.

Some observers are beginning to take a bear view of gold. They point to the weakened position of France since the recent upheaval and to the accumulation of newly-mined bullion in South Africa.

They say France is now too weak to call for dearer gold, while South Africa is poised to depress the market by selling. The South African government denies this intention, but gold experts think it has strong internal reasons for wanting to do so soon.

Western oils and uraniums also moved up.

There were no fresh developments in the oil and gas drilling world, but there was an interesting rumor that the U.S. government has privately agreed to grant presidential permits for greatly increased oil imports from Canada.

Uraniums advanced after W. M. Gilchrist, president of Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. of Ottawa, predicted that uranium production will have to increase four times by 1970 to meet demand from nuclear power stations.

Star industrial performer was Great West Saddlery which leapt 7¾ to 11 on sales of 254,116 shares. National Hees, a subsidiary, climbed 85 cents to $5.75. Great West jumped from a low of 46 cents this year.

The spurt followed the revelation of a complex financial scheme by Edward and Peter Bronfman of Montreal, who now control Great West. They plan to acquire Aquila Computer System Co. for Great West, and eventually to transfer National Hees to their holding company, Edper Investments.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 2.50 to 162.22, golds 5.67 to 219.85, base metals .58 to 102.39 and western oils 7.87 to 212.61.

Volume was 19,830,000 shares compared with 16,542,000 last week. Advances outnumbered declines 44 to 304.

Arthur Mayse

Far be it from me to suggest that our families don't love us wedded and childed chaps all the year round. But tomorrow, the pace is stepped up, and we become Dear Old Dads.

Since most of us tend to blend with our backgrounds, we find it always just a trifle startling to be hauled into the Father's Day spotlight.

Naturally, we like getting presents, and I can take breakfast in bed anytime my dear ones choose to force it on me. Somehow, though, Father's Day retains a self-conscious, almost theatrical quality that is much less obvious on Mother's Day. Freud may have explained that fact, but I can't.

I only know that most Dear Old Dads I've hobnobbed with are more relieved than otherwise when the day wanes and they're allowed to sidle crabwise back into their natural environment.

("Well, it's nice sitting here in my slippers and all, but if nobody minds, I'd kind of like to get on with waxing the car.")

But don't think he doesn't appreciate all you've done for him. It's just that he's a victim of a nice, schmaltzy bit of sentiment which has somehow never become an integral part of his busy year.

★

The Encyclopedia Britannica gives a paragraph and a heading to Mother's Day, but makes only the briefest of reference to its male counterpart under the catch-all title, "Holidays."

This it really isn't. Still, the merchants like it—although a florist tells me it doesn't do much for his business—and they offer a bewildering variety of enticements.

Let's take a look-see.

Here's one that reads, "Give Dad a New Mug for Father's Day," an exhortation that struck me as less than kind until I noticed it referred to the coffee-holding sort.

A page or two over, here are turtlenecks for "Dad the Swinger," which is something of a contradiction in terms. In the same ad, you will find mighty nice gear for Dad the golfer, and Dad the fisherman, but I don't notice anything for Dad the sink unstopper, Dad the roof gutter cleaner or Dad the bike tire pumper-upper.

There's nothing specifically listed for Dad the housepainter, either; yet I know several guys, one of them me, who would twinkle and glow over a gallon can of exterior latex from his family.

But don't worry—we will be happy with whatever you happen to bestow, even though perhaps a trifle confused.

I know a dad who once got a highly superior English shoehorn with genuine pigskin handle. Since like most of us he just kind of slithers into his shoes, he was at a loss what to do with it. Finally and sneakily, he turned it to use as a bedding-plant planter.

★

At our house, now that our young are grown, the general attitude is, the heck with surprises.

When Father's Day nears, this D.O.D. commences to drop lead-pipe hints, and keeps right on until patience is outworn.

Then somebody asks me what I'd like, and we come to an understanding.

But not right away, you understand. As with most dads, there are a lot of things I'd like.

So this is weighed against that, and that against the other, with reasonable regard for the state of the donor's finances, until a balance is struck.

It's a comfortable arrangement all round, although it may not be exactly what Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane had in mind.

That sentimental lady invented Father's Day in 1910, and even though the Britannica ignores her completely, I guess Dear Old Dad does owe her a nod across the years.

Man, 28, Fined For Supplying

A 28-year-old man was fined $75 Friday for supplying liquor to a minor.

Frank Cirkelbach, 1120 May, was found guilty of the charge arising from an incident May 1.

Court was told the accused was the driver of a car stopped in Town and Country parking lot and containing 16 full bottles of beer. Three under-age passengers in the car smelled of beer.

CREW OF THE GOOD SHIP "Boozemark" lugs into position at the start of Esquimalt Buccaneer Day parade today. Mike Dachuk, 13, hauls along while David Naysmith, 11, takes a swig of Boozemark brew. Neil Brokenshire, 12, takes it easy. The parade, which included floats and bands and hundreds of children from minor athletic teams, came about midway through the municipality's annual celebration. A variety show, sunset ceremony and dances wrap it up tonight.

HUNGRY SCOUTS from the 2nd Tsarlip Brentwood troop made themselves a pancake breakfast this morning as their float moved along in the parade organized by the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce and timed to coincide with Brentwood's Family Fun day. Chief cook Bruce McNaughton passed out the grub to scouts Stephen Wall, Tony Woods, David Apps, Maurice Deblois, Mark Clifford, Jeremy Gye, Tom Walters and Warren Stenning. (Robin Clarke Photo).

Test Samples Support Sewage Sea Disposal

The first direct evidence was given today to support disposal of sewage at sea.

Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health samples taken at the only deepsea outfall in the area would be acceptable to the Pollution Control Board of B.C., said Saanich Acting Mayor Leslie Passmore.

The sea water samples were taken May 29 off the 1,300-foot Finnerty Cove outfall in Saanich.

"The results of these tests show the coliform count to be well within the limits that would be acceptable to the Pollution Control Board," he said.

A number of individuals and groups have questioned whether dilution and diffusion by sea water is adequate to reduce the coliform count to an accepted standard.

The Pollution Control Board, in a letter to the engineering company which undertook the massive sewerage report, said the coliform count should not exceed 1,000 betwen May and September.

The May 29 tests show the highest count to be 240 over the outfall and 350 at a point 500 feet south of the outfall.

At 1,000 feet past the outfall, 1,000 feet north of the outfall, and two points halfway to shore the count was less than two.

"Admittedly these results are from one test only but tests will be taken through the summer months and if no significant changes are registered it would seem reasonable to assume that dispoal of sewage by long outfalls is the answer to our pollution problems," said Ald. Passmore.

The regional board has been authorized to implement the recommendations in the sewerage report of Associated Engineering Services. These recommendations include long outfalls to deepsea water.

He Always Wanted A Bathmat?

The mystery of Bobbie and his bathmat was partly solved today.

The owner of the little dog has shown up after a Times story Friday described how the Border Collie cross had been crouching beside a bathmat in a Langford field for the past four days.

The dog's owner is building foreman Marvin Sather, 52, who boards at 962 Page in Langford. He has been looking for his dog, whose name is Robbie, since it wandered away Wednesday night.

Mr. Sather has been supervising construction on a church hall, about a block from where Robbie kept his curious vigil.

But the bathmat remains a mystery. No one knows why Robbie held it so dear. His owner never saw it before.

Q. Who invented parking meters and where were they first installed?—L.Q.J.

A. Parking meters were the invention of one Carl C. Magee (U.S.) and were first installed in the business district of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma on July 19, 1935.

Another New Business Block

A three-storey, $50,000 financial centre is being constructed on the southwest corner of Broughton and Blanshard streets.

It is being buillt by Victor Wilson Agencies Ltd. for Small Oaks Estates, a Victoria company.

Victor Wilson, speaking for Victor Wilson Agencies Ltd., said the building will encompass 26,000 feet of floor space and will be ready for occupancy by December.

Liberal Sun Seen Likely For Trudeau

The weather looks promising for Prime Minister Trudeau's visit Monday night.

The prime minister arrives in Beacon Hill Park shortly after 8 for a whirlwhind high security open-air rally. It will be his only Vancouver Island stop.

The weekend forecast is for generally sunny, warm weather, and all indications point to the same continuing through Monday.

The prime minister is scheduled to arrive by helicopter direct from a Vancouver television appearance. He will land on the south side of Dallas Road just below the park lookout.

He will speak here from a platform bordering on the north side of Dallas Road.

Mr. Trudeau is expected to speak for about 20 minutes before leaving in a closed car under police escort for Victoria International Airport. The Prime Minister's chartered DC-9 jet is due in Calgary about 11 p.m. Monday.

As a security precaution, there will be no stops during the trip to the airport. Vehicles will be travelling at posted speeds.

DATE SET NEXT WEEK

92% at Empress Vote for Strike

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Employees at the Empress Hotel voted 92.59 per cent in favor of strike action Friday in a government-supervised ballot.

The vote showed 200 in favor, 11 opposed and five ballots spoiled.

Last month, employees voted 155-to-2 to reject a majority conciliation board recommendation of eight cents an hour retroactive to Sept. 1, seven cents an hour in the second year and numerous classification adjustments.

A spokesman for Local 276 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers from Vancouver said this morning a strike date will be set next week.

●

The existing contract expired last Aug. 31. Hourly wage rates run from a low of $1.25 an hour for porters to $2.33 for sous chefs, said the union.

The hotel said porters average $300 a month in gratuities and the conciliation recommendation on classification adjustments ranged from six cents to 28 cents for 128 employees.

Empress manager Leslie Parkinson said last month the hotel will not operate in the face of a strike but would close down. He was not available for comment this morning.

In 1963, when employees came within a few hours of striking Victoria's biggest hotel, Canadian Pacific brought in supervisors and conducted local interviews to replace strikers.

SAANICH OFFICERS ASSAULTED

Two Saanich police officers were assaulted in separate incidents early today.

One officer was injured but not kept in hospital.

In the first incident Const. Bob Pringle was assaulted by a man arrested at midnight in the Town and Country parking lot, police said.

The man subsequently escaped due to the presence of a large crowd.

He was arrested again today and is in custody charged with assaulting an officer. He will appear in court Monday.

RED LION INN

At 2:15 a.m. police were called to the Red Lion hotel following a disturbance. Police say a "battle royal" occurred at the rear of the motel.

Const. Norman Ellison was assaulted while attempting to break up the fight. The man escaped and others blocked the officer when he gave chase, police said today.

Police are looking for several other men involved in the incident.

10 DAYS TO GO

Heavy Response Seen As Advance Polls Open

Voters were lining up at one advance poll in the Esquimalt-Saanich riding this morning.

In Victoria they were turning out at double the rate of the last election.

Six Victoria and five Esquimalt-Saanich advance polls are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and the same hours Monday.

The number of voters turning out to them hints at big showing for election day June 25.

Esquimalt-Saanich returning officer Mrs. E. T. Lea can be reached at 384-7145. David Wilson, returning officer in Victoria, is at 386-6384.

Mr. Wilson described the turn-out as "very heavy". Mrs. Lea said the line-up occurred at 9 a.m. at the St. Luke's Church Hall on Cedar Hill Cross Road. The Langford poll was also reported very busy.

Liberal candidate David Groos is sending a pink napkin and a teabag to some Victoria voters.

The letter of explanation includes a Trudeau pamphlet.

The idea is for everyone getting a teabag to invite a neighbor in for tea and talk over Trudeau policy outlined in the pamphlet.

It's a new gimmick, and it may save Groos supporters some canvassing time.

Independent candidate George Burnham will be in Beacon Hill Park Speaker's Corner Sunday afternoon.

He plans to carry his campaign to restore the Red Ensign to Veterans' Hospital patients and provincial servants next week.

He was handshaking on his own in the 1100 block Douglas on Friday.

Dr. Harvey Richardson is another local candidate who once worked in Greater Victoria shipyards.

Dr. Richardson Friday refuted Liberal David Anderson's claim of being the only candidate who had done so.

"I worked as a boilermaker's helper after I had gained my MA in physics," he said.

"I was waiting to go to Europe and didn't want to take a permanent posting in my field."

He returned to shipyard work in 1953, before his appointment to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

He worked at the drydock in the area between the double bottoms in ships—"just as low as I could go."

Nightclub Fight Costly

Two men were fined $50 each today for fighting in a downtown nightclub.

Lawrence Goodson, 29, of 651 Constance, and Robert Moffit, 22, of 1507 Westall, pleaded guilty.

Court was told the men, both bleeding, were found being assisted from the scene of a scuffle at 1318 Broad Street early today.

JAIL SENTENCE REDUCED TO FINE

A sentence of three months' imprisonment on a Victoria motorist was reduced to a fine of $500 in county court Friday.

James Steen, 30, of 413 Langford, was convicted by Magistrate J. A. Byers in police court last Feb. 26 on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Victoria lawyer John B. E. Goult appealed both conviction and sentence before Judge Montague Drake in county court.

Judge Drake upheld the conviction but reduced the sentence.

Police evidence was that a car driven by Steen struck a pedestrian on the south side of Gorge Road, near Earl Grey Road, on Nov. 11 last.

URBAN CRISIS UPON CANADA, SAYS MAYOR

'We Will Be Cast on Scrap Heap of History'

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Massive sacrifice and effort are required by urban societies if the cities of North America are to survive.

Mayor Hugh Stephen told an audience of secondary school principals and vice-principals Friday evening that city-dwellers would either find an answer to rapidly growing problems or "we too will be cast upon the scrap-heap of history. And the jungle will once again come into its own."

Taking as his theme "The Urban Crisis" Mayor Stephen said one of the major problems is finding a better method of civic government.

"I have always opposed, and stilll oppose, the introduction of party politics, in its generally accepted sense, into municipal affairs," he said.

★ ★ ★

"But I must also say that if local government is to become swift enough and mobile enough and resilient enough to react to the rapidly approaching crisis-years ahead, some more responsive mechanism of policy making must be evolved."

Mayor Stephen noted that in Montreal, under the leadership of Mayor Jean Drapeau, tremendous gains had been made following the introduction of a civic party system.

"Programs (in Montreal) are formulated by a small executive committee, debated in party caucus and, once approved there, the ratification by an obedient council is a mere formality," he said.

"Democratic? Perhaps not entirely, but incredibly swifter and more effective than our (form of government)."

Mayor Stephen repeated an oft-stated theme to his audience.

★ ★ ★

"It is a complete incongruity that the property tax, which was originally devised to take care of the elementary needs of a rural, self-help society, should still be called upon to maintain in a large measure all the complex educational, physical and recreational requirements of a modern and sophisticated urban environment."

"Not only is it plainly inadequate to the task but its assessment base is nothing like resilient enough to the inflationary demands upon the civic purse.

"Unlike the main sources of federal and provincial revenues, which advance in almost direct proportions to the dictates of the national growth patterns, the property tax is historically a laggard in its ability to adjust to changing circumstances."

Mayor Stephen said little change is being advocated at the municipal level.

"And yet it is mostly at the local levels that the direct results of urban growth are first felt," he said. "Unlike many federal and provincial expenditures . . . . the new roads, sewers, parking facilities, etc., must be supplied without delay.

★ ★ ★

"Among all these manifold commitments, none is becoming more onerous than education . . .

"While Victoria's general mill rate has advanced by only some 5 per cent, the school mill rate has risen by 40 per cent."

Mayor Stephen said the only answer to the tax problem is a full review of federal, provincial and municipal tax and cost-sharing formulas.

"I wish very much that I could tell you tonight that our institutions of government were ready and poised to confront the emergency . . . Unhappily, and in honesty, I have to confess . . . that we are facing an explosive farce as destructive in its potential as the hydrogen bomb with resources that were already outmoded 50 years ago."

Teasing Exposure Of Lovers

KING, QUEEN, KNAVE, by Vladimir Nabokov. McGraw-Hill; $7.50; 274 pp.

Reviewed by Donna Smyth

Since the astounding commercial success of his English novels published in America, Nabokov has been resurrecting, or rather preserving, his earlier Russian movies by translating them alone or in collaboration with his son, Dmitri.

King, Queen, Knave is a translation of his second Russian novel with several minor revisions which Nabokov explains in the Foreword.

First published in 1928, the novel is set in Berlin where the author lived for several years with other Russian expatriates who gazed towards their distant border with dreamy, nostalgic eyes.

The main characters are a wealthy German businessman, Kurt Dreyer; his passionately cold blooded wife, Martha; and their attractive but naive nephew, Franz. Franz becomes the awkward lover of hungry, middle-aged Martha, while Dreyer remains unsuspecting, imperturbable, and disgustingly healthy.

Triangle

The main plot centres around Martha's plans to remove her husband from the scene while retaining his money. Thus, the classical triangular relationship between, king, queen, and knave is set up but from this point on, Nabokov begins to have fun.

His penchant for teasing the reader is much in evidence as the lovers narrowly escape one exposure after the other. With an unashamed wink at probability, the author contrives coincidences and mishaps which are both suspenseful and hilarious.

As Nabokov says, "Of all my novels, this bright brute is the gayest."

The gaiety, however, is Nabokov's own particular dark variety, streaked with madness, flecked with brilliant detail like the butterflies that keep flitting in and out of his novels.

There is the murder plot, for instance, motivated by brittle greed and moist lust, but doomed to the propitious bumblings of a Charlie Chaplin skit.

Real World

There is also a lovable dog named Tom whose wagging tail and bright eyes represent the real world which always threatens to bound in upon the lovers and destroy, with a bark, their dream-like relationship.

In addition, there is a mysterious Inventor whose success in creating life-like dummies seems to parallel Franz's psychological deterioration into a walking robot controlled by Martha who reverses the fairy-tale metamorphosis by changing from a beautiful lady into a toad.

Ironic fate in the veiled hand of the author deals the last cards with satisfying certainty at a sea-side resort, a favorite Nabokov locale.

Even as a young man, Nabokov's writing techniques tend to follow the old vaudeville motto, "Dazzle them with your footwork." He is an artist who delights in the play of the creative imagination for its own sake.

Although the language of King, Queen, Knave lacks the verbal fireworks of Lolita or Pale Fire, there are enough compensations in the novel to make it a welcome addition to the growing canon of Nabokov's works.

CORMORANTS nesting in dead trees along the shore of Wallace Island was one of the first sights to greet David and Jeanne Conover when they purchased their "dream island" in the midst of the Princess (Gulf Islands. See review of book Once Upon an Island below.

They Bought Own Island And Left Smog Far Behind

Once Upon an Island by David Conover. Ambassador Books, $6.50. 242 pp. reviewed by Anthony Jenkins.

The hardships of Robinson Crusoe strike a chord of longing in nearly every man. There is something about being alone on an island and fending for oneself with the materials and the natural produce at hand that is of enduring appeal.

The story of how Jeanne and David Conover renounced the rat-race of Los Angeles and bought their own island has an added interest.

Her Boredom

Crusoe's Man Friday was not much more than a helpful door-mat and hardly existed as a person in his own right; but David Conover had to consider his wife's feelings, her loneliness and boredom, along with his own difficulties.

The interest of this book is not so much what the Conover's did to their island — though that in itself is fascinating — but what the island did to them.

Their story which began in 1946 is a distinctly committed version of the present-day drop-out mania.

Pay Mortgages

Deciding that the commercial grind in smoggy Los Angeles was not for them, the young couple packed what they could into their rickety car, sold their home and trekked north to fulfill David's boyhood dreams of owning Wallace Island just off Salt Spring Island.

They knew nothing about plumbing, carpentry, gardening or boating, yet armed with boxes of "how-to-books, they set about learning in order to build their own home and start the summer resort that would make them self-supporting and pay off the mortgage on their island.

What happened was a series of back-breaking trials and errors which began as soon as David determined to sail Bertha, their old life-boat, from Victoria into the Trincomali Passage. The sea which had seemed placid from the decks of a ferry became a danger to be reckoned with and (after near disaster) conquered.

The most memorable part of the book is the story of their first winter on the island when the rains went on and on. Their home-made pipes froze, storms tore their boat loose and destroyed their wharf, and food and money ran out. The challenge of winter drew David in upon himself as he battled to solve each new problem, and Jeanne felt excluded, stuck in their leaky one-roomed shack with little to do except stare at the endless mist and rain.

Theirs is the story of a partnership that matured and strengthened under ordeal.

Against all the odds, and despite the predictions of the local jeremiahs in the Ganges stores, they came out of that first winter renewed and alive.

Silent Island

The silence of the island which at first seemed so oppressive was filled with the sounds of seals and birds, and the forest was busy with activity which had once been hidden to their city-bred sensibilities.

This is an entertaining account, written in a light, easy style with only an occasional precious turn of phrase.

YOUTH BELIEVES OWN PRESS NOTICES

Egged Into Self-Destruction

THE GAP by Richard Lorber and Ernest Fladell; McGraw-Hill, 1968; $7.50.

Reviewed by GRANT McORMOND

The "gap" that is the subject of this timely study is the gap between the generations.

One of the authors, Ernest Fladell, is a successful advertising executive, 42 years of age; the other, Richard Lorber, is his nephew. He is 20 years old and currently working for his doctorate in Fine Arts at Columbia University.

The Gap is their record of a summer spent together in New York, consciously attempting to communicate, to bridge the gap between the long-haired pot-smoking, protesting youth, and the balding, responsible and affluent older generation.

Before a member of the older generation attempts to read the book, however, he must free his mind of certain premises.

For instance, one must abandon the idea that there are any such things as religious belief, morality, responsibility to one's fellow men, or family ties and affection.

Above all else, the reader must discard the belief, incomprehensible to modern youth, that discipline is necessary, let alone desirable.

But if a reader is able to free his mind and accept these new premises, it is uncertain that he will gain any new ones from The Gap.

SMOKES POT

Certainly as one reads of the attempts of Ernest Fladell to get turned on and tuned in by smoking pot, one becomes increasingly aware that the older generation is trying much harder to bridge the gap than the younger generation who refuse even to meet them half way on the bridge. In fact, if the words of Richard Lorber are to be believed, the attempt of his uncle to share his experiences and to communicate them deprived the younger man of much of the enjoyment he received from them.

When it came the turn of young Lorber to share the experiences of his uncle in the complicated world of business, it again becomes obvious to the reader that at best the young man is willing to make only a half-hearted attempt.

He is willing to share the business luncheons and ogle the long-legged models used for advertising copy, but the dull drudgery of office routine he finds unbearable.

Still, the dialogue founded on the shared experiences of two generations continues. The topics discussed here are the Vietnam War, taking marijuana and LSD, the unconventional dress of the younger generation, sexual freedom and the evils of our materialistic and capitalistic society.

Readers expecting anything new, different or profound on any of these subjects will be disappointed. But from the discussion there may emerge a new understanding of the character of modern youth, or at least of that segment of modern youth that prides itself on its intellectuality and difference.

Perhaps the most striking thing revealed by Richard Lorber in his role as spokesman for modern youth in The Gap emerges as much from the style as from the subject matter; that is, the supreme egocentricity of the generation represented.

One need only tabulate the number of times the personal pronoun "I" and the possessives "my" and "mine" are used in any paragraph to discover this one outstanding characteristic.

It is almost as if a whole generation fails to recognize, let alone respect the existence of anyone else in the world unless that individual signals his existence by the superficial gimmick of donning strange apparel.

This egocentricity fans out in all directions.

Because youth values itself so highly, all other values shrink to insignificance.

The Vietnam War is evil, not in terms of its Asian victims, but rather in terms of the way it impinges on the personalities of those who may be drafted.

Fear, then, is another characteristic of youth as revealed in The Gap: fear of pain, fear of discipline, fear of new experiences, fear of responsibility.

Combined with this fear is a rather dishonest overemphasis on the enjoyment of sensual experience. Sexual freedom and the taking of drugs are both means to this end, and both, in a rather hypocritical way, are justified or rationalized as devices for expanding the range of emotional and intellectual awareness.

In a sense, the traditional roles of youth and maturity have been reversed. It is youth that exhibits the rigid, inflexible mental attitudes, unwilling to accept or even to attempt to see opposing positions.

The older generation, on the other hand, has conscientiously attempted to tune in on the message that youth professes to be attempting to communicate.

GOOD COPY

Many readers will find themselves puzzled by the ideas expressed by Richard Lorber in The Gap; many more will find themselves annoyed; a few may find their understanding increased. Almost all, however, will concur with Ernest Fladell when he writes: "I hope that by the time my own son reaches Richie's age the kids will have stopped believing their own publicity.

"Right now and for a long time they have been good copy.

"They have been made shills for the movie industry, the fashion industry, and of course the ad business.

"Their creativity has been raped.

"Their rebellion has been bastardized.

"They have been egged into self-destructive overstatement."

Brothers Keen Rivals

THE INDUSTRIALISTS, by Guy Wilson; J. M. Dent; $6.00.

This book concerns the rivalry of two brothers, co-directors of a factory in Birmingham, England. The cultivated and idealistic Brian worries over human relations and the expense accounts incurred by the sports-car enthusiast Gordon, a natural salesman.

CHURCHILL STORY WILL GO AHEAD

The sudden death of Randolph Churchill, last week, occasioned some speculation over what would happen to his massive biography of his father. The first two volumes, both of which made the best-seller lists, followed Sir Winston up to 1914. It has now been announced that volume three and the subsequent books will be completed by Randolph's son, Winston.

FISHERMEN AND THE CO-OPS

Tides of Change, by A. V. Hill. Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association. $5.25. Reviewed by Bryan N. S. Gooch.

A. V. Hill in Tides of Change deals with the history of British Columbia's fishermen's co-operatives and certain associated credit unions, covering in the main the details of ". . . groups whose active principles come fairly close to the main stream of 'Rochdale' co-operation."

He discusses the fortunes of such organizations as the North Island Trollers' Co-operative Association, the Gulf and Fraser Fishermen's Credit Union, and the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, and does so thoroughly and with considerable understanding of the economic and human problems faced by groups which are so much a part of the history of British Columbia's coast.

The material is clearly presented. The basic arrangement is chronological, with a chapter given to each of the major co-ops or credit unions considered. Financial data is included when necessary, but the book is not in any way cluttered with figures.

The author's arguments in favor of the co-op movement are well worked and convincing; indeed, his discussion of the PRFCA could not be more glowing in its praise.

Hill's style is pleasing, to say the least. He has made what might otherwise have been a somewhat dry account interesting — in fact, "absorbing" would be a fair word. This volume can be read with pleasure and profit by those persons interested in the development of this province, in its organizations and, more specifically, in its people, as well as by those involved in the fishing industry in some way. Tides of Change is a significant, human book; it is a good book.

Thietvanne Is Different; The Americans Pull Out!

THE SKY SUSPENDED by James Basset. Fitzhenry & Whiteside, $8.75.

Action at sea is the main ingredient of James Bassett's new novel, The Sky Suspended.

It has many of the qualities that older readers will associate with the adventure movies of the 1930s, portraying the strenuous activities of brawny American soliders of fortune in the Far East.

The hero of this work is Fredrick Peter Cragg, a naval officer of the Second World War who has never managed to adjust to life ashore in post-war America. His companions are a few of his wartime buddies, "the Mafia". They are recruited to aid a small country in Southeast Asia in its struggle against the communist forces encroaching upon it.

If the whole situation and locale suggest to the reader the war in Vietnam, there is certainly nothing in the novel to alter that impression. Even the geographical contours of the fictional South Thietvanne suggest those of Vietnam, and its capital, GaiSong, has all the characteristics of Saigon.

But in The Sky Suspended the Americans have withdrawn, and the Thietvanne government is forced to call in Cragg and his mercenaries in a last desperate gamble to save the country.

UP THE COAST

James Bassett wastes no time in getting his story under way, and as the voyage up the coast, deep into communist water continues, the tempo of the action increases.

The final naval engagement at Phom Than is fast paced, as is the subsequent final land action at Dokoro. The Mafia is left with only two survivors, but Cragg and his attractive French female companion escape back to GaiSong.

Almost as important as the humans in this novel of action in the South China Sea are the two vessels Cragg commands. One is a reconverted PT boat; the other is a disguised, heavily-armed junk.

It is an unlikely fleet with which to achieve such outstanding success as the destruction of 30 enemy vessels, but James Bassett knows his boats and armament, and makes the whole adventure plausible without boring his readers with tedious technical skill.

The Sky Suspended is not a great book but it is certainly easy, fast-paced reading. While there is romance and a touch of sex, the narration relies on neither of these elements for its appeal; while there is brutality and violence in the story, Bassett does not dwell upon them.

Like Bassett's earlier work, Harm's Way, the book should make a good action-filled movie.—G.G.M.

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Sitar Music of India; Kartick Kumar; DGG 136551.

Sitar music is never likely to be the mainstay of a Western discophile's collection, but it certainly holds interest for those who seek something different in their musical experience, who delight in unusual instrumental sounds, who wallow in atmosphere and who like to provide impressively apt background music for exotic dinner parties.

Because most of us cannot spare the time to learn to understand oriental music we tend to seek, almost unconsciously, for similarities to our own culture on which we may base an untutored opinion.

There is so much on this record which is linked to our familiar modes that it almost sounds as though the music must have been popularized or westernized.

The sitar, pictured on the front of the jacket and clearly described on the back, is not quite like any of our instruments but it has a kinship with guitars and often sounds like a high-pitched electric Hawaiian model, played differently to our custom.

WESTERN EARS

Most of the melodic line of the raga is familiar enough to be easily recognized and though the rhythms are more intricate and complex, the rhythmic patterns are comprehensible to Western ears.

The sudden emphasis changes are remarkably like those found in Elizabethan music and the cross-rhythms between instruments similar to those found in jazz.

The sliding technique (found in a less-pronounced form in cowboy and Hawaiian music) is at first queasily upsetting to our tonal-trained ears but when the skill of the performer is as high as that of Kartick Kumar so that the resultant note is true and the intonation accurate, the device can sound remarkably like a trill or ornamental technique in our music.

Though we undoubtedly miss much of the minutiae in which Indian performers delight, we can enjoy the atmosphere of the various contrasted sections.

CROSS RHYTHM

As excitement and acceleration increase another player joins in. The dry finger-beating of the tabla adds a cross-rhythm similar to that provided by the drummer in a jazz combo, and, like the jazz drummer, this instrumentalist is given occasional solo passages.

The open-stringed, lute-like tamboura picks up and adds to the harmonics of the sitar and provides a constant background.

Of all the various sounds produced, my favorite is that in which the background sounds as though it is made by the wet "glugging" of a washing machine agitator cup going up and down.

The record is very clearly engineered so that the more you listen to it, the more you hear.

The music is closely related to Indian philosophy of man and his world but because we are not aware of the significance of conventional interpretations we may make of it what we will.

It is strange, it is different, but gives great scope for imaginative interpretation and could provide a wonderful back-drop to creative dances.

Shaw Student Choreographs Rosalinda

That extraordinary combination of beautiful music and low farce comedy—Johann Strauss' Die Fledermaus—leaped into contemporary limelight in the 1920s when Max Reinhardt and Erich Korngold blended their theatric-musical genius to revive the 50-year-old operetta in Berlin.

Idea behind the production was to arrange the music so that principal comedy roles could be performed by first class comedy actors, while the major singing roles would be undertaken by leading singers with a talent for comedy.

The Reinhardt-Korngold version was a sensation in Berlin and in 1942, when it was presented on Broadway under the title, Rosalinda, it became New York's outstanding hit and ran for nearly two years.

LIGHT OPERA

In 1947 it was performed by the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera with Korngold conducting and again chalked up a major success.

It was repeated there in 1956 with Cyril Ritchard as Eisenstein and Jean Fenn in the title role—"the best Rosalinda ever" according to Korngold.

Starting on July 15, the Reinhardt-Korngold version will take the stage at Queen Elizabeth Theatre as part of the 1968 Vancouver Festival.

Moreover, Cyril Ritchard and Jean Fenn are to star again with Murray Matheson playing Prince Orlofsky, Daniele Barioni of La Scala playing Alfredo and Canada's international ballerina, Lois Smith and Ross Laidley also in the cast.

Choreography is being designed by former Victorian Walter Burgess. Mr. Burgess who has danced in, choreographed and directed many major shows in the United States and Eastern Canada, began his career here as a student of Wynne Shaw.

The festival production runs through to July 23, after which it goes on tour to Montreal, opening there July 30 and running to Aug. 4 at the Salle Wilfrid Pelletier.

Neurotic Idea Wins

HALIFAX (CP)—The idea that the world is made up of neurotics in a suppressing society has won $1,000 for Richard Minichiello of St. Mary's University here.

The idea was the basis for a six-scene play, Vertigo of Freedom, that won the award from the Canada Council for the best original Canadian play entered in the Atlantic zone of the Dominion Drama Festival this year.

Minichiello, a native of Boston, says, "I started the play off with the basic idea that we're all neurotics and developed it into a struggle between the freedom within an individual and the suppressing standards of society that won't allow this freedom to be exercised."

Your Own Thing Wins Praise

TORONTO (CP) — If you're a crow, only a few blocks separate Wall Street from Greenwich Village. If you're a writer, it's more like an ocean.

For a show to bridge the generation gap and draw audiences from both groups is unusual. For a show to get good reviews from Wall Street Journal and the East Village Other—a hippie newspaper—is remarkable.

Your Own Thing, which opened in Toronto's Playhouse Theatre June 13 for a five-week engagement, is such a show.

Your Own Thing was suggested by the plot of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night—the trouble a set of twins—one male, one female—can cause. Creator Hal Hester stresses the "suggested." "After all, I couldn't copy," he said in an interview. "If I did, I wouldn't be doing my own thing."

Scholarship Tea Near

Sale of tickets for Bastion Theatre's Actors' Committee scholarship tea next Friday is going well.

Theme of the tea, being held at 3465 Midland Road, starting at 2 p.m., will be "The Thirties." Costumes, old programs and other souvenirs of the era will be displayed.

Plans for conversion of the original fourth floor courtroom in the Maritime Museum on Bastion Square, into an approximately 100-seat intimate theatre, are being carried out.

In the meantime, casting of the youth theatre season production of Arthur Miller's searing play, The Crucible, will begin this Sunday.

Another Bastion activity, the 1968-69 school tour, has already received upwards of 100 bookings.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's hand was played in a rubber bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club. Barbara Kashmar, who sat South, was rather disappointed when she saw the dummy. It represented just about the worst possible raise, and she noted there were problems in each of the four suits.

There was an automatic correct spade play and Barbara made it by playing dummy's nine. When East won with the king, one hurdle appeared to have been taken care of. It looked as if she could finesse the spade jack later on and get rid of one of her minor suit losers on the ace.

East returned the three of hearts and a lot of players would have gone wrong at this point in the proceedings by playing the eight, but Barbara played the queen. West won with the king and led a trump back. Barbara won in her hand with an honor so as to retain the nine as an entry to dummy.

She cashed her ace and king of clubs next and led a spade to dummy's jack. If East had produced the queen, Barbara would have been down at least two tricks, but the jack held. Now Barbara was able to discard her three of clubs on the ace of spades. Then she led a club from dummy and ruffed high. This dropped East's queen. The eight of hearts was led next to put dummy in with the nine, and two of her three diamonds went on the last two clubs.

Sort of a humdrum hand, but look at all the chances Barbara had to go wrong. We will concede that the nine of spades at trick one was automatic and the play of heart honors in order to make the nine spot an eventual entry to dummy was also automatic, but we wonder if many players would have remembered to cash the ace and king of clubs before taking the spade finesse.

ENROLMENT IN 1969

Nanaimo Site For College

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Friday announced the cabinet has passed an order-in-council establishing the Vancouver Island Regional College near Nanaimo.

Dr. Roy MacMillan, head of the regional college advisory board, said the first students could be enrolled next year. The committee now will seek a principal and a site and start hiring staff.

Mr. Campbell said members of the college council will be named soon.

Member of the regional college advisory committee Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan welcomed the news this moring at Duncan.

He said: "Establishment of a regional college council should now come within three or four days and planning of the college should follow quickly after that."

MONEY NEEDED

He anticipated participating school districts from Cowichan to Campbell River will have to include regional college costs in their 1968 budgets.

Mr. Hammond said Friday's decision came closely on the heels of a visit made recently by members of the advisory committee to Deputy Education Minister Dr. G. Neil Perry and the head of regional college planning, Bill Reed.

Estimates are there will be between 500 and 600 students who will take advantage of regional college courses in the first year on the Island.

Mr. Hammond said there is a forecast of 800 to 1,000 for the second year.

He stated the department is now willing to consider entrance by examination for those without high school qualifications.

Appeal Made On N. Pender Pollution

A South Pender Island woman made a last-ditch attempt here Friday to block a property development firm's plan to dump sewage into the sea.

Mrs. Eve Smith appealed to the B.C. Pollution Board to upset a decision of its director, C. J. Keenan, allowing Magic Estates Ltd. to install a sewage system for a 1,200-acre development on North Pender.

Mr. Keenana had given the company the go-ahead provided waste was first pumped into large septic tanks and treated before being pumped through two outfalls to the sea.

Mrs. Smith told the board other proposed subdivisions on Pender and other Gulf Islands would expect the same treatment.

SERIOUS PROBLEM

"Once that happens we will have a serious pollution problem," she said. "The Gulf Islands are now in the process of being subdivided and now is the time to institute sound sewage policies.

"People on the Gulf Islands are thinking of the future and want measures taken now to prevent pollution."

She advocated some more satisfactory method of sewage disposal, such as treatment by electricity.

"This might appear more costly at the outset but in the long run, taking all things into consideration, it will be cheaper to prevent pollution at the source."

F. S. McKinnon, chairman of the board, was sympathetic.

But he pointed out the board's main concern is to determine if the company's proposed sewage system is inadequate and could cause pollution.

Studies conducted by experts, he said, showed there would be no pollution and no solids discharged into the sea.

The board reserved its decision.

Don't Fondle 'Lost' Fawns

DUNCAN — Nobody could love a little fawn more than Jim and Tosca Oyen of Duncan Zoo — except its own mother.

And this is the point Jim Oyen tried to make Friday after accepting a week-old orphan fawn into the custody of the zoo.

He said: "People should never pick up fawns. Although it may appear they are deserted they almost never are.

"In 99 per cent of all cases the mother is nearby. She stays away from the fawns because she can be scented by predators such as cougars.

"The fawn, which does not have any scent, only goes to its mother briefly to nurse."

Mr. Oyen said even human touching of a fawn may cause the animal mother to reject her offspring for a long time.

Teen Plans In Jeopardy

CAMPBELL RIVER — "If we don't get a building of our own we are going to drop the project," stated Shaun Murphy, 18-year-old leader of a group who are trying to establish a teen centre in Campbell River.

This week council turned down the teens' request, channeled through parks and recreation commission, for $20,000 to construct their own building.

As an alternative Mayor Skip MacDonald suggested the group make use of the centrally located Cedar School gymnasium. He said that the school board has agreed to make the gym available every evening and on the week ends. The students rejected the idea as too restrictive.

Rusty Graveyard South of Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A new, five-acre graveyard is being prepared eight miles south of here for bodies nobody wants.

It will be used to store old car bodies which are banned from the city dump.

The site, near an Esquimalt-Nanaimo railway siding, is being levelled with the help of heavy equipment from Nanaimo's vocational training school, its students and instructors.

The junked cars will be stored there as a possible source of revenue should the scrap metal market improve.

Policeman's Dream Came True on Ranch

By ED GOULD

There's an old adage that warns that it is unwise to change horses in midstream but Ted Hamer made the switch three years ago and has suffered no regrets.

"My only regret at leaving my policeman's motorcycle for a real saddle is that I didn't leave it 10 years earlier," Mr. Hamer says.

"Not that the Victoria Police Department wasn't a good place to work. It's just that running the R Bar T Ranch suits m better than routine police work."

The R Bar T is a ranch on Salt Spring Island for children aged 9 to 15.

Mr. Hamer gained experience with children while in charge of Greater Victoria School Patrols for seven years, as coach and manager of Little League and Pony League teams and Boy Scout leader.

There's a lot to be said for owning your own spread — 278 acres on Maxwell Mountain — and the only boss Mr. Hamer now has is his attractive wife Ruth.

'HIRED HAND'

"She's the manager and I'm the hired hand," he says.

The R Bar T is run just like a working ranch with all guests being assigned a horse of their own, a saddle, harness and blanket — and chores.

That means grooming the horse, keeping his hooves clean, cutting wood, shovelling manure, pitching hay and making their own beds.

Mrs. Hamer and her mother, Mrs. Florence Mullens of Victoria, are the chief cooks but the bottle washing is a community effort too.

Most of the kids come from the city but with assistance from counsellors Lynne Groves, 19, of Victoria and Sue Jane Perry, 20, of West Vancouver, they quickly adjust to ranch life.

They sleep in bunkhouses, swim, hike, play games and enjoy cook-outs and Friday night trail rides to watch the sunset over Sansum Narrows.

But the big interest is riding, riding and more riding.

"Some night you practically have to pry them out of the saddle," Mr. Hamer says.

$3.5 Million Lowest Bid

A Vancouver construction firm submitted the lowest of eight bids for expansion and alteration of West Coast General Hospital at Port Alberni, Amalgamated Construction Association announced Friday.

Dawson and Hall Ltd. bid $3,579,846 on the 18-month project to improve and develop the hospital's acute care facilities.

The two next bids were entered by Bird Construction Ltd., Victoria, $3,599,477; and A. and B. Construction Ltd., Nanaimo, $3,602,228.

WORK STARTS ON GANGES SCHOOL JOB

E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd. of Victoria have been awarded a contract to construct five new classrooms at Gulf Islands Secondary School at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

Construction of the $70,000 project will commence immediately, a company spokesman said.

The classrooms, of a portable variety, were agreed upon by ratepayers by referendum.

Port Alberni Rental Homes Criticized

LAKE COWICHAN — Overcrowding in the home is the single greatest menace to health, according to Dr. Hamish Symon.

As director of Central Vancouver Island Union Board of Health, Dr. Symon said here Friday he is receiving complaints from people on welfare about the poor state of some rented homes.

He said the complaints referred particularly to the Port Alberni area.

Dr. Symon said: "There are flagrant examples there of overcrowding.

"And study after study has shown that people who live in good houses mainly enjoy better health than those who live in poor houses.

NO CONTROL

Dr. Symon said there is no control on the amount of rent paid by people who are being supported on welfare.

George McKnight of Port Alberni said he is compiling a report on public housing which he will submit to the board of health shortly.

He said: "So far the B.C. government has not taken advantage of federal money which is available for public housing.

"We should get on to it before the funds dry up."

IN HAIR-CUTTING CASE

New Magistrate Named

GANGES — A new magistrate has been agreed upon by both prosecution and defence counsel in an assualt case involving an enforced hair-cutting incident June 1.

Sidney magistrate D. G. Ashby will preside in the case of four men charged: Gilbert Marcotte, Brian Beech and John Quesnel of Ganges, and Mervyn Walde of Fulford Harbor.

Counsel for the four men, Jakob de Villiers of Victoria, asked that local magistrate M. F. Peiler relinquish his jurisdiction because "of your friendship with the parents of one of the complainants."

Mr. Peiler objected to the inference but agreed to step down when initial prosecutor Fred Rhodes of the RCMP made a similar request. (Brian Smith of Victoria is assuming the crown's case.)

A tentative court appearance of the four accused was set for August 2 at the Ganges courthouse.

Charges arose when four youths and their parents complained to police that a cabin the youths were living in near St. Mary Lake was entered and the occupants shorn of their long hair by force.

Earlier the same night, another youth told police he was dragged from his automobile and held while his hippie-length hair was cut short.

Two of the youths have since left the village.

THE COLONY COMPUTER

Colony's Computer is NOT designed to sell you a home. What it will do is eliminate the guesswork involved in looking FOR a home (or property etc.). It is man's most accurate way of presenting you with exactly what you are looking for. It is also an owner's guarantee that his home will now be shown, regardless. Sales women and men at COLONY will no longer rely on "listing books" which may or may not be up to date. Over 1,000 properties for sale, each with dozens of different features. Choose what you want, if it's for sale you can be out looking at it in minutes.
